ROOSEVELT BILL BARES PLAN TO BOSS BUSINESS

Federal License for Corporations Urged.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Ostensibly for the purpose of striking at the monopolies he blames for the new depression, President Roosevelt, according to high administration officials, is projecting legislation to place American corporations under a government dictatorship.

At a recent cabinet meeting, it is related, the President said he favors in principle the Borah-O'Mahoney bill providing for the federal licensing of corporations, but added that, in his opinion, this measure does not go far enough. Under the Borah-O'Mahoney bill a corporation would be licensed by the federal government to engage in business and could be put out of business at any time by a withdrawal of its license by the government.

Other Attacks on Business.

This disclosure, which appeared to have been inspired by the administration, was only one of numerous developments indicating that the President is ushering in the new session of congress next week with a barrage of fire on big business as the cause of the business recession which business leaders impute to Roosevelt policies.

Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, the Roosevelt trust buster, cut loose at Philadelphia with another violent speech accusing business men of a sitdown strike against the Roosevelt program of social and economic reform and predicting that such tactics are heading the country toward socialism.

Another attack along this same general line is to be made tomorrow by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes in a speech entitled "It Is Happening Here," presumably depicting the country on the verge of Fascism in attempted refutation of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "It Can't Happen Here."

Jackson Leads Attack.

The first of these administration assaults on the business community was Mr. Jackson's radio speech last Sunday in which the trust buster held monopolies responsible for the new depression. The Jackson speech caused critics to inquire what Mr. Jackson has done to break up these monopolies. Inquiry at the department of justice elicited the information that Mr. Jackson since becoming the Roosevelt trust buster a year ago has instituted only eight anti-trust suits.

To the administration operations against the business front Senator George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.] contributed the suggestion that the senate revive the lobby investigating committee, which under the chairmanship of Senator, now Supreme Court Justice, Hugo L. Black, had a stormy career harassing opponents of the Roosevelt policies. Senator Norris thought a renewed investigation would reveal "organized propaganda" against the President's policies.

Provision of Bill.

In the corporation licensing bill Senators William E. Borah [R., Idaho] and Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] propose to subject to federal control all corporations engaging in interstate commerce and in "all that commerce, whether or not carried on wholly within a particular state, which affects other states and which is not completely within a particular state."

The bill asserts that "the power to regulate such commerce includes the power to promote a more equitable distribution of the benefits thereof among the people of the United States, to foster and enlarge such commerce by improving the standard of living among ultimate consumers and purchasers of commodities and to conserve the future development of such commerce by conserving the natural resources of the nation."

"Derived from People."

The bill also asserts that "the franchises, powers, and privileges of all corporations are derived from the people and are granted by the governments of the states or of the United States as the agents of the people for the public good and gen-

Wage Compromise Ends Paris Strike

THREAT TO CALL OUT ARMY SPURS ACTION BY UNION

Pay Raise Promises Halt Utility Tieup.

PARIS, Dec. 30 [Thursday.]—(AP)—Labor leaders and cabinet ministers early this morning announced strikes of 120,000 Paris workers had been called off.

The Paris municipal council, acting through Interior Minister Marx Dormoy, agreed to give the workers a living allowance at a compromise figure between their demands and the previous council offer.

Paul Morel, secretary of the public service workers' union, said the strikers would go back to work today ending the tieup of Paris transportation, gas, light, and water services that had threatened more serious complications.

Fix Allowances at $2.31.

The compromise promised workers living allowances of 70 francs [$2.31] monthly to meet the rising cost of living instead of the 100 franc allowances strikers asked. Previously the municipal council had offered monthly allowances of 50 francs.

Premier Camille Chautemps, after day and night sessions of the cabinet, threatened to force the Paris strikers back to their jobs as soldiers. This led labor unions to seek a strike settlement in conferences which continued through the night. The government threatened to call the workers to the colors and thus force them to resume their jobs.

The workers launched their strike suddenly yesterday in protest to proposed provisions in the 1938 municipal budget which would curtail automatic wage increases promised to meet increased costs of living.

Skeleton Service Maintained.

Their action, which drew support of the communist party, paralyzed subway, bus, and trolley systems, stopped garbage collection and street cleaning, and disrupted funeral services.

Distribution of water, gas, and electricity was maintained by skeleton crews or by the utilization of reserve supplies, mobile guards being sent into some plants while police evicted strikers from others to keep up service for Paris with its 3,000,000 persons and suburbs with 2,000,000 more.

Parisians tramped to work in the morning and home in the evening through congested streets, brought out old cars or rode in taxicabs. Automobile trafic was unprecedented.

Soldiers Are Ready.

The government's announcement that it would mobilize the striking workers and order them to return to their jobs under army control unless union chiefs called off the walkout came after the first cabinet meeting which lasted four hours.

The government earlier instructed Gen. Victor Bouret, commander of the military region of Paris, to hold 1,000 soldiers in readiness to take over public services on word from Minister of National Defense Daladier. Mobile guard reinforcements were moved into Paris and troops in the capital were consigned to barracks.

Ministers said Premier Chautemps and his Radical Socialist colleagues insisted on the mobilization plan, with the Socialists finally abandoning objections.

Recall Briand's Action.

Announcement the government had decided to "force" the public service workers to return to their jobs by mobilizing them in the army, unless it was agreed to call off the strike, came from ministers after the cabinet meeting.

It was recalled that Aristide Briand, during his premiership in 1910, called railway workers throughout France to the colors from Oct. 13 to Oct. 18 to break a railway strike.

In addition to the public service strike, conflicts persisted among truck drivers, in food warehouses and in the Goodrich Rubber factory, affecting Paris and industrial regions outside.

Polish with An English Accent Just Won't Do

When you lose your dog you generally send out a brief description of him and close it with the words: "Answers to name of Rover." Unless, of course, his name is Fido. If the description is good you usually get back the pet, for most dogs know their names.

The Case Looks Hopeless.

Every one around the Sheffield station was depressed when Policeman Reich reported the other day that Richard—a thoughtful looking beagle hound—had been lost. "And," said Reich, "I'm afraid I will never get him back. No one who finds him will know Richard speaks only Polish."

On Tuesday morning, then, THE TRIBUNE explained this. It was suggested that any one encountering a lonesome beagle step up and say cheerily: "Czy ty jestes Ryczard?" [Are you Richard?]

But the lonely beagle found wandering in Bensenville yesterday would only look sorrowfully at the questioner, even when the Polish phrase was put. Herman Beyer, an engineer, finally took him home.

Police Chief Takes Action.

Eventually the story got around to Police Chief Harry Kolze who, with a friend, dropped around to the Beyer home. They arrived as a townsman was unlimbering the magic phrase.

"That," said Chief Kolze's friend, "is terrible Polish. It is about the worst Polish I ever heard. He makes it sound like 'Sigh tie jestez Rizzard?' Now listen to this: 'Tzee tee yestes Reezard?"

It was Richard, hurling himself upon his new friend, kissing him with great, wet, doggy kisses. In the same manner, when he got home last night, Richard kissed Policeman Reich, who said:

"This has been a lesson to me. I must teach him to speak English."

MOVIES OF PANAY'S SINKING REACH EAST AND ARE DEVELOPED

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Closely guarded, the 3,500 foot news reel film of the bombing and sinking of the United States gunboat Panay in China Dec. 12 arrived tonight at Newark airport on a United Air Lines plane.

The films were transferred to an armored truck, while guards stood by with submachine guns, and hurried to a Fort Lee, N. J., laboratory for developing.

With the films, which have never been out of his possession despite wounds suffered in taking them and the loss of all his other possessions, came Norman A. Alley, veteran camera man, formerly of Chicago, who braved the Japanese bombs to get the pictures.

It was announced that by noon tomorrow more than 500 prints, together with a sound track commentary by the photographer, would be released for nation-wide distribution.

The first print of the films was forwarded to Washington for preview by government officials. Late tonight others were shipped to Europe, Australia, and South America. From the movie films still pictures were made for newspaper publication.

CHRISTMAS GIFT OF HALF A PIG IS COURT PROBLEM

Casimer Liehowiak of 1831 North Francisco avenue, appeared in the Shakespeare avenue court yesterday and laid a four pound piece of pork before Judge Joseph B. Weiss. Then he spoke a piece, as follows:

"My daughter in Stevens Point, Wis., sent me half a pig for Christmas. It weighed 42 pounds and I was proud of it. When Mike Harewicz, who lives in the flat under mine, saw it he said he'd like to show it to his wife. I let him. But when I went for my half pig Mike just laughed and wouldn't give up anything but this little chunk."

A Mr. Zwikel Gets Himself Into Custody

Policeman Robert Fall decided yesterday afternoon that Robert Zwikel should have a trafic ticket for making a U turn in Michigan avenue, north of Adams street. He wrote one out.

Mr. Zwikel decided he didn't want the ticket. He locked the doors of his car and refused to open them. He took the position that his car was his castle. Policeman Fall shouted that Mr. Zwikel was under arrest and Mr. Zwikel let down a window a teeny mite and said calmly: "No, I'm not."

The courteous policeman summoned assistance. Came his superior, Lieut. Walter McKinney of the park police. The prospective recipient of the ticket remained locked in his carcastle and the lieutenant sent for a patrol wagon. When it arrived Mr. Zwikel waved and shook his head.

A Portable Stronghold.

The lieutenant sent for a tow truck. The front wheels of the Zwikel castle-car were raised and, with the patrol wagon following, the Zwikel fortress was towed to the rear of the police building at 11th and State streets.

The stubborn Mr. Zwikel still refused to come out. One by one, detectives who prided themselves on their diplomacy, tried to entice him from his motor citadel. Then the matter came to the attention of Lieut. Walter Storms, assistant chief of detectives.

"This fellow," he said, "has been sitdown striking since 5:20. It is now 6:55 p. m. Policemen should be courteous, but there is a limit."

In the Open at Last.

With that he strode out to the alley and with the butt of his pistol smashed the left front door of the car. Mr. Zwikel promptly went out the right front door and was seized.

He said he was 26 years old, that he once attended the University of Chicago and that his home was at 5135 Kenwood avenue. It was his opinion, he said, that there was no law against making U turns.

"And I'm going to be late meeting my wife in the loop," he added.

Owner Slain on Foodless Yacht in Sea Mystery

San Pedro, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Fog and a stormy sea tonight veiled details of the mysterious slaying of a wealthy man aboard his drifting yacht off the coast of Mexico.

Cross indicates point of rescue.

A navy airplane found the disabled pleasure craft, its owner lying shot dead on the deck, and a party of at least six others weak from hunger, thirst, and exposure. By radio the pilot summoned aid.

Tonight the yacht was in tow of a coast guard cutter, but the story of the tragedy—what strange events led up to the slaying and the battle of the yacht with the storm—was yet to be told.

S O S Painted on Sails.

Dwight L. Faulding, wealthy Santa Barbara hotel owner, was reported dead from several bullet wounds by the navy flyer on patrol over that area, who sighted the yacht Aafje wallowing in heavy seas with the letters S O S painted on her sails.

The craft's masts were broken and débris strewn about the deck, the flyer reported. Learning that the cruiser was without food, water, or fuel, the flyer immediately notified coast guard headquarters at San Francisco of the yacht's plight.

When the aviator returned to the mainland the navy department established a censorship on his report. Coast guard officials also refused to discuss the matter. With the towed yacht not due to arrive at San Pedro harbor until early Friday, only meager reports of the strange sea tale were available.

Cutter Reports "Trouble."

The federal bureau of investigation was called into the case after the cutter Perseus, sent to bring in the yacht, relayed the words: "There is trouble aboard."

Federal agents also refused to divulge any details they may have learned, but it was announced that W. M. Osborne, a department of justice agent, was preparing to go out in another coast guard cutter and meet the Aafje before it docked.

Everything was gay about the 50 foot cruiser when it left here nine days ago on a projected trip to Catalina Island. Aboard were seven persons, including Faulding, who had lived aboard the yacht since he leased out the Faulding hotel in Santa Barbara five months ago.

THE MASSACRE ON HIGHWAYS SETS A RECORD

4,000 More Dead Than in 1936.

Forty thousand will have died in the United States, the victims of trafic accidents, when 1937 ends at midnight tomorrow. This will set a new all-time record for deaths from this cause in any single year. It is a massacre of ten times as many persons as Illinois lost in the world war.

The figure is based on the fact that for the first eleven months of 1937 there were 35,610 deaths, only 98 less than for the entire year of 1936. In December of 1936 there were 4,290 persons killed. Reports to the National Safety council from the forty-eight states do not indicate that there will be any reduction in December of 1937. If there is no increase, the total for the nation for the year will be 39,900. The council expects an increase.

Rise in Cook County.

In Cook county, too, the figures show an alarming rise. Without elevated highways and with approximately three-fourths of the railroad crossings still at grade level, 1,105 had been killed up to 4 p. m. yesterday. In all of 1936 there were 1,061. In Chicago alone there have been 847 deaths since the first of the year.

That sums up the dark side of the ledger. There are some rays of hope in other figures. The council's figures show, for instance, that the approximate 6 per cent increase in motor fatalities this year is about the same as the increase in motor vehicle miles traveled, so that on a strictly mileage basis there has been no gain in the death rate.

Reduction in Cook County.

In Cook county there has been an actual reduction. The largest number of trafic deaths occurred in 1931, when there were 1,297. In 1934 there was another staggering list of 1,249. So the figure for 1937 to date in the county, 1,105, in spite of increased numbers of automobiles and additional miles traveled, represents a gain. Nevertheless, it is held that elimination of all grade crossings and the provision of elevated highways would act practically to eliminate the toll entirely.

Year.	Nation.	County.
1928	23,765	1,070
1929	27,066	1,033
1930	29,080	1,122
1931	30,042	1,297
1932	26,350	1,099
1934	35,769	1,249
1935	36,061	1,011
1936	35,708	1,061

*Estimated. †To date.

The total of deaths in the nation is 334,324 during the eleven year period. The total for the county is 12,147. For purposes of comparison it might be recalled that 244,086 American soldiers were killed during the world war.

Injuries Increase.

Injuries from trafic accidents also show an alarming increase this year. In 1934 there were 19,724 in Chicago; in 1935, a decrease was shown, 17,885; in 1936 the total went up again to 19,949, and in 1937 to date there have been 22,743. There were 13,794 Illinoisans wounded in the world war.

There was an aggregate saving of 539 lives marked up in seventeen states during 1937, according to the figures submitted to the safety council. This sets a new high mark for the number of states showing an improvement during the year. The seventeen are Nevada, Kansas, Maine, Washington, West Virginia, South Dakota, Oregon, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Arkansas, North Dakota, Virginia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Georgia, and New Mexico, named in the order of their gains, which ranged from 18 per cent down to 2.

141 Cities Show Decreases.

For eleven months of 1937, 141 cities showed decreases in the number of fatalities. 57 had no change, and 151 showed increases. Leadership in the lowest death rate changed in four of the population groups during the year. In cities between a quarter and a half million, Minneapolis had only four deaths and dropped Memphis to second place. New Bedford, Mass., with a perfect

Everett, Wash., with population of 31,000, was the largest city in the country to report no deaths and replaced Bangor, Me., in its class. Gloucester, Mass., took the place of Wausau, Wis., among the small cities.

4 Die in Month in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee kept its first place among the largest population group. Its trafic death toll for November was four.

Children throughout the country set up a better safety record than their elders. Children under 5 had 8 per cent fewer deaths than last year. Those between 5 and 14 showed little or no change. Persons between 15 and 24 showed an increase of 8 per cent and those between 25 and 64 a gain of 9 per cent. Those 65 and over were the highest of all, with an increase of 17 per cent.

WIDOW, 80, KILLED BY AUTO

Mrs. Mary McGrath, 80 years old and a widow, was killed last night when she was struck at Pulaski road and Huron street by a car driven by Robert J. Pendlebury, 32 years old, of 6036 South Campbell avenue. Mrs. McGrath lived at 622 North Springfield avenue.

Mrs. Anna Wernicke of 4531 North Lawndale avenue, was injured early today when her car, stopped at a red light, was struck from behind at McCormick boulevard and Devon avenue, in Lincolnwood. She was taken to her home.

Lincolnwood police arrested Richard Peabody, 1423 Berteau avenue, driver of the other car. He was carrying two loaded pistols and had been drinking, according to police, who said he once had served a Bridewell sentence for auto theft. The license on the car was issued to Chester M. Skol, 1451 Cleaver avenue, Chicago.

Peter Hanson, 55 years old, who gave his address as the district relief station at 764 West Harrison street, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile on Dec. 14.

ASKS U. S. QUIZ ON PERJURY IN BOMBING TRIAL

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 29.—(AP)—United States District Attorney Howard Doyle said tonight he had requested the federal bureau of investigation to inquire into Judge Charles G. Briggle's charge that perjury was rampant in the recent mine bombing conspiracy trial.

In sentencing 36 defendants to four years imprisonment and $20,000 fines each yesterday, Judge Briggle sharply criticized officers of the counties where the bombings took place for their failure to enforce state laws. He urged prosecutors to determine which witnesses gave false testimony and to punish those found guilty.

EX-CLERK GIVES U. S. NEW CLEW IN SPY MYSTERY

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Ex-County Clerk Al Marinelli tonight put state department investigators on the trail of at least three New Yorkers, one who wields political influence, who induced him to approve three fraudulent passport applications which have been exposed in a soviet espionage mystery.

The Tammany leader named one of the men, who was questioned. This man in turn named the sponsors of Adolph Arnold Rubens and of "Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson," and these sponsors were ordered taken in custody.

The extent of the espionage intrigue may be swiftly determined as a result of Marinelli's information, state department investigators believe. But the most important aspect, the identity of the couple who posed as "Mr. and Mrs. Robinson" in Marinelli's office, may prove the most difficult to solve, they believe. This is because the Rubens have been tentatively identified as the Robinsons, now held as spies in Lubianka prison.

Coincidences Link Four.

State department officials announced in Washington today that passport photos of the two women have been dispatched to the embassy at Moscow. It was there on Dec. 2 that Mrs. Robinson and her husband disappeared from their hotel.

If this identification is established, state department investigators hope to solve the enigma of both Robinsons and the Rubens. Linked by a strange set of coincidences, including the fake passports obtained the same day at Marinelli's office, the Rubens couple sailed from New York Oct. 16, the day the Robinson couple left that city.

Rubens, said to be a communist leader, and his wife have been unreported since Nov. 3, when Mrs. Rubens' mother, Mrs. Frederick Boerger of Miami, Fla., received a letter from her daughter in Paris.

Two Identify Picture.

Additional news linking Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Rubens as the same person came today. A physician who treated Mrs. Rubens while she lived here and a lawyer's assistant who investigated an accident case in which she was involved identified the passport picture of Mrs. Robinson as that of Mrs. Rubens. This was disputed, however, by a brother and sister of Mrs. Rubens living in New York.

In obtaining his passport on April 3, 1936, from Marinelli's office, Rubens claimed citizenship through his father, whom he said was Christian Rudewitz, a naturalized American and former Russian revolutionary. Rubens said he had changed his name three years ago by court decree.

Rudewitz, however, was located in Gleason, Wis., a small farming community. His son, Adolph Charles, whom Rubens claimed to be, is living in Chicago. Both say they never have heard of Rubens and they could not recognize his passport photo.

At Gleason today Rudewitz said his naturalization papers disappeared more than four years ago. He last saw them, he said, when he registered at the polls in Chicago. He discovered they were gone after he had moved to Gleason. Investigaters suggested they may have come into possession of Rubens, who used them to obtain a legitimate family history.

Rescued from Fire

Firemen carrying man and woman down ladder during fire at Jersey City yesterday in which two died. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A heroic house boy, who gave his life to help others in danger, and a Negro maid perished today in a spectacular fire starting from a Christmas tree and damaging the city's largest hotel.

William Marx, 24 years old, the house boy, ran frantically from one room to another in the eight story Plaza. He pounded on door after door arousing guests before he fell in a hallway. Scores fled to safety, although several were painfully burned.

The maid, Mrs. Ida Thomas, 50 years old, was first noticed as she stood screaming at a seventh floor window from which smoke was pouring. Firemen prepared a net and called to her to jump. She teetered on the window ledge for a moment, then fell back into the room, where she was found suffocated.

Prefers Hell to Nazis, Retorts Bishop Manning

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, who recently was called a child of hell by the German newspaper Der Stuermer, today told the New York board of Jewish ministers he would rather be in hell with the Jews and Christians who are being persecuted than in heaven with those who persecute them. He spoke at the board's December meeting.

INDIANA GIRL, 12, HAS 10 LB. BABY; BOY OF 13 HELD

Law Forbids Marriage of Child Parents.

Linton, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Betty June Lacer, 12 years old, fondled her ten and a half pound baby here today and thought sadly of the child's father, Tommy Chapman, 13 years old, to whom an Indiana law said she could not be married.

The baby, who has been named Thomas Howard Chapman Lacer, was born yesterday, at about the time young Tommy was admitting to Judge Raymond J. Powell in Greene county Circuit court at Bloomfield that he is the father.

Betty June and Tommy are children of families that live within a few yards of each other. They were schoolmates from the first to the eighth grades. They often had expressed a hope that some day they would be married.

Marriage Plans Balked.

When Tommy learned Betty June was to become a mother he announced he would obtain a marriage license and marry her. After being told this was forbidden under Indiana law, he made plans to take Betty June to Kentucky or Tennessee, where he had heard through recent stories about child marriages that the ceremony might be performed.

Meanwhile Betty June's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lacer, appealed to Greene county authorities, and Tommy was taken before the Circuit court on a statutory charge. Judge Powell has taken the case under advisement.

Their Fathers Are Miners.

Betty June and Tommy appear to be average children of average parents. Their fathers are miners in the Linton coal fields and both have been friends for years.

Betty June is a skillful seamstress, and today she displayed several intricately sewed baby quilts and dresses which she had made herself.

Dr. M. N. Thayer, Linton obstetrician, said Betty June is the youngest mother he has ever attended, although he has assisted in several thousand births.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

TWO YEGGS, TWO BANDITS SLATED TO GET PAROLES

Crime Commission Calls Them "Vicious."

Two proficient safeblowers and two experienced robbers are among the 75 Cook county convicts who are slated for parole from the state penitentiary next month. The Chicago crime commission has described these men, William Gold, Hymie Lieberman, John Piech, and Fred Brissa, as hardened, vicious criminals.

The 75 convicts are on an "out list" of 139 who were given parole settings several years ago. In the normal course of events they will be allowed to leave prison after a hearing before the state board of pardons and paroles, provided their conduct in confinement has been satisfactory and job sponsors have been found for them.

523 Cases to Be Considered.

Altogether, there are 523 cases to be considered by the parole board next month. Seventy-one involve violations of paroles. Of the others, 168 are cases previously considered and continued, and 135 concern prisoners who have served their minimum sentences and are before the board for the first time. There are also applications for parole of ten men who were given definite sentences. The hearings are to begin next Monday.

Gold and Lieberman, according to crime commission records, were caught blowing a safe in the plant of the Star Cleaners and Dyers at 2415 North Western avenue on Nov. 1, 1930. They were members of a gang of five which Assistant State's Attorney Charles Bellows termed the worst burglar gang ever to be in Chicago. The gang used political influence, and Gold and Lieberman obtained sixteen continuances before being forced to trial.

The crime commission issued a special bulletin regarding this burglar gang and eventually, on Oct. 18, 1931, three of the defendants were convicted. Gold and Max Geisler went to prison shortly afterward, but Lieberman managed to stay out of jail for another year and it was not until Nov. 5, 1932, that he entered prison.

Seized for Pay Roll Robbery.

Piech, besides being involved in many other crimes, was arrested for robbing an express mesenger delivering a $6,840 pay roll to the St. Luke hospital in 1927. He was also one of a gang which attempted to escape from the Criminal court when brought to trial in January, 1928. He pleaded guilty after the escape was frustrated, and was sentenced to one year to life in prison.

Brissa was the confessed leader of a bandit gang. He was indicted for five robberies in 1929. Police recovered $125,000 in jewelry hidden by the gang.

Urges Against Paroles for Wanton Killers and Rapists

Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, declared yesterday that wanton killers and rapists should never be parcled from prison. He spoke at the closing session of the Illinois State's Attorneys association in the Morrison hotel. Robert E. Nash of Rockford, state's attorney of Winnebago county, was elected president of the association for the coming year.

Perseus, were: Faulding, Mrs. Gertrude Turner of the Dos Pueblos Rancho, Goleta, near Santa Barbara; her son, Robert, 8 years old; Mrs. Jack Morgan, formerly of the Congress hotel, Los Angeles: Miss Elsie Borden, Los Angeles; George Sperunk, Los Angeles, and Robert Horne, West Los Angeles.

The passenger list made no mention of a Jack Morgan. The navy flyer said he talked to a man by that name aboard the Aafje after landing on the stormy waters nearby to inquire about the trouble. It was Morgan also who first met him, the flyer said, when he went aboard and saw Faulding's bullet pierced body on deck.

Tex Holbert of the Fellows & Steward Boat works, disclosed that a Jack Morgan came to him on Friday prior to the date the Aafje sailed and asked to charter a boat.

"I suggested the Faulding yacht," Holbert said.

Friends of Faulding said the yacht carried only two days' provisions and had made no plans to visit Mexican waters.

The Perseus reported that the food and water supply aboard the yacht was exhausted three days ago. Since then, it was reported, those aboard had suffered miserably, having been on short rations prior to complete exhaustion of their supplies.

COURT RULES OUT FIVE MILLIONS IN 1935 CITY LEVIES

Taxpayers' Protests Are Upheld by Jarecki.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki ruled yesterday that $4,671,588 of the city's 36 million dollar 1935 pegged corporate levy was invalid. He also sustained objections by taxpayers to $654,126 of the $5,550,000 1935 pegged levies for the tuberculosis sanitarium, library, and judgment fund.

Although a total of $5,325,714 of the 1935 levies was thus held invalid, it was estimated that the actual loss in revenue to the city will be less than a third of this amount, as only those taxpayers who carried objections to the court will benefit from the ruling.

Calls Effect Not Serious.

The invalidating of these portions of the 1935 levies will not have a serious effect on city finances, Controler Robert B. Upham said after the tax hearing. All of the tax warrants issued against these levies have been retired with the exception of less than $3,700,000 held in the traction fund, he said, adding that collections of delinquent 1935 taxes should more than pay off the remaining warants.

In ruling out the $5,325,714 taxes for the four city funds Judge Jarecki based his decision on a finding of the Illinois Supreme court last October. The high court held then that the pegged levy law as it applied to 1934 taxes was illegal because the law was passed after the budget was adopted.

The 1935 city levies were originally passed in January of that year and the pegged levy law did not become effective until the following July. Therefore, Judge Jarecki held, the $1.29 corporate tax rate in effect at the beginning of the year was the legal rate. The 1936 corporate rate under the pegged levy totaled $1.76, including a supplementary levy adopted in August of 1935. Judge Jarecki sustained the $1.29 rate plus the supplemental levy of $5,070,286.

Asked to Pare City Budget.

City department heads were asked by the council's finance committee yesterday to make further reductions in proposed 1932 budget appropriations. Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee, said that if the department heads did not make the reductions the committee would.

The committee is attempting to reduce the tentative budget of $58,090,106 by at least $1,500,000 before it comes up for final action by the council on Jan. 10.

COVERED WAGON HALTS TRAFIC ON MILWAUKEE AVE.

Not since Milwaukee avenue was a plank road to the northwest, perhaps, has such an equipage as that of Jim Stewart been seen on it. Stewart, who is 47 years old, is on his way with his wife, Bertha, and their six children from Watrous, Saskatchewan, to St. Remi of Naperville, near Montreal, where he hopes to found a new home. Their old one burned late in the summer and before the Stewarts could get started the straits of Mackinac froze over, making the journey through the United States necessary. They have been on the road since Oct. 7 and hope to reach their destination by Feb. 7. The distance is 3,000 miles.

The first the Shakespeare avenue police knew of the Stewarts was when they heard Milwaukee avenue trafic was tied up. There they found a home built bunkhouse mounted on an automobile chassis, drawn by two big Clydesdale horses. Bringing up in the rear trod Nanny, the goat that supplies milk for the Stewart baby. The family spent the night on the grounds of the Shakespeare station, putting their horses in an unused stable.

Buddie, wire-haired terrier pet of the Andrew J. Walledoms, 2629 North Troy street, had to trot 160 miles to do it, but he spent Christmas with them this year. The dog was given to friends at Kansas, Ill., almost two years ago, but returned to the Wallendom house late Christmas eve and scratched at the front door until he was discovered, shaggy and dirty. He is 5 years old.

REFUSES TO DISMISS SUIT OVER SCHOOL PRINCIPALS' LIST

Judge Grover C. Niemeyer refused yesterday to dismiss the suit of Dr. Hiram B. Loomis, retired principal of the Hyde Park High school, and Russell B. Wise, a teacher at the Kelly High school, against the board of education.

The suit seeks to restrain the school board from making appointments from the principals' list, published last April after an examination, from continuing the employment of persons already appointed from the list, and from paying them salaries.

The board was given until Jan. 15 to decide whether to appeal directly to the Appellate court, or to answer the suit, and decide the merits of the case. The suit charges the examinations were part of a plan to regiment the school system.

YOUTH, 16, HELD AS HOSTAGE IN SWINDLE INQUIRY

Father Is Sought for Quiz in Stock Deals.

A youth of 16 years was being held as a hostage last night at the juvenile home while police and federal authorities sought his father for questioning in connection with a swindle in which investors in oil companies long defunct were to be the victims.

The youth, William Reagan, was seized Monday when the father, Thomas, 50 years old, eluded Warren avenue police who had been called by an intended victim who became suspicious.

Stockholder Lists Used.

The scheme, as reconstructed by investigators, was worked by use of stockholder lists. The investors received calls from a man who represented himself as an agent of an oil company in Texas. The stock they long had thought worthless, he said, had suddenly become valuable. In proof of this he tendered a certified check for $400 drawn on the Merchants' National bank of Fort Worth.

The stranger then explained that the only thing necessary to complete the transaction was payment by the stockholder of federal taxes due on the dividend check. Various amounts, from $15 to as high as $40, were asked.

Victim Grows Suspicious.

This was the speech made Monday to George Nurnberg, who operates a harness shop at 1941 Lake street. Since Nurnberg's original holdings were much less than the $400 tendered, he grew suspicious and asked the caller to return later. This was agreed and the stranger did return but sent the youth into the shop.

A police squad arrived at about the same time, but the elder man escaped and only the boy was arrested. When police reached the Reagan home at 6147 Ellis avenue, they were told that the family, which includes the wife and a daughter, had fled.

Approached Through Neighbor.

Yesterday, meanwhile, federal investigators questioned Mrs. C. A. Lucier, 3059 Washington boulevard, who had been approached through a neighbor. She holds 100 shares of stock in another Texas oil company, which she bought in 1928. The neighbor was unwilling to pay the tax money asked until Mrs. Lucier's return from a trip out of town.

Attempts were being made to trace other persons, whose names were found on memorandum cards in the Reagan home.

ROOSEVELT BILL REVEALS PLAN TO BOSS BUSINESS

Demands U. S. Licenses for Corporations.

eral welfare; that to a rapidly increasing and, in many industries, to a dominating extent, commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states is carried on through the instrumentality of corporations created by the several states which are without jurisdiction in the field in which such corporations principally operate; that it is the right and duty of the congress to control and regulate all corporations engaged in such commerce and that to effectuate the policy herein declared it is necessary and proper to provide a national licensing system."

Under the provisions of the bill a corporation would become subject to federal licensing if it procured supplies and equipment from another state, if it obtained capital from another state, if any of its officers resided in another state.

Argument for Licensing.

In further rationalization of federal licensing the bill states:

"That such corporations employ a substantial percentage of all labor employed in the production of manufactured goods commonly sold in interstate and foreign commerce; that the wages and salaries paid by such corporations for the production and distribution of such goods constitute a substantial and vital part of the purchasing power which makes interstate and foreign commerce possible; that a constantly increasing proportion of the national wealth has been falling under the control of a constantly decreasing number of corporations; and that such maldistribution of national wealth has prevented the expansion of public purchasing power for consumer's goods, has been a major cause of business depressions and has had a substantial and directly restrictive effect on interstate and foreign commerce.

"That the growth of such corporations and such concentration of wealth in corporate hands has effectively impaired the economic bargaining power of labor employed by such corporations.

Holds States Helpless.

"That many of the causes of such maladjustments of wealth have been and are national in their scope and effect and have been found to be beyond the practical or legal ability of the several states to control or eliminate effectively, and that such causes and effects can be effectively controled or eliminated only through congressional legislation.

"That for the purpose of executing and exercising the power granted to the congress of the United States in the commerce clause of the constitution of the United States, for the purpose of preventing the channels, facilities, and corporate instrumentalities of interstate commerce from being utilized to promote unfair or monopolistic methods of competition in or relating to such commerce and for the purpose of protecting, fostering, and increasing such commerce to the end that the capacity of the people to purchase commodities sold, exchanged, transported, or delivered in the course thereof may be increased with consequent reduction of unemployment and correction of maldistribution and concentration of economic wealth and power, it has become and is necessary to regulate the terms and conditions on which corporations may produce and distribute commodities for the purposes of interstate commerce."

Trade Commission of Nine.

To administer the licensing system the bill would increase the membership of the federal trade commission from the present five to nine. Of the new members one would represent employers, one employés, one consumers and the fourth would "act as commissioner of corporations."

The commission is directed to "develop a general program for the coordination, stabilization, and orderly development of the basic industries of the United States and for a more equitable distribution of the earnings of commerce, trade, and industry, to those employed therein and to the investor of capital therein, and for that purpose, under rules and regulations which it may prescribe, to summon within ninety days after the enactment of this act a national industrial conference in which employers, employés, the investing public, and the public generally may be represented. There shall be submitted to each session of the congress a full report of the recommendations of such conferences and of the activities of the commission in developing such program."

The commission would report to congress plans for eliminating "unfair trade and labor practices" in industries and would submit recommendations respecting legislation for federal incorporation of corporations.

If the commission finds "low wage scales, contrary to the public interest and to the policy of this act" in existence in an industry it may recommend to congress "a minimum wage for the lowest paid classes of unskilled labor."

All Must Have Licenses.

The bill provides that "it shall be unlawful for any corporation to engage directly or indirectly in commerce without first having obtained a license therefor from the commission. This provision shall extend to any person engaged in commerce if by virtue of any stock ownership, security ownership, advance, loan, trust or trusts, holding company or companies, or any other device or means, direct or indirect, he controls or attempts to control except by participating in a regularly called meeting of stockholders, any corporation engaged in commerce, and any corporation shall be deemed to be engaged in commerce if, for the purpose of controling or influencing the management of any corporation engaged in commerce, it owns stock or securities of such corporation, or if by means of any advance, loan, voting trust or trusts, holding company or companies, or any other device or means, direct or indirect, it exercises or attempts to exercise direction or control over a corporation engaged in commerce."

In order to get a license a corporation would be required to file with the commission extremely detailed information concerning all its affairs.

Licenses May Be Denied.

The commission is authorized to deny a license for failure to comply with this requirement or if the commission finds that the corporation "is an unlawful trust or combination in violation of the anti-trust laws" or that it is monopolizing or conspiring to monopolize any trade or commerce.

Every corporation is required to agree by vote of its directors that it engages in commerce "as provided in this act, the law of any state or the decision of any state authority to the contrary notwithstanding."

The bill would require corporations to pay women the same pay as men for equal work, to employ no children under 16, to accord employés the right of collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing. To facilitate collective bargaining the commission could exact all production data from the licensee.

May be Revoked.

"If any licensee," says the bill, "violates any effective condition of its license the commission, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, may revoke such license.

"The commission may reissue any revoked license upon presentation of satisfactory evidence of the willingness and capacity of the licensee applying for reissuance to comply with the conditions contained in such license, and upon the making of suitable restitution as determined by the commission by such licensee to parties adversely affected by the violation for which the license was revoked."

Appeals to the courts from the decisions of the commission are provided. All corporations licensed are required to make detailed answers to any interrogatories the commission may deem necessary. At any time the commission may investigate to determine whether a corporation is violating the terms of its license.

For the "protection of investors" it is provided that a corporation shall have its chief place of business in the state in which it is organized, that it shall not acquire stock in any other corporation except a subsidiary, that its stockholders shall have equal voting rights, that no bonus shall be paid an officer except by vote of the stockholders, that the surplus of a large corporation shall not exceed 50 per cent of the value of its capital stock.

FRENCH ARE KEENLY INTERESTED IN U. S., SAYS PARIS LIBRARIAN

Dorothy Reeder.

Miss Dorothy Reeder, director of the American library in Paris, whose job it is to interpret the United States to the French people, finds thousands of eager foreign pupils. France, she says, is keenly interested in American literature, arts, and, since the Leon Blum régime in France, has shown an increasing interest in American government.

Miss Reeder is in Chicago attending the American Library association meeting at the Palmer house. In an informal discussion there yesterday she explained that hundreds of French students come to the American library in its new quarters at 9 Rue de Téhéran to perfect their English pronunciation by conversation with staf members. Many others, she said, use the extensive reference service of the library. American novels most in demand there are those of Sinclair Lewis and Theodore Dreiser.

LEWIS RETREATS FROM C.I.O. GOAL BY OUSTING AIDS

15 Superorganizers Cut from Pay Roll.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—John L. Lewis, chieftain of the Committee for Industrial Organization, has begun retreating, following collapse of his plans for dictatorship over American labor.

It was learned today that Lewis has fired 15 super-organizers from his headquarters here. The discharges, it was said, affect the first high executives to be removed from the pay roll in a general retrenchment program ordered by Lewis. Many regional organizers have been cut off and headquarters closed in the last few weeks.

In separating 15 organizers from his pay roll here Lewis does not rid himself of 15 marshals but does lose generals. The 15 super-organizers rank below such men as Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, and Phil Murray, head of the steel workers organizing committee, who are among the marshals Lewis created in his campaign to assume leadership of American labor.

Acted as Trouble Shooters.

The super-organizers were sent into territories where organizers of the various C. I. O. unions were having difficulty. They also launched various new unions and passed the C. I. O. torch on to union organizers. A large share of their work was trouble shooting.

At the C. I. O. headquarters here it was admitted that 15 organizers had been dropped from the rolls. Information as to the total number of organizers employed at the Washington headquarters was withheld. The headquarters also refused to give their salaries.

The retrenchment is due to threatened financial collapse of the C. I. O. movement, which in turn is due to wholesale desertions and defections in C. I. O. ranks. The losses were due to internal dissention over communism, the revolt of public opinion against C. I. O. terrorism and tactics and the C. I. O. defeat in the strike against little steel.

Digs Into Miners' Coffers.

At the outset of the C. I. O. movement, Lewis dug into the coffers of his own union, the United Mine Workers of America, to contribute $500,000 to President Roosevelt's 1936 campaign. He also loaned $50,000 to the committee and $40,000 to the Pennsylvania Democratic committee.

With this contribution Lewis hoped to buy the support of President Roosevelt for the C. I. O. The President did come to the rescue of Lewis in the sitdown strike in the auto industry early in the year. By administration pressure Mr. Roosevelt forced General Motors to sign a contract with the C. I. O.

When Lewis called on Mr. Roosevelt again in the little steel strike, the President made his famous "plague on both your houses" statement. Lewis set up the cry that the President had betrayed labor and broke with the White House.

Large Sums Expended.

Lewis dug into the U. M. W. A.'s coffers again for $1,500,000 which he handed out in liberal lumps to organizers in the auto, steel, oil and other industries the C. I. O. invaded. In the auto industry alone at one time, the outlay was $250,000 a month.

Workers readily joined an organization that promised higher wages, better hours and improved working conditions, particularly when they were not called upon to pay dues. Lewis put off dues collections in the belief that he would shortly have all labor enlisted under his standard and could assess what he pleased.

The only figures Lewis ever gave on the strength of his organization were contained in a speech delivered in Washington last Sept. 3. In a denunciation of President Roosevelt and Democratic leaders as ingrates to labor, he claimed 3,718,000 members of 32 affiliated national and international unions and 507 directly affiliated local unions, which had 200,000 members.

Silent On Dues Paying.

Lewis never disclosed how many of these paid dues. It is generally conceded that the bulk of dues paying members were the 500,000 members of the U. M. W. A., some 200,000 clothing workers in C. I. O. affiliates and 200,000 to 300,000 workers in various other unions.

The small amount of dues was insufficie..t to meet the cost of organizing and carrying other unions and the U. M. W. A. coffers ran dry. The lack of funds forced Lewis to attempt to win a favorable peace with the American Federation of Labor in the hope that dues could be exacted from the 3,600,000 A. F. of L. members to carry on the C. I. O. movement.

Collapse of the peace movement forced the Lewis retreat, which began with the discharge of lesser cogs in the organization in the field. District organizers and union organizers were dropped and various field offices were closed. But the retrenchment did not hit the higher command until the discharge of the fifteen super-organizers.

Child Evangelist to Wed Salesman

Sister Bride, Too

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Uldine Maybelle Utley, child evangelist now grown older, shopped for a trousseau today preparatory to marrying a salesman. Miss Utley, now 25 years old, a veteran of eleven years' preaching, and her fiancé, Wilbur Eugene Langkop, 26, Jefferson City, Mo., plan to wed Friday morning in Manhattan's most famous marriage chapel, the Little Church Around the Corner.

Miss Utley said she would make a six months' preaching tour of the United States following the wedding, then fill a long term radio contract. She gave her address as Chicago when applying for the marriage license.

Later it was disclosed Miss Utley's sister Ovilla, 21 years old, a secretary, would be married here the same day but in a different church. She and Robert P. Long obtained a license and said they would be married at the old St. John Street Methodist church, 44 John street.

308 Is 308, Says Andrew; $15 Is $15, Says Judge

Andrew Harke, who lives at 308 Oakwood avenue, Highland Park, and who had quite a time when he tried to go to bed in a home at 308 Prairie avenue, Highwood, told all about it yesterday in the justice court of Clarence J. Shetzley at Highwood. It had been a large evening, he explained, and 308 is 308 no matter which town it's in. The justice of the peace remarked that by that sort of reasoning Mr. Harke could readily appreciate that $15 is $15—that being the amount of the fine he would have to pay.

UNIONS DIVIDED IN WISCONSIN BY U. S. LABOR ACT

A. F. of L. Group Opposes It; C. I. O. Backs Law.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Organized labor in Wisconsin now finds itself critical of and opposing the so-called Wagner labor relations act and the Wisconsin labor act, both of which it was describing a year ago as the new magna charta of labor.

The Wisconsin Federation of Labor, the old established forum of the labor movement in the state, charges the administration of the federal Wagner act as unfair and highly prejudicial to its rival, the C. I. O.

Avid for Political Power.

The C. I. O. is at odds with the state law. Through Max Geline, its general counsel, it says the state act, under the interpretation just given by Judge Alvin C. Reis of Dane county, will serve to foment strikes rather than eliminate them. Judge Reis held that employers were authorized under the law to sign closed shop agreements with minority unions or even with unions having no membership among employés.

William B. Rubin, adviser to labor organizations and formerly associated as counsel with the late Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, said the labor movement in Wisconsin is divided against itself because of false leadership avid for political power rather than for promoting the fundamentals of union strength.

Rubin charged that the Federation of Labor is controlled in Wisconsin by Socialist politicians, the C. I. O. by communists.

"The American Federation of Labor leaders worked for the enactment of the Wagner bill, and both the federation and the C. I. O. worked for the Wisconsin labor bill," Rubin said.

"They wanted the political power of the state to enforce their social and economic decrees. They took their case before a judge of their own liking, a stanch Progressive, and he handed down a decision which practically nullifies collective bargaining. Behold the irony of inevitable consequences!"

Padway Insists C. I. O. Is Favored.

Joseph A. Padway, general counsel for the State Federation of Labor charges the federal labor relations board with losing no opportunity in its decision to favor and promote the interests of the C. I. O. One member, Edwin Smith, Padway declares, definitly has committed himself in favor of the C. I. O. policies. The trial examiners employed by the federal board are young lawyers with radical opinions and without labor or social background, he says.

"As the board is constituted the act is not being fairly administered," Padway declares. "No matter how weighty and favorable testimony may be for the A. F. of L., if there is any testimony, however weak, for the C. I. O., the decision almost invariably favors the C. I. O.

"Trial examiners of the board are drawn from atmosphere impregnated with C. I. O. principles and opinions. One, who has been in Milwaukee often, is a son of one of the active board members of the Ladies' Garment Workers, a C. I. O. union."

Calls Ruling Unfair to Crafts.

Padway said the controling officers of the American Federation of Labor have agreed that the act is being administered unfairly to craft unions and at the last convention in Denver, he said, officials and delegates decided that, unless it is amended to make it mandatory to determine bargaining agents on craft lines when the craft unions ask it, they will ask for a repeal of the law.

The A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. are in a struggle in Wisconsin for power and membership. The federation approves the Reis decision on the law which the C. I. O. denounces. The C. I. O. approves and operates in close harmony with the federal board, which the federation criticizes.

A written agreement between heads of the federal and state boards for a weekly clearing house of cases within the state was disclosed here today. The purpose is to avoid jurisdictional disputes. The written agreement, effected in Washington, was received by Norman Moe, state regional director, and N. S. Clark, regional director of the national board.

MODERN LANGUAGE ASSOCIATION RAPS CURRICULA TRENDS

Trends in the curricula of secondary schools threaten the foundations of scholarship and must be vigorously opposed if modern languages and literature are to survive as studies, a committee on educational trends reported yesterday to the Modern Language Association of America.

The report was given at the association's annual meeting in Thorne hall of Northwestern university by Howard Mumford Jones of Harvard university. The committee recommended setting up a permanent commission to work toward influencing educational policies so that the so-called humanities would have their proper place in curricula.

THE PRICE OF PRIDE

By CALEB

MANY, many years ago in Mexico City the magnificently accoutered coaches of two lordly Spaniards approached each other in a narrow street. There was not room for two coaches to pass. Neither Spaniard had the will to back out for his neighbor.

Argument was followed by protestation, protestation by threat, threat by inactivity, inactivity by deadlock.

Sooner or later, the noblemen returned to their respective palaces —without their coaches. At last their coachmen were removed, and the horses unharnessed and returned to their stables. But in the narrow street the coaches remained.

The seasons came and went. The sunshine warmed the coaches by day. The crisp air of evening cooled them. The summer rains fell upon them.

Years passed and while the nobles aged, their empty coaches stood decaying—face to face. The little street no more heard the thunder of heavy wheels at the heels of fast horses. It was impassable, except for pedestrians.

Only after the two persons in this dilemma of pride were dead were the aged coaches hauled away, ignominiously creaking and complaining—and the street made once more passable for the vehicles of people who could be more considerate of one another.

With too little pride, men might as well be monkeys. But pride is never unselfish. And too much pride is a menace to others.

Pride uncurbed leads the wader into drowning. It fans the harmless fire into a ravaging consumer. When pride stiffens and asserts itself, common sense and humanity run away.

The pride of rulers has sent men to death in useless battles. The pride of individuals has forced many an issue better left unforced. Pride cannot be afforded without charity as governor by its side. Pride unbalanced by humanitarianism and a liberal view puffs up its possessor to unworldly proportions. Pride accompanied by common sense and perspective is a stimulus to constructive activity and to high standards of purpose.

This has been called a proud store. We are proud. We are proud of our founder and of our heritage, but we are kept humble by the visions of ideal service which are ever before us and against which we always seem, in our own sight, to fall short.

CHINESE BLASTS SHAKE TSINGTAO AS JAPS ADVANCE

Destroy Many Buildings to Prevent Capture.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 30 [Thursday].—(AP)—Tension gripped Tsingtao today as Chinese, apparently resigned to loss of the rich North China port, spread devastation to leave the Japanese nothing but ashes.

A series of explosions late last night rocked the city as Chinese soldiers blew up telegraph, cable, and radio offices, creating fear the Chinese "broken tile" policy might mean greater destruction before the expected Japanese entry.

The United States cruiser Marblehead and destroyer Pope moved closer to shore, ready to evacuate Americans quickly in case of sudden necessity. With the United States gunboat Sacramento already at sea bound for Shanghai with 45 American refugees, 172 Americans remained in Tsingtao.

Refugee Train to Leave Hankow.

Clarence Gauss, United States Consul General at Shanghai, notified Japanese authorities a flag marked train would leave Hankow in the interior later today bound for Canton. Aboard the international train American and other foreigners were to be evacuated from Hankow, Changsha, Kuling, and Kiukiang. Gauss requested safe conduct for the train along the route Japanese planes have bombed more than 100 times.

After losing most of northern China, the rich Yangtze valley, and most of her ports and wealthiest cities to Japan, China was bitterly contesting Japanese invasion of two of her richest provinces — Chekiang and Shantung. In Chekiang, south of Shanghai, Japanese columns occupied Linan and approached Lanchi, where Chinese troops were reported concentrated, on a drive south from Hangchow, the captured provincial capital.

A Japanese tabulation of casualties in the operations against Nanking said the Japanese army killed 84,000 Chinese soldiers. Japanese losses were given as 800 men killed and 4,000 wounded.

In Shanghai Americans and other foreigners were concerned over political and economic consequences of Japan's spreading authority.

Fear for Future of Trade.

Japanese military rule, subjecting foreigners to trial and punishment, already has been promulgated in the Japanese held Hongkew and Yangtzepoo districts with indications it would be applied wherever and as long as Japanese forces are in control in China.

Under existing treaties all foreigners, except Germans and Russians, are subject only to the laws of their own countries.

There was growing apprehension, too, over the future of American and other foreign firms in China and the nation's ability to pay her debt to the United States and other powers. Increased daily landing of mercantile cargoes from Japanese vessels without customs examinations or duty payments caused the concern.

China's internal and external indebtedness, guaranteed by customs revenues, has been estimated at $800,000,000. Of this amount foreign loans total $180,000,000 and Boxer indemnity payments $36,000,000. Major loan and indemnity holders—the United States, England, France, and Japan—thus far have received full payments, but payment of the next instalment, due Feb. 1, was considered questionable.

Insist on Uniform Treatment.

American and other foreign firms pointed out that Japanese cargoes were being landed without duty at Japanese controled Yangtzepoo, Hongkew, and Pootung docks, while their own consignments were subject to customs payments. This inequitable situation, they said, might soon make profitable business impossible.

American firms understood the position of the United States to be insistence on customs administration which would accord uniform and equal treatment of all nations in accordance with the open door policy.

Since Shanghai receipts are about 40 per cent of the total customs revenues, acute interest was attached to consular negotiations under way here to solve the question created by war disruptions and a Japanese threat to seize the customs administration despite interests of other powers.

TOKIO'S REPLY TO BRITISH PROTEST MAY BE REJECTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The Japanese government's reply to Great Britain's note protesting attacks on British ships in the Yangtze river reached the foreign office in London today and is being given close study by the prime minister and foreign secretary.

Whitehall is undecided whether to accept the reply as sufficient, it was said tonight. Although the note offered an apology for the attacks on the gunboats Ladybird and Bee and promised action against those responsible, it was understood to be vague about the prevention of future incidents.

The British government, it was disclosed, also is pressing the Japanese government to publish the reply in full in the Japanese press. The recent Japanese note to the United States apologizing for attacks on American ships, it was recalled, was trimmed carefully before it was published in Japan.

RECLUSE SLAIN BY STRANGLER IN ROCKFORD HOME

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Supposedly the victim of robbers, Martin Pearson, 83 years old, was found strangled to death tonight in his home where he lived alone. His body was under a bed, his hands and feet tied with clothesline, a man's sock knotted around his throat, and a towel tied over his mouth.

His son-in-law, John E. Malm, visited the house tonight, entering with a skeleton key when he found the doors locked and no one responded to his knocks. Unable to find Pearson, Malm went next door to inquire about him from a neighbor, Agnar Johnson. The two returned and found the body when they searched the house.

It had been said Pearson, a former furniture worker, kept large amounts of money in the house but it was not known whether cash or valuables were missing. A bank book among his effects showed he had $3,630 on deposit. It was believed he was slain last night.

Seized with Punch Boards, 5 Gamble for Their Fines

Maplewood, N. J., Dec. 29.—[Special.] — Five storekeepers, charged with allowing punch boards in their stores, gambled for their fines in police court today. Recorder Richard H. Thiele handed the defendants the confiscated boards and announced they would be fined a penny a punch, until a winner came out. The storekeepers worked on the board for more than half an hour, whereupon Recorder Thiele decided the task of counting was too arduous, so he reckoned the first man's total as 600 and fined each $6.

SHANTUNG PRIZE OF CONQUEST BY ALIENS IN 1898

Held by Germans, Then Seized by Japs.

As Japanese legions surge on through the rich North China province of Shantung, world interest again centers on this holy land of ancient China, the birthplace of the great prophet, Confucius.

The exaction of concessions in Shantung by foreign powers was one of the reasons which caused the United States senate to withhold ratification of the Versailles treaty after the world war. Shantung had undergone economic penetration since 1898 when Germany, France, and Russia were eagerly seeking spheres of interest.

In 1898 China granted Germany leased territory around Kiaochow, which is the port of Tsingtao, the right to develop Shantung's extensive coal and iron reserves, and construct railroad lines into the interior.

Tsingtao Made Modern City.

German commercial interests invested heavily, making Tsingtao a modern city, which grew to a population of nearly 400,000. Railroads were built toward the fertile alluvial plains of the hinterland.

At the outbreak of the world war, however, Japan, ever alert to acquire profitable territories, threw in her lot with the allies and declared war on Germany. After defeating a small garrison at Tsingtao, Japan on Aug. 15, 1914, seized all German interests and declared the Shantung leased area was her sphere of influence.

China protested this seizure of her territory, but with Europe involved in war, was without support, and a year later signed a treaty giving Japan extensive concessions. These the Japanese proceeded to develop, while extending the former German properties.

Americans Support Chinese.

At the Versailles peace conference, however, China recanted on the 1915 treaty, and demanded that Japan return her land. Obligated by secret covenants made in 1917, Britain and France supported Japan, whose claims were recognized by the delegates.

China and the United States, however, refused to approve. Subsequently the entire matter of lease rights was taken up at the Washington conference, where China won an almost complete victory, regaining territorial sovereignty.

The Japanese agreed to withdraw, but retained certain economic privileges, which still left them the dominant factor in the province. One of her major stakes in China was a $100,000,000 investment in cotton spinning mills at Tsingtao. Destruction of these by fire ten days ago set the Japanese armies moving again.

Occupied by Japs in 1928.

Nine years ago the Japanese military also occupied Tsingtao, when Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist divisions swept through the province on a march to Peking [later Peiping]. After being in possession for a year, the Japs withdrew, when Chiang's pressure on Tsinan, capital of the province, was eased.

When Germany obtained her Kiaochow lease in 1898, Great Britain obtained a similar one for the town of Weihaiwei, and the surrounding area. This gave the British fleet a northern China port, ostensibly for the further protection of British interest in the orient. In reality England considered it as a check to economic penetration by Germany and Japan.

In the 1922 Washington treaty, Britain agreed to the return of Weihaiwei, but did not give up possession until Oct. 1, 1930. By the treaty, however, England retains certain rights to store supplies, and for her fleet to use it as a summer calling station.

Comparison of warships already under construction or appropriated for shows the United States second only to Great Britain in this respect among the world's leading fleets.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)— In actual and planned strength the United States fleet stands second to that of Great Britain among the world's largest navies.

It outranks in turn those of Japan, France, Italy, and Germany.

Not only is Britain superior to all in total fighting tonnage afloat and in under-age craft, but its vast naval rearmament program will increase its substantial margin over the United States, as well, on the basis of present building plans here.

SEE MORE RAIN IN NORTHWEST FLOOD REGION

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Rising flood waters forced residents of scattered Pacific northwest communities from their homes today, while forecasts of more rain and warmer weather presaged added hazards from the year-end storm.

Northwest railroads, on whose lines four trainmen were killed in wrecks this week, reported schedules returning to normal, but slides and washouts still hampered travel. Highway trafic and wire communication disruptions kept maintenance men working day and night. There were frequent snowslides on mountain roads of northern Idaho and western Washington.

Higher temperatures melted deep snow in the highlands and sent several western Washington rivers out of their banks.

REBEL COLUMN BATTLES TO SAVE 6,000 IN TERUEL

'Holdouts' Besieged in 2 Strong Buildings.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Spanish rebel military dispatches today said a column under Gen. Miguel Aranda was storming government trenches around Teruel in a campaign to retake the provincial capital.

Within the city, still holding out after more than a week of fighting in hope of rescue, a beleaguered rebel garrison held grimly to two stout walled strongholds, the civil governor's palace and the Bank of Spain building. Three thousand soldiers and an equal number of civilians were believed within the two buildings. It was learned that 300 of them were sick or wounded.

The rebel column was reported closing in and attacking the flanks of the government forces who dug six parallel lines of trenches to defend the city. An advance guard executed the first rebel attacks to pave the way for a main assault in force. The troops were supported by thirty planes.

Clean Up Progressing.

Government advices meanwhile reported the clean up of Teruel was progressing and the ring of troops around the city was making secure the government conquest.

Government artillery just north of Teruel laid down heavy fire in an effort to halt the rebel counterattack. The government said rebel troops made several desperate attempts to break through lines but were thrown back.

Improved weather conditions in the upper Aragon today permitted a resumption of military activity all along that battle front.

After three weeks of inaction, government troops from Huesca southward to Teruel were busy strengthening their positions and repairing communications damaged by recent floods and snowstorms. Government artillery shelled Huesca yesterday.

Arrange Prisoner Exchange.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—An exchange agreement by which the lives of 400 condemned Spanish war prisoners would be saved was reported reached today between the Spanish rebels and the government. Great Britain, working with the International Red Cross, helped with the arrangement whereby 200 prisoners from each side would be exchanged soon. There was a possibility of obtaining the release of others later.

Orders Depositions Taken in Philo A. Orton Suits

Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday ordered that depositions be taken Jan. 6 from R. Bert Horner in the divorce case of Philo A. Orton, president of the Orton Crane and Shovel company, and his wife, Marie, who is 61 years old. Mrs. Orton asks separate maintenance on grounds of desertion. Orton asks divorce, alleging a Mr. "X" influenced his wife in acquiring bad habits. Horner's connection with the case was not disclosed.

WINDSORS WILL LEAVE RIVIERA FOR PARIS JAN. 3

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Dec. 29. — The duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, and his duchess will end their holiday visit to the Riviera on Jan. 3, when they will go to Paris. That was learned tonight.

Further than that, their plans are not known, but it is pointed out in several quarters that there is no special reason for Windsor to return to Paris, and that the Parisian winter is unattractive to an idle tourist. The conclusion drawn by these sources is that Windsor still has the idea of visiting America about the end of January and Paris is the most convenient starting point.

COUNCIL CALLS BACK ITS ACTION ON AIRPLANE FEE

Air Lines Hope to Settle for Higher Airport Rental

Instead of becoming a law yesterday the city council's secret ordinance which fixed license fees for all commercial airplanes regularly using Chicago airport was referred back to the airport committee for reconsideration. This action was taken after air line representatives protested to Mayor Kelly at Miami, Fla., where he is spending the holidays, against what they declared was an exorbitant increase in cost of their operations on the field.

The motion calling for reconsideration of the measure which was scheduled to become effective yesterday was passed without opposition when the aldermen learned that Mayor Kelly was in favor of reopening a discussion of the matter. The airport committee is to have a meeting again with representatives of all the seven air lines flying off Chicago field before the next council meeting now scheduled for Jan. 10.

Bargain for Repeal.

If all the air lines agree to a substantial increase in the rents which they pay the city for land on which their hangars are erected, aldermen said, the airplane licensing ordinance will be repealed. The city is demanding that the operators increase their rent payments from about $20,000 a year to slightly over $40,000, and this the air line negotiators have promised to do.

The objection the air line officials had made to the licensing ordinance was two-fold. First of all, it increased the fees which they must pay the city for use of the field to about $55,000. The licensing also would establish a dangerous precedent, they declared. All the operators fly into and out of airports at many cities. If each city charged licensing fees the lines would be forced out of business, they said.

Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] offered the only speech in favor of the ordinance as passed.

Calls for End to "Subsidy."

He said:

"The taxpayers are subsidizing the air lines and the airport to the tune of $100,000 a year. Our income has been only about $20,000 a year, and it's high time that the air lines should pay a larger proportion of the costs of maintenance and airport operation since they are the chief users.

"I want to say in reference to the charges that this was a secret ordinance that there was no attempt to hide the fact that it had been passed. As a matter of fact, the system of licensing schedules was first suggested by the air lines. All the council did was to increase the fees suggested by the air lines by 50 per cent. Then they came in saying that the licensing would create a terrible precedent."

Several officials of the air lines said last evening they were willing to agree to a 100 per cent increase in rentals, and if this is acceptable to the council the matter can be settled quickly.

GUS TALKS SELF INTO WARM SPOT FOR THE WINTER

Gus Lurman is a very bad man indeed with a toy pistol whittled out of wood. Or so he says. He talked Municipal Judge George B. Weiss into giving him winter shelter in the Bridewell yesterday, anyway.

The judge was a little suspicious and the police were very much so. It looked as if Lurman were merely trying to assure himself of a place to hibernate. The police said they had never heard of the fifteen stickups Lurman said he committed.

But Gus convinced the judge. He will have warmth and food for about three months as he works out his $200 fine.

Seek Agreement on Shanahan Will

2 CONTESTANTS TALK PEACE IN SHANAHAN SUIT

Confer for an Hour in Court Chambers.

For the first time since the start of their court contest for the $850,000 estate of David E. Shanahan, veteran Illinois legislator, his widow, the former Helen Troesch, and his cousin, Miss Mary Flynn, met in amicable conversation yesterday. Instead of exchanging chilling glances across a courtroom, they smiled and talked pleasantly for an hour alone together.

Their meeting occurred in the chambers of Judge Joseph Burke, who is trying to arrange an out of court settlement. The conference, Judge Burke said, will be resumed this morning.

Sue to Break Will.

Miss Flynn and her sister, Margaret, brought suit to invalidate their cousin's will and his marriage to Miss Troesch, his former secretary, thirteen days before his death on Oct. 18, 1936. The will, leaving her the entire estate, was executed on the day of his marriage.

A three weeks' trial of the suit, in which the sisters charged the will was a forgery, ended in a jury disagreement Nov. 9. Chief Justice Benjamin P. Epstein of the Circuit court yesterday assigned Judge Burke to preside at a new trial.

Objections to Accounting.

Earlier in the day Joseph Geary, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell, heard objections to the first accounting of Mrs. Shanahan as executor. Attorney William J. McGah, representing the Flynn sisters, objected to Mrs. Shanahan listing $104,627 for expenses.

He specifically objected to a $12,500 fee for her attorney, Irwin N. Walker; $5,000 for another attorney who represented her in the Probate court; $3,544 for court costs, and a $17,800 widow's award.

These should be considered her personal expenses, and not those of the estate, until the will contest is settled, Attorney McGah said. Geary continued the hearing until the Circuit court litigation is ended.

Return from South Carolina on Murder Charge Sought

A requisition went from Gov. Henry Horner yesterday to the governor of South Carolina for the extradition of J. C. Scott, known in Chicago as the Negro gypsy, who is wanted for the slaying of two gypsy women with an iron pipe Dec. 18. The two women are Mrs. Mary Eli, 42 years old, and her daughter, Catherine, 25, who were beaten and robbed of about $1,000.

Evanston Police Chief Gets Parking Ticket and Pays Up

Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston yesterday paid a $2 fine for a parking ticket given out Dec. 20 by Patrolman Jack Serbin while the chief's car was in a restricted zone. It had been left there by a garage employé. Said Chief Freeman plaintively, "I didn't think they'd ever try to toss me in my own jail."

25 DEFENDANTS OF 26 CONVICTED IN QUACK DRIVE

Judge Edmund K. Jarecki reported yesterday that during the last year twenty-five of the twenty-six defendants tried in the County court for violation of the medical practice act were convicted. In 1936, out of twelve tried, eleven were convicted.

Sentences ranged from ten to sixty days in jail. Fines from $100 to $130 were imposed in several cases. Two of those convicted were placed on probation. Another untried case was dismissed when the defendant was convicted on a similar charge in St. Louis, Mo.

Assistant State's Attorney Jacob Sheer directed the prosecution, which resulted from complaints filed by the state department of registration and education. The department drive on medical quacks started last August.

DAUGHTER FINDS ELDERLY COUPLE SHOT TO DEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pyne, an elderly couple, were found shot to death in their flat building at 1518 East 70th street late yesterday afternoon by a daughter who had become worried when Mrs. Pyne had failed to make her customary daily visit.

Mrs. Pyne was lying in the kitchen, shot in the head by a small bore shotgun. Mr. Pyne was found on a bed in an adjoining room, also shot in the head, the gun beside him.

They were found by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bartol of 1422 East 70th street. Bartol, their son-in-law, said the couple had lived there forty years. Pyne owned a small plumbing shop which occupied the first floor of the building. Pyne was 62, his wife 59.

FRANCE WORRIED AS TURKS BALK AT SYRIAN ELECTION

Alexandretta Issue Back in League's Lap.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 29.—A new colonial problem confronted Paris officials tonight with news from Geneva that the Turkish government has taken steps to interfere with arrangements for a February election in the sanjak [state] of Alexandretta, Syria. A neutral committee had planned the election.

Turkey filed a protest against the proposed election with the league of nations. It based its complaint on the fact that Turkey was not consulted about the neutral committee's report, which contained full plans for the poll. The Turkish government will not accept the result of the election, the league was told.

Result of Compromise.

Turkey's action especially riled France because the present status of the Alexandretta sanjak was the result of a compromise between the Turkish government and France. The French colonial office was convinced it had settled through the compromise one of its thorniest problems.

The French blamed Italian propaganda for Turkey's attitude, as they have previously for other troubles in their near east territories.

Sanjak Gets Home Rule.

[Last January the league of nations granted the sanjak of Alexandretta home rule of internal affairs, breaking off its tie to Syria. Turkey had demanded Alexandretta's release from Syria — now under French mandate—after France and Syria signed a treaty providing for independence in Syria after 1939. Turkey argued that Turks in Alexandretta should not be subjected to rule by Damascus politicians. The new Alexandretta régime was inaugurated Nov. 29. The planned election in February was to be the first under the new arrangement.]

The Alexandretta dispute between France and Turkey must be debated again before the league of nations council in the January session as a result of Turkey's action, it was said.

JEWISH DOCTORS RESTRICTED BY NEW NAZI EDICT

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Jewish physicians were deprived of an important source of revenue today when they were barred from private insurance company boards. The restriction was the latest Nazi effort to expel all Jews from German economic life.

Although Jewish doctors already had been ousted from state insurance company lists, those who fought in the world war or were registered as physicians before 1914 were still permitted to accept Aryan patients insured by private concerns. Pressure had been exerted, however, to encourage clients to go to Aryan physicians.

The new measure accompanied an order reducing by 10 per cent the quota of manufactured goods that Jewish factories and business concerns might purchase henceforth. Jewish circles feared the reduction would be increased gradually until Jewish concerns must shut their doors.

Quake Hits Central Peru; 100 Are Killed or Injured

PRINTING ERROR DELAYS BOOKIE LICENSES 4 DAYS

Due to an error in publishing the ordinance licensing betting brokers, Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes said yesterday the measure will not become effective until Jan. 10. It was to have gone into effect on Jan. 6.

An ordinance becomes effective ten days after it is published. A copy of the ordinance was published last Monday by City Clerk Peter J. Brady. Hodes ruled yesterday that only the original could be published, and instructed Brady to do this tomorrow.

Hodes also instructed an assistant, Martin H. Foss, to draft forms for applications and licenses. Applications will be filed with City Collector Louis Rixmann, and the licenses will be issued by Brady.

Accidental Death Verdict in Shooting of Boy, 12

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accident at the inquest over Edward Minarczyk, 12 years old, 1313 Huron street, who was fatally shot Sunday by William Pisano, 19 years old, 1301 Erie street. Pisano, who was showing off an automatic pistol when it was discharged, did not testify. The dead boy's brother John, 22 years old, testified that his brother told him the shooting was unintentional. Edward died Tuesday in St. Mary's hospital.

BRITISH TO ALTER PLAN FOR SPLIT UP OF PALESTINE

New Commission Will Try to End Conflict.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The British government's scheme to end the conflict between the Jews and Arabs by splitting Palestine into three parts will be modified substantially before any attempt is made to put it into operation, diplomatic sources in London said today.

A new British commission will leave for Palestine soon to study the situation and decide how far the partition plan should be toned down, it was announced. Instructions drawn up by the British government for guidance of the new commission will be published next week.

Oppose British Plan.

Both Jews and Arabs are opposed to the proposed partition, and since the details first were issued in the report of a royal commission on Palestine on July 7 the plans for the partition have been utilized to work up strong anti-British sentiment throughout the Arab world.

The original commission, which was headed by Lord Peel, advocated, as the only feasible solution of the Jewish-Arab conflict, that Palestine be cut up into three sections: The first a sovereign Jewish state, the second a sovereign Arab state, and the other under British mandate. The mandated area would include Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth and a corridor to the sea. The Arab state, roughly, would consist of the south two-thirds of Palestine and the Jewish state the north one-third. Great Britain's present mandate over Palestine, it was suggested, should be ended.

Radio War Delights Arabs.

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Prospects of a radio propaganda war between the Italians and the British delighted Arabs today, leading them to believe they would receive thousands of free radio sets from London and Rome.

The Italian government already has distributed free medium-wave sets among Arabs so they might pick up regular government broadcasts of news and propaganda to Palestine and the near east from Bari, in southern Italy.

British authorities were understood to be ready to flood the Holy Land with short-wave sets, which would not be able to get Bari, but could be tuned in on a British station at Daventry, England. The British Broadcasting corporation announced in London yesterday that Prince Seif-Al-Islamhusain, son of the king of Yemen, an Arabian state, would participate in the inauguration of daily news broadcasts in Arabic to Jerusalem and the near east on Jan. 3.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The stock market is having a fresh spell of weakness and prices on the average are now approximately at the low point reached in the selling wave which culminated on Nov. 24. The present level represents an average decline of 40 per cent from the high point of the year. What has taken place will be better understood if it be noted that approximately two-thirds of the advance since the banking moratorium, as measured by the average of fifty leading stocks, has now been canceled. Yesterday's prices were the lowest for Dec. 29 in any year since 1932.

The latest downward plunge of prices started with the adjournment of the special session of congress. The closing of some previous sessions has been followed by the initiation of an upward trend in prices. But when that has been the sequence it was because adjournment meant that there was to be a breathing spell for business, without fresh enactments of ill-considered and punitive legislation to contend with.

The important issue before congress, as it met on Nov. 15, was the enactment of legislation to repeal taxes which had produced a panic. When the congressmen went home, without taking action, the country was informed that the only agency able to grant relief had denied it.

The drop of nearly 50 per cent in the price of stocks means that the capital purchasing power of a large part of the population is but little more than half of what it was a few months ago. The continuation of the decline reflects the effort of ten million thrifty and industrious American citizens to preserve as much as possible of their savings. Such a shrinkage of capital purchasing power as recorded in stocks must have affected in similar degree other property, the value of which is not being established daily. The losses run to many billions. The collapse of values in the closing months of 1937 is undoubtedly one of the greatest calamities.

STATISTICS OF PAROLE.

In the campaign to defeat the Loesch parole reform measures much was made of the assertion that 85 per cent of parolees make good. This estimate was adopted by Gov. Horner in his veto message and in his campaign. As readers of James Doherty's article in last Sunday's TRIBUNE learned, this estimate was the result of a faulty use of statistics and we now have agreement even among the leading opponents of the Loesch bill that the department method of calculation is wrong and that a much less favorable condition exists. Prof. Burgess now says that by a rough calculation 51.9 per cent apparently made good. Col. Chamberlin says he never believed 85 per cent made good, though we do not recall that he challenged that figure when it was being used to belittle the reform measures. His estimate is now at least 45 per cent.

Representative Schnackenberg, who fought for these measures and is a leader in the effort to correct the scandalous condition of parole in Illinois, deserves public thanks for his prompt and persistent challenge of the 85 per cent estimate and for all his gallant fight for parole reform.

And we would suggest that if approximately 50 per cent of parolees are caught in violations a good many escape detection and the proportion who actually go back to crime is not 15 per cent but substantially more than 50 per cent.

THE HOG ON THE LINE.

The Chicago police and the traffic courts are entitled to the highest commendation for their efforts to check reckless driving and reduce the number of drunken motorists on our streets. Almost all of us are prone to insist that these potential murderers should be apprehended, but fail to realize the difficulties of the police, who cannot be everywhere and cannot even guess the muddled condition of the motorist until he does something criminal.

Close observation over a long period will convince any critic that one of the greatest hazards on our streets is the driver who hogs the middle of the road. Other operators who wish to drive safely and legally are compelled to pass the roadhog on the right or to cross the center line—a prolific cause of accidents. These remarks are not made without the realization that it is extremely difficult for the police to deal with these individuals—more so than those whose acts are clearly criminal. A patrolman cannot tell whether the center line driver is a roadhog or just plain dumb—one who has never learned or reasoned that his mode of operating his car is both offensive and dangerous.

A study of conditions has brought the conviction that when the center road driver has been suppressed our mortality rate will show an appreciable decrease.

WILL IT HAPPEN AGAIN?

The latest invention of J. Walter Christie, who built tanks for the United States army during the world war, has been tested in New Jersey with satisfactory results, it is reported. It is described as a six-ton juggernaut capable of 51 miles per hour. It is interesting to note that it is destined for the British army, but several notes.

American officers were present at the test, it is to be hoped with open minds.

Veterans of the A. E. F. and other Americans who know something of the history of our ordnance in the great conflict have not forgotten that our infantry had to use the very inferior Chauchat, or "cho-cho," machine gun because ordnance department jealousy had prevented the adoption and manufacture of the Lewis gun, an American invention which the British adopted and used with great effect.

The bourbonism of the American ordnance direction of that period cost many lives of American soldiers and we hope it has been broken up in the present department. There has never been a time in history when inventiveness was so important as it is now in this age of mechanized warfare. Burocratic false pride and prejudice are luxuries which have cost fighting man heavily in blood and defeat. In a nation distinguished for its mechanical production and its progressiveness the soldiers of the nation have a right to the best of equipment.

FREEDOM OF THOUGHT.

The annual convention of America's foremost learned society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, now in session at Indianapolis, bids fair, as Philip Kinsley notes, to be the most momentous in the history of that great organization, a history of more than a century. The reason for its special importance is that it introduces for the first time a systematic effort to cover the main outline of the effects of science upon human beings, both as individuals and as human beings, and to consider steps for the defense of its freedom. It is an answer to the questioning, frequently heard in our troubled times, of the influence of science upon human happiness. In this questioning is a challenge to science to make clear its service and its right to freedom for further accomplishment.

Thus freedom of thought, essential, as all free peoples believe, to human progress and to the pursuit of happiness, is recognized by the most eminent of American men of science to be threatened by forces now formidable in the affairs of mankind.

The loss of liberty of thought under the great dictatorships in Europe has inevitably accompanied the regimentation of all other activities of their subjects. There is no liberty left in the great institutions of learning and research of soviet Russia or Fascist Italy or Nazi Germany. Many of their greatest men are in exile. Those that remain are in intellectual and moral bondage. The supreme executive suffers no other will than his own. He does not and cannot tolerate a free mind even in an enslaved body.

That our scientists, who in normal times seem to us removed from practical affairs, from the market place and the political arena, should be concerned for the freedom of science is both natural and disquieting. We are prone to think of the reaction which has swept great nations in the old world in terms of political and economic enslavement. But it has no such limits. Nor has it any geographical limits. The forces and motives which have overthrown freedom of body and mind are common to mankind, and when a nation begins to yield the liberty of the one it will not be long in losing the other. Already we see in our own public affairs the strong drift toward the mirage of the all-powerful, all-beneficent state, the unrestrained ruler, the government not of laws but of men. The figure of another Stalin, another Hitler or Mussolini can be seen by those who are not blinded by the plausible fallacies which always hide the realities of tyranny. The eminent men whose lives are devoted to the pursuit of truth may well be concerned with the drift of human events not only where it is already tragically fulfilled among the ruined liberties of great peoples but where it shows its beginnings at home.

SHOESTRING CREDITS.

In effect, the housing bill provides a government guarantee of principal and interest on shoestring mortgages. The down payment by the owner need be no larger than 10 per cent and, of course, even that small equity can be pared by a friendly appraisal of the value of the lot.

But even on the assumption that the equity will always be as large as 10 per cent, the scheme is seriously defective. The shoestring buyer is a poor credit risk. Men who take their debts seriously do not borrow 90 per cent of the cost of a house even if there are lenders foolish enough to advance it. When a man can put only 10 per cent in cash on the line, he knows, or ought to know, that the deal is too large for him to swing. It imposes too heavy a charge upon future income. Men possessed of a modicum of business sense will shy from such a proposal.

A sensible man of modest means who wants to own his home will not build a new one on a shoestring equity but will look around for a house already built, one which has depreciated sufficiently in price to permit him to pay a substantial part of the cost at once. In this way his investment will be protected at both ends. If for some unforeseen reason he is unable to keep up his payments, the sale of the house, even at a loss, may restore at least a part of the equity; and, in any event, the weight of the instalment payments will not be so heavy as to make a default likely.

That kind of buyer does not need government help in financing his purchase. There are many agencies, including mortgage bankers, savings banks, and building and loan societies, which will lend him what he needs on favorable terms.

Editorial of the Day

[Detroit News.]

There is too much food in Michigan. Of course that is not saying that every one in Michigan has an abundance. But Michigan potatoes are good food. The associations of potato growers proclaim that proudly. And now it is agreed—by some farmers and federal officials—that there are too many potatoes.

So, just like the 6,000,000 little pigs that got in the way of progress a few years ago, the potatoes have to be sacrificed. An official of the United States government has made agreements with 8,000 Michigan farmers. The farmers are to destroy or in some other way get rid of 709,854 bushels of good merchantable potatoes. The potatoes must not go to market. And the government is going to spend about $107,000 to ease the consciences of the farmers who waste the food.

Farm organizations often express their disapproval of unscrupulous business interests that form combinations in restraint of trade for the purpose of keeping up prices. And the government just recently has been studying the ways of business concerns with a view to bringing into court those who make such agreements.

But, anyway, people who have been depending on Michigan's fine potato crop to keep down the cost of living this winter will need to revise budget estimates.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

MAUDE BENNOT, new head of the Adler planetarium, is the only woman in the world in charge of a major astronomical institution. Worked her way through college, too. . . . Affairs of the air line pilots keep the airmen's chief, Dave Behncke, too busy for much flying of his own. . . . So many Chicagoans insist they were college classmates of Novelist James T. Farrell. . . . Fellows who say they're just like that with Hemingway look sheepish when you ask them whether he spells it with one or two M's.

THE TELEPHONE situation's getting rather tense between two once friendly corporation presidents. They've both forbidden their secretaries to call them when the other telephones until the other fellow's actually on the wire. And so when Mr. A's secretary says Mr. A's calling, Mr. B's secretary demands that Mr. A speak up to prove he's ready. Mr. A, of course, refuses to until he's assured Mr. B's on the wire and not going to delay him. And Mr. B won't be first to give in. In the last few days, their secretaries say, Mr. A and Mr. B just haven't been able to get together.

SOME OF THE Christmas tree dealers are burning the trees they have left. But Elsie Schuenemann, daughter of Chicago's original Christmas tree man, says she and her dad always found better things to do with theirs. They'd strip the needles off and make pillows to give their friends. Very good for colds and headaches, the pine odor, she says. Neighbors usually found a use for the tree trunks. Elsie's father was Capt. Herman Schuenemann, who went down with a boatload of trees on the lake in 1912.

PRESENT TENSE.

Darling, if then what we sing
Exultantly, should prove to ring
A little false a year from now,

Dearest, if this joy we feel,
An hour to come should be less real,
A little dull, a year from now,

At least the present's silvery bright.
At least we mean it all tonight.

Agnes Marie Griffin.

FOR WAYS THAT ARE DARK and tricks that are vain, the Chinese restaurants. From the very same combination of vegetables and a little meat they can make two dozen of the dishes on their menu. . . . Chicago's gypsy girls marry at 14, if their dads get a proposal. The bride and bridegroom have nothing to do with the plans, which are all in the hands of their parents. Gypsy women with shawls are the married ones. . . . The telephone company's Franklin street building, downtown, is only 18 stories, although it's the height of a 20 story building. Reason: The company had it built to house equipment that required extra height. . . . The fellows who demonstrate the Pullmans in the stations are regular porters who still work on the trains when they're not explaining.

ANOTHER DAY.

Leisurely gentlemen who like philosophy with their cigar still mourn the passing of the old time tobacconist's shop and look forward hopefully to a day when it will return. It was the lounge they particularly enjoyed; upon its soft benches they settled world affairs and pondered the merits of tobacco. Last of the old guard to give up its lounge that it might better serve a hurrying world was Henry Ackerberg's, on West Madison street near the elevated tracks. There Biff Hall, a newspaper columnist of the eighties, made his headquarters and helped organize the 40 Club, whose members still meet occasionally to dine and talk over old times.

IF IT'S A LONELY LIFE, working at the cribs from which Chicago gets its water, it isn't exactly an uneventful one. The lake may freeze at any time, so that the boat which takes the food out can't get there, and the men who've been on duty a week can't get back for their week's shore leave. They may even have to go hungry. There have been times when the ice was frozen so hard one of the crib crew would walk ashore for supplies. That's rather hazardous, though, as there's always the danger of a section of thin ice. Each crib has a cook, who turns out tasty dishes, fancy ones, indeed, on Sundays and holidays.

OLD SARGE REMEMBERS.

The passing of Newton D. Baker recalls his visit to the A. E. F. university at Beaune, Cote d'Or, France, established to keep several thousand soldiers busy until time to get them home. Mr. Baker, then Secretary of War, explained what was being done, and the obstacles in the way of return, and asked if there were any questions. "Yeah. When do we go home?" a deep voice boomed. Mr. Baker took it smiling, so broadly the crowd cheered. Reminded of it years afterward, he remembered.

FALSE LAUGHTER.

Far corners when I feel the need to cry.
You do not know that when I laugh most loud
It is so you will never hear me sigh.

Imogene.

THE TOMATO AND SARDINE sandwich and the pot of hot chocolate sauce arrived, as J. H. T. tells it, just as the lady from Lincoln looked up. She saw the plump blonde woman at the next table in the State street restaurant pour the sauce over the sandwich and eat it with relish. . . . Worcestershire sauce fans are always finding new combinations they can make with it. New one: the sauce and chili con carne. . . . Salt on grapefruit and sugar in milk toast still have their following at Henrici's.

OVERDRAFTS ON THE BANK OF HEALTH.

WHAT man or woman can hope for a friendly, optimistic outlook upon life if he or she is afflicted constantly with a sour stomach? The dawn of a new day appears rosy or gloomy as the mouth tastes good or bad. In other words, thoughts and actions are predicated upon a type of health which guarantees the ability to reason. Many a state decision of far-reaching significance has been born of petulant rebellion against a bad digestion.

Well-being is ours by right, if we are descended from clean living parents. But once possessed of the jewel it may be crushed or thrown away or its luster become dimmed. It is a precious heritage—one not to be lightly cast aside or exchanged for so-called gems with more sparkle. No, it is really the only fundamental need of man; for with it—as an open sesame—he can win the world.

But our goal must be a clear brain in a sound body and it behooves us always to watch the thermometer of our emotions so that moods shall not drive the mercury into the bulb or frothy elations snap the fragile tube. This demands time for reflection, leisure for self-communing. The brilliant mentality that is obliged to make kangaroo leaps from this to that with no letup will fall exhausted—burned out. Meditation for the mind, and rest for muscles and nerves—proportionate to their use—will preserve sanity and body functions.

No matter how hard we may strive for happiness it will prove elusive unless we have learned the proper sequence and adjustment of work, nutrition, and sleep. No man can or should be happy without labor. Then comes exercise that calls for play and recreation—all made possible by a proper alignment of food factors. Sleep—the rebuilder—prepares the system for the day to come, which is met with zest and a buoyant spirit, if all these factors are in harmonious accord.

I wish it were possible to abjure the chasing of rainbows—cure-alls. There is no pot of gold at the end of one—no cavern filled with diamonds in the domain of the other. Mankind wastes more energy, more nerve power, in the pursuit of fantoms than in the building of the solid foundations of happiness. There is no all-embracing remedy for every disease of the body; neither is there a panacea for every malady which afflicts society. "Sure-fire" medicines are manufactured ingely for the gullible.

No life ever was saved by a horde of physicians—gathered together or visited one after the other. On the contrary, every family should select carefully a medical adviser who can be trusted, who is well trained, and who takes an interest in his people, quite apart from the lure of a fee. Do this despite the fact that every member of the household is well. Questions will arise sooner or later which he can settle best. Invite him in once a year as a precaution against wear and tear.

One thing I am sure he will stress—that is, the forswearing of apprehension. No one is stalwart enough to keep going over and over the mistakes of yesterday, adding them to the burdens of today and loading up with the worries of tomorrow. The rattling crash of nervous constitutions resounds every day in every land because some of us have not acquired a rule of life which permits us to conserve our energies. We waste and destroy with the hand of a profligate when health is at stake. Then, when it is too late, we offer all our substance as a sacrifice in order to regain it.

We boast—foolishly—of our readily available educational advantages. Schools can teach neither wisdom nor judgment. We have it, or we don't. It may be necessary for us to go through a rebirth of our processes of thought ere we will appreciate the dependence of brain upon brawn.

If each is to do his part for the safety of the nation, we must give more attention to our bodies and their welfare. Ease and comfort are enervating. Perhaps we ought to struggle more.

ERRONEOUS BUSINESS DEBT.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have learned that by mistake a charge was made to me on the books of a party I have been doing business with for many years. Mistake dates back ten or more years. Never received a statement nor have been asked to pay. Do not know of any correction having been made.

1. In case of my passing away could the amount charged to me be collected from my estate?
2. If the party whose books contain the mistake passed away could the amount be collected from me in settling his estate?
3. Would it be outlawed while one is still doing business there, of which they keep an account, though I do not owe them anything and never did?
4. According to law, would they be obliged to give me an itemized statement if it were asked? I do not even know the amount charged.
5. According to law would I have a right to have a competent person examine their books, or [6] how can it be settled when they do nothing? H. A.

1. Of course, they could file a claim, but they would not under the Illinois evidence act be permitted to testify in their own behalf. The result would depend on what other testimony was available.
2. Depends on the testimony.
3. In general, the statute of limitations does not run while payments are being kept up on a debt. It seems possible that the creditor might claim that you were making such payments.
4. The court would not physically compel them to give such a statement, if that is what you mean to ask, but if you demanded the statement, and they refused to give, or gave a statement omitting these charges, this would improve your chances of defending.
5. Not until they made some claim such as to raise a legal issue.

HONKING.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—For the past week my daughter, aged 9, has been confined to bed with influenza and a heart disturbance, and due to the honking of automobile horns has not had one night of complete rest. The typical honker stops in front of any house and keeps blowing the horn continually until his or her friend comes tripping gayly, not to say loudly, from wherever they happen to be.

We have lived in several different sections of Chicago and find that this noise is not confined to any particular neighborhood, but is everywhere. Needless to say, it is nerve-wracking, but it is also extremely cruel and inconsiderate. As this is being written a car just two doors away is honking for dear life.

The writer would like to see THE TRIBUNE support vigorously a movement to end this evil for all time. F. B. M.

MORE ABOUT PICKWICK DAM.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 26.—A few comments on the letter of Mr. W. F. Hodgson concerning Pickwick dam, appearing in THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 26.

Mr. Hodgson states that there is no town of 7,000 within fifty miles of the site. Corinth, Miss., twenty miles from the dam, has 6,200; Jackson, Tenn., fifty miles distant, has 23,000; the combined community of Florence, Sheffield, and Tuscumbia, Ala., the site of Wilson dam, has a population of about 22,000.

According to a map printed in 1936, there are over 100 miles of paved roads within a twenty-five mile radius of the dam. Mr. Hodgson stated there were no paved roads last year.

He comments further that although the dam is built for flood control and navigation purposes, the land in that part of Tennessee is not worth protecting, and that no one would concern himself with navigation until the population is increased. The lands in this section are valuable for farming and are not subject to flood waters to any great extent. But controling the Tennessee river during flood times will have a large effect on the flood stages of the lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The main purpose of the dam is to furnish cheap power to this section and to larger industrial areas, such as Memphis, which is to receive its power from this dam. This is being done to draw population to this section.

This letter is not written just for argument's sake, but if Mr. Hodgson is going to correct Mr. Foust's story of Shiloh park, let him first be sure of the information he submits. Northern people are too much inclined to represent the midsouth as a wilderness. The midsouth is just as wide awake and civilized as the north. Of course, we have our own problems to solve, such as the share cropper, but I have never seen a share cropper yet who was not as well off as many people in the tenements and slums of Chicago and the coal mining regions of southern Illinois. I know, for I am a northerner myself, and have lived a good part of my life on Chicago's south side.

YANKEE.

A BLOCKADE OF JAPAN.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—As usual, Great Britain expects other nations to pull her political and economic chestnuts out of the fires. Her Chinese interests are far greater than those of the United States.

A logical and perhaps bloodless manner in which this oriental debaucher can be shortly terminated could be by concerted action of Great Britain and the United States commensurate with their respective interests in the orient; e. g., after an equitable ratio is determined, the United States to match ship for ship and man for man with the British, blockade the Japanese coast completely and escort every vessel bound to or from the Japanese islands into a neutral harbor, and, firing no guns unless the Japanese start, pursue this policy relentlessly until Japan removes all of her troops from China.

This blockade would be very effective from two standpoints. [1] Japan is dependent upon the outside world for most of her foodstuffs. [2] Without Japanese importation of war supplies and war raw materials she would have practically nothing to fight with.

Let it be known to the British empire that we will not act beyond her predetermined agreed coöperation. Upon the first false move of Great Britain, we wash our hands of the entire affair—we leave her alone in the orient and everywhere else.

I believe that this type of action now might avoid serious warfare later, in which our United States might be involved directly when Japan "feels her oats." Perhaps Italian Gen. Badoglio's memoirs will be heeded in the present Japanese warfare. ALVIN L. BEAR.

THE PRICE OF INTERVENTION.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Your correspondent, Ernest Bradshaw, evidently is very anxious to have the American navy smash the Japanese outlaw gangs. It may appear to Mr. Bradshaw as an easy problem to accomplish, but unfortunately it is not. Should America engage in war with Japan the consequences would be that thousands of human lives would be lost and billions of American dollars would be squandered. The financial and commercial interests of the United States in China would never justify a Japanese-American war. My sympathy lies with China in the present conflagration, but not my life! PETER C. LATSIS.

THE HANDWRITING OF THE YOUNG.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 24.—While wintering here I get considerable correspondence from my dear family. I am sorry to say the worst writing is done by my grandchildren of whom two are graduates from college, one has been graduated from high school and two are still in high school. Could your paper, which always tries to correct mistakes, do something about this shameful condition to call the educators' attention to this state of affairs? GRANDMA.

QUESTION.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Would some kind reader please tell me from what part of the old country I should say that I came so that an application for work would be accepted sooner, if at all?

ED BARNEY.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

THE year 1937 approaches its end, and we clean out the desk preparatory to moving over two columns further west on this page. First to be thrown out, the title of this column, "Front Views and Profiles." Take a last look at it yourself, June. You're going to write under "A Line o' Type or Two" beginning tomorrow, and heaven grant the quips will fall plentifully where they may. Hew to the Line, Scouts, Bulletineers, Letter Writers, and Volunteer Stooges. New address, Care Line o' Type or Two.

FOOTNOTE to the story of the meanest man who went out on the back porch, fired his gun into the air, and told his children he had shot Santa Claus. A stroll past the front window at 1511 Astor street shows Santa Claus has been stuffed, for there he sits.

* *

CHRISTMAS in Paris. Americans in Paris danced the Big Apple on Christmas day to American radio music at a dinner given for several hundred Americans, at which ten blazing plum puddings were served. Friends in Chicago and Lake Forest heard Sylvia Peters in a Christmas broadcast at the party. Miss Peters was asked during the broadcast if she were able to order ham and eggs in French, and Miss Peters replied that could she find a restaurant that served ham and eggs she could manage the ordering all right. Expatriates at Christmas from the Pacific coast, Porto Rico, Buffalo, and other cities were heard on the broadcast.

* *

BACHELOR dinner innovation. The young men in the evening clothes who filled a whole row at "Tovarich" the other evening were bridegroom-to-be and his guests at his bachelor dinner, who dined and went to the theater instead of spending the evening in riotous celebration.

* *

DAPHINE BANKS, daughter of Leslie Banks, who was at the Ambassador with her father during the run of "Wine of Choice," told of seeing an ice hocky game in London at which there suddenly was a fight among the players. A little boy sitting beside her watched the tangle of men and inquired, "Why are those men sharpening their skates on one another?"

* *

CITY child tale. A group of children of nursery school age in New York were taken out to see a model farm. On the way home the teacher heard two of them discussing what they had seen.

"RESPONSE THAT IS UNPRECEDENTED"

December 28, 1937.

Mr. D.F. Mc Mahon,
Retail Advertising Manager,
Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Mc Mahon:-

On Sunday, December 26th, we ran a full page ad in the Tribune which gave us a response that is unprecedented in all our merchandising history.

We advertised a sale of women's dresses at $1.00 - an event which was planned and merchandised weeks in advance to be held after Christmas. For this event we assembled 50,000 dresses.

The pictures tell the story. Before the end of the day we were completely sold out in our State Street store as well as in every one of our nine other stores in Metropolitan Chicago.

We expected great crowds because of our past experience with our fifteen consecutive famous Volume Drug Sales, which we featured in the Tribune with full pages and with color pages. But this Dress Sale topped everything -- even the sensational response we get on our Volume Drug Sales.

All this explains why we give the Tribune such a sizable proportion of our advertising expenditure, and why you have received such a large gain from us.

Very truly yours,
GOLDBLATT BROS. INC.

THE letter and photo reproduced above tell the story of the throngs which crowded the ten metropolitan Chicago department stores of Goldblatt Bros., Inc., on Monday, December 27, to buy the 50,000 women's and misses' dresses advertised at $1.00 the day before in a full-page advertisment in the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Goldblatt Bros., Inc., had expected great crowds because of repeated success with Tribune advertising—particularly fifteen consecutive Volume Drug Sales, promoted with full pages and color pages in the Chicago Tribune.

But response to this dress offering was unprecedented.

"All this explains," writes Edward Simon, vice president of Goldblatt Bros., Inc., "why we give the Tribune such a sizable proportion of our advertising expenditure, and why you have received such a large gain from us."

Goldblatt's increased their use of Tribune space during the first eleven months of 1937 by 344,074 lines—or 112.8%. Their total advertising in the Tribune amounted to 649,014 lines.

This great department store company is using more Tribune advertising because the Tribune sells more merchandise quickly and at low cost. Every day of the week the Tribune delivers an assured, constant audience comprising the majority of the families in metropolitan Chicago.

With more than 670,000 circulation in Chicago and suburbs alone, the Tribune is read by people in every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago. Its aggressive editorial policies, comprehensive news reports and many service departments and features appeal to people in every walk of life.

The Tribune provides Chicago's largest audience and the most favorable setting for the advertising of manufacturers and retailers alike. Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in the entire field of advertising.

UNIVERSE DEFIES MAN'S EFFORTS AT OMNISCIENCE

Many of Her Secrets Still Veiled in Mystery.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—In this fluid, evolving, space-time universe all the rules have not yet been discovered. Perhaps they have not all been made.

This latter suggestion came from Dr. Ralph S. Lillie, a professor of biology at the University of Chicago, who spoke today at the zoölogists' section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The vital factors assembled and unified to form the living plant and animal, including man, are not to be identified completely with purely physical factors, he said, although they are dependent for effective operation on physical modes of action.

Outcome of Evolution.

No merely physical conception of life is sufficient, he declared, although he did not wander off into the metaphysical forest. The difference between man and machine, he pointed out, is that man is an expression of internal factors.

"Living beings," he said, "are the outcome of a prolonged historical development or evolution. Their organization is a record of factors acting progressively and cumulatively in the past. The present evidence indictates that the specific characters of a given ontogeny [life history] are to be referred for their ultimate basis to stable and specific types of molecular structure, present in the germ at the beginning of development."

Still heredity, or the immortal germ, does not fix the individual history except within broad limits, such as that of a man or a fish, or individual potentialities.

Factors Are Unaccounted.

"The novelty producing or creative character of living beings," Dr. Lillie said, "must be referred ultimately to factors, other than physical, equally deep-seated and equally characteristic of natural existence. Of these factors science can at present give no account. Can it ever give an account? The creative is that which escapes or transcends rule, but what is not in accordance with the rule lies outside science. In an ever-evolving universe all the rules are not yet made."

Dr. William H. Thompson, philosopher and psychologist of the municipal university of Omaha, discussed this problem in another way. He presented a review of the work of brain surgeons showing that semispheres and lobes of the human brain, on which a pattern of specific response has been built, may be removed without observable permanent loss of the higher mental functions. Consciousness is dependent, however, on the left anterior artery of the brain.

Destined for New Turn.

"We may now ask," said Dr. Thompson, "if the world of mental events has its real dependence upon circulation phenomena. Is this [artery] the bridge between the shadowy world of thought and experience and actual physical processes?

"Is the nervous system only primarily motor in its service to the whole organism? Merely subsidiary?

"We may further inquire if thought is the product of the nervous system any more than of the vascular system—in fact, if there is any somatic [body] system that is anything but contributory to the whole state of being that we call being alive in the world about us?

"The age old problem of the mind-body relationship seems destined for a new turn if the conclusions of the products of modern surgery are sustained. The advance of the theory of mass action conditioning has definitly captured the interest of the scientific world."

Clairvoyance Tests Told.

Whether there is extra sensory perception, a human faculty which transcends space and time, a question which has been raised by the experiments of Dr. J. B. Rhine of Duke university, came in for attention, but no conclusion, at the psychology section today. Dr. Robert H. Gault of Northwestern university, who had been scheduled to speak on experiments in card reading by clairvoyance, changed the subject of his paper and said he was not ready to report.

Dr. John L. Kennedy, fellow in psychical research at Stanford university, gave results of experiments in card reading with one hundred of his students. The results, he said, were not in favor of the Rhine hypothesis that all persons are clairvoyant in some degree. The Stanford results were close approximations to the laws of chance.

Mrs. Bernice Ellis, 26 years old, who left her two small daughters unguarded in her home at 2309 Monroe street when she went away on Monday, returned yesterday. The children were sent to St. Vincent's orphanage.

TELLS LAWYERS OF THEIR DUTY AS STATESMEN

The lawyers of today should be statesmen in the broadest sense, analyzing and aiding in the adjustment of conflicts in legislation and government administration. This was urged yesterday by Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, before five hundred delegates attending the convention of the Association of American Law Schools in the Stevens hotel.

Dean Garrison, who is president of the association and former chairman of the national labor relations board, also discussed methods of easing the economic problems of young lawyers. He suggested the establishment of low cost legal service bureaus and the employment of law school graduates as clerks in trial and Appellate courts.

The association is composed of eighty-nine college and university law schools.

WIFE DIVORCES JOHN HAMILTON, G.O.P. CHIEFTAIN

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, was divorced here today by Mrs. Laura Hall Hamilton. Judge Otis Hungate in District court ordered a decree after an unexpected trial lasting about an hour.

Mrs. Hamilton charged her husband with gross neglect, abandonment for more than a year, and extreme cruelty. They were married Jan. 28, 1915. Mrs. Hamilton was awarded custody of their two children, Daniel, 20 years old, and Laura, 12 years old.

Ralph T. O'Neil, law partner of Hamilton, appeared for the Republican chairman, but did not contest the suit. Mrs. Hamilton's attorney, John S. Dean Jr., said a property settlement was agreed upon before the trial and no alimony was ordered.

Ex-Senator Heflin Worse; Suffering from Pneumonia

La Fayette, Ala., Dec. 29.—(AP)—J. Thomas Heflin, 68 years old, a former senator, was placed under an oxygen tent today at Wheeler hospital, where he is ill of lobar pneumonia. Dr. N. A. Wheeler described Heflin as some sicker than the average man suffering from lobar pneumonia, but said he was resting somewhat better than he did yesterday. "Senator Heflin has not passed a crisis," Dr. Wheeler said.

MAKE NO MOVE TO ABSORB ULSTER, DUBLIN WARNED

Britain States Attitude on New Constitution.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Great Britain warned Ireland tonight it would not admit that the new Irish constitution, which went into effect today for the former Irish Free State, could be an instrument which would apply to the six northern counties, known as Northern Ireland or Ulster.

The statement, issued from 10 Downing street, raised no objection to the constitution which was sponsored by the government of Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, but said flatly that the constitution would not be allowed to become an all inclusive document.

Britain refuses to recognize that the national territory of Ireland consists of the "whole island of Ireland, its islands, and territorial seas" as claimed in article II. of the constitution.

No Extension of Rule.

Britain cannot recognize that provisions of the constitution involve "any right to territory or jurisdiction over territory forming part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland or affects in any way the position of Northern Ireland as an integral part of the United Kingdom," the statement said.

The government therefore regards "the use of the name of Eire or Ireland as relating only to that area [the twenty-six southern counties] which hitherto was known as the Irish Free State."

It was added that the dominions, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa had taken the same stand, and that the constitutional changes involved no fundamental alteration in the position of the former Irish Free State as a member of the British commonwealth of nations. However, the statement was the first recognition by the London government of the adoption of the Irish constitution by a plebiscite last July.

Ulster Sees an "Affront."

The British government's declaration came at the same time as a more emphatic one issued from Belfast in which Viscount Craigavon, prime minister of Northern Ireland, denounced the Dublin constitution as a "presumptuous affront" to the British king whom it eliminates from Ireland's internal affairs. Craigavon's statement said the six Ulster counties will have nothing to do with it.

[De Valera in a radio speech had expressed hope that all of Ireland one day would be governed by the new constitution.]

"To my mind," Craigavon said, "the effect of bringing into force this new constitution will be to strengthen the determination of Ulster to resist all attacks from that quarter and draw still closer the bonds between the mother country and ourselves."

Irish circles tonight stressed that the Dublin government in the new constitution recognizes that the laws of Ireland can be valid only in that territory which made up the former Free State pending the reintegration of ancient boundaries. The only sign of protest reported from Dublin was the hoisting of a black flag over Sinn Fein [republican] headquarters in Parnell square.

Naval Academy Club Will Give Dinner for Washburn

The Naval Academy Graduates' club of Chicago will give a farewell dinner tonight at the Naval armory at the foot of Randolph street for Capt. Edward D. Washburn, who has been head of the department of naval science and tactics at Northwestern university. Capt. Washburn will leave soon for the west coast, where he will take command of the U. S. S. California, flagship of the Pacific fleet.

SUPERIOR COURT ACTS TO CLEAR CHOKED DOCKET

Dead Divorce Cases Still Carried.

For the first time in many years the Superior court expects to learn today how many deadwood divorce cases—in which the litigants have no further interest—are being carried on the docket from year to year.

It has been estimated that there are approximately 15,000 contested and default divorce cases pending. Chief Justice Grover C. Niemeyer said last night that this figure is probably evaggerated, but that the compilation today may reveal nearly 7,000 dead cases.

Why Roll Is So High.

This condition, the chief justice said, arose several years ago, when cases were stricken from the docket with leave to reinstate them later. They have been carried as deadweight on the calendar since then, he said, and are one reason why the Superior court divorce roll is so high.

Another reason, Judge Niemeyer said, is that until recently five divorce bills were filed in the Superior court to one in the Circuit court. This condition, now being equalized, he declared, came about because only one divorce judge sat in the Circuit court, while the Superior court had two or more.

Determined not to favor divorce litigants in preference to others, and to lessen this load in his court, Judge Niemeyer said that last summer the court executive committee decided to let only one judge, John J. Lupe, hear these cases.

"He hears all motions for alimony and child custody," Judge Niemeyer said, "and handles as much work as the Circuit court judge. These are the only type of cases where an emergency might exist. Any one else wanting a speedy hearing probably wants to remarry, which means the suit probably is fraudulent. In such cases I don't think the court should hurry to break marital ties."

Load Becoming Equalized.

Since Judge Lupe began hearing none but default cases the number of divorces filed gradually is becoming equal in the two courts. From 805 filed in Superior and 257 in Circuit in September the number filed this month, through Monday, was 285 in Superior and 278 in Circuit. The total number of cases filed in Superior this year is 15,025, to 12,935 in Circuit.

Using the new system of assigning cases inaugurated by Judge Walter J. La Buy, the Circuit court has managed to speed up action in all branches. By assigning other chancellors to assist Judge Philip J. Finnegan, the divorce judge, the court expects to dispose of all pending default cases by the end of the year.

On the complaint of two women that he made advances to them while they were on the way to church, Joseph Kaszewski, 30 years old, 2029 North Laramie avenue, was fined $50 yesterday by Judge John T. Zuris in Domestic Relations court on charges of disorderly conduct.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The alleged social significance of Elmer Rice as a dramatist is not supported by the WPA revival of his comedy, "See Naples and Die," which was revived in the Blackstone theater last night. This is one of his minor works, written in 1928 when the American theater was in a flutter of pseudo-sophistication, phoney internationalism, and sophomoric wit. That was the period when the elaborate wise-cracking nonsense of Donald Ogden Stewart was in vogue, and Mr. Rice, who usually tries to be a serious thinker, was trying to follow a fashion to which his personality was not happily adjusted. The result, to quote one of the author's own remarks in this piece, was "an ill-advised attempt at humor."

There is no reason why this play, which is a Broadway failure almost ten years old, should be revived except to give the actors on the WPA rolls exercise in foreign dialects. But for the fact that it possesses a visible plot, it would be as much of a bore as the Theater Guild's recent mistake called "Wine of Choice."

The scene is a small hotel on the bay of Naples, forming a nice bit of stage decoration. The central characters are an American heiress who has married a Russian blackmailer in order to save her sister's reputation, and an ironic American youth whom she has jilted. These rôles are well acted by Beverly Younger and Don Koehler, in whom the WPA organization has found a pair of personable and skilful players, capable of building up a following of admirers in the congenial old stock company way.

"You Can't Take It with You" will terminate its run at the Harris theater on Jan. 15, at the end of its forty-ninth week. The company will go on tour, opening in St. Louis the next night. "Babes in Arms," a musical comedy which has had a long run on Broadway, will follow at the Harris, opening on Jan. 16. Mitzi Green will lead the cast.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Here's something new for use after the bath: A cologne into which a sachet dusting powder is incorporated and which also has deodorizing qualities. It is a lovely rub down lotion and leaves the skin delicately powdered.

One of the most interesting of the short cuts to good looks and perfect grooming is a sachet cologne that is four purpose. It's a time saver, and tremendously efficient, but it retains all the charm of a luxurious bath preparation. And by luxurious we don't mean expensive. This is modestly priced.

The tall, gold knobbed bottles are pretty to look at and convenient to handle. The cologne itself is exciting, but then it is really much more than a cologne. It combines the qualities of good, perfumed cologne, fragrant sachet dusting powder, an invigorating body rub, and an efficient deodorant, all in one. It can often serve as a flattering finish for the skin of the back and arms.

You see, there is sachet dusting powder right in the cologne; you'll see it resting in the bottom of the bottle. Before you use it, which should be after your bath, shake it rather vigorously so the powder is evenly distributed.

You'll like the film of prettily perfumed sachet body powder which remains on the skin after your rub-down. There is a deodorizing quality incorporated, too—and every fastidious woman will appreciate that point.

A great many women lay aside their colognes in winter, fearing that they are drying. This cologne, because of the velvety powder, is soothing and even serves as a protective. You'll find it in almost all of the shops—and we think you'll like it!

Newest Shoes Are Fashioned of Snake Skin

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Shoe designers have managed some smooth models with new snake skins. These newest of fashion finds feature navy blue in smart street pumps, new bow ties, and high heel oxfords. The shoes are fashioned with stunning marked skins. Whether you've liked or disliked snake skins in the past, this new stuff will take your money in a hurry.

It isn't hard to describe their distinction. The skins have been treated to make them as soft as suede. They have a high luster. But the markings are the chief attraction. These do not look like snake skin, but deftly patterned geometrically shaped modern motifs. They're slick for tweeds and street wools, and they wear without the usual scuffing and peeling.

In the new showings you'll find about six different styles, among them an unusual pump with just a small toe opening. There are clever strap models. Others offer the newest feminine bow treatment and are high and smooth over the instep line. All models have small open toe sections.

Matching handbags are available to satisfy the ensemble hunger of most shoppers. The handbags are strap models. These are small, smart, and expressly designed to match the various models of the shoes. As added attractions you can get belts in two widths, a snappy, narrow affair that will accent sweaters or wools or suit and a wider one to wear with full skirted and narrow waisted dull black or navy blue wool crêpes.

The colors are exceptionally flattering. A beige with deep brown marking will go well with navy blue and be smart with raspberry, copper, dull black, or deep brown.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

One of the biggest aids to the housewife we've come across in ages is a device for getting mud and moisture off your dog's paws before he goes tracking across your spotless floor or the living room rug. If you try using an ordinary towel you'll soon find all of your towels are being commandeered.

To the rescue comes a special made-for-the-purpose towel, "for drying your dog when he comes in wet." It's of an absorbent tan crash; it's almost as long as a scarf, and its ends are made like mittens. You slip your hands in them, then catch your dog and wipe his paws with neatness and dispatch.

These practical, convenient affairs are inexpensive and they don't need nearly so many launderings as a towel.

Ballet of Toys Is Received in Holiday Mood

BY CECIL SMITH.

The De Basil Ballet Russe concluded its matinée yesterday with the only performance of "La Boutique Fantasque" listed in their fortnight's schedule at the Auditorium theater. A capacity audience, including a great many children, acclaimed the dancers in festive holiday mood, not only in "La Boutique Fantasque," but also earlier in "Les Sylphides" and "Le Coq d'Or."

The Rossini-Respighi-Massine-Derain ballet of the toys that come to life in a toy shop offers many opportunities for neatly stylized dancing. Among those who shone particularly bright were Alexis Kosloff as the shopkeeper's halfwit assistant; Leonide Massine and Alexandra Danilova as two dolls dancing a can-can, and two other dolls, Yurek Shabelevsky as a snobbish dandy, and H. Algeranoff [the astrologer of "Le Coq d'Or"] as a melon vendor with a wheelbarrow.

The whole performance was exceedingly deft. It was also full of wit, although the edge was taken off by a touch of vulgarity in two or three places—especially in the uncensored activities of a poodle dog which elaborates upon a motif long since exhausted by William Powell's dog in "The Thin Man."

Paul Petroff replaced Roman Jasinsky in the male rôle of "Les Sylphides," and danced with such fabulous grace that this ballet seemed almost to have been invented specifically for him.

Popular interest in "Francesca da Rimini" has caused the management to schedule that work for this evening in place of "Union Pacific." The other two ballets listed are "Cimarosiana" and "Choreartetum."

Through an unfortunate error I gave the wrong name in last Monday's TRIBUNE for the colored soprano who sang in "Aïda" in New York a few years ago, and later appeared here in the play "Stevedore." Her name is Abbie Mitchell, and she has sung in opera not only in New York, but also in Paris and in pre-revolutionary Russia.

The Rev. John Henry Hopkins, rector-emeritus of the Church of the Redeemer and a member of the Apollo Musical club, says that I had no right to call the audience at last Monday's "Messiah" performance "good sized." As he quite accurately points out, the house was virtually sold out.

A Good Wardrobe Standby

MISS' FROCK.

If you're in college or high school, or out of school and enjoying your first job, you will have need of this frock because it's a good standby in the wardrobe of a busy young woman. There are two versions in which it may be made. The sketch at the left illustrates a typical tailored model, with shirtwaist collar, slanted pockets, buttons down the bodice, and tailored sleeves. Silks and woolen both make up well in this model, and plaids are particularly smart.

The illustration at the right gives the frock a high square neckline and short puffed sleeves, both edged with lingerie ruching or lace. The tightly fitted bodice has buttons, and the slightly flared skirt has grace.

All types of silks, especially those with rich surfaces, make up well.

Style No. 2044 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting for the long sleeved dress.

Temperature of Home Plays Part in Affecting Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The housewife recently was appointed chief beauty operator in the home. Upon her shoulders falls the responsibility of eliminating influences detrimental to hair and complexion as she can arrange it through diet and maintaining a temperature in the home that is consistent with health.

A noted scalp specialist is the one who nominates our housewives and mothers for their new rôle of beauty operator. It really does not add another burden to her already burdened shoulders, for she will get as much benefit out of the care as do her charges. And it is simply a matter of seeing that room temperature in the house is not higher than 70 to 72 degrees Fahrenheit, with a relative humidity no lower than 40 to 35 per cent. As the best way of maintaining this healthful level air conditioning is suggested.

Hot air, lacking sufficient moisture, automatically dries out the scalp and skin and stifles the normal functioning of glands and pores, according to a scalp specialist. The irritations and dry, parched conditions result in shallow, blemished complexions, and they also cause baldness in men, and rob women's hair of health and luster.

Proper humidity may be attained by keeping a pan of water under the radiator and seeing that it is replenished from time to time.

Besides acting as heating engineer, the little woman's food management is promised beauty results all around, with better health a sure bet. It is hinted that the man with a wife expert in culinary science, aware of food values, is less likely to become bald than the man burdened with a tin can cook or her equivalent in unstudied food serving, because the scalp and hair and complexion are not things apart from the rest of the system. They are as dependent upon general health and habits as is the rest of the body. Internal nourishment is the cue. No special diet is recommended, but foods which are best for the general health are best for one's personal appearance.

It is not without significance that debility, pallor, melancholia, dyspepsia, and chronic indigestion so often are accompanied by falling and too dry hair.

December is squeezing his unhappy way out past the vanguard of a happy new year. When Christmas has gone there isn't much for December to do but make an exit as unobtrusively as possible.

New Year's day requires feasting in the true holiday manner. Roast goose is traditional and the body of the meal is more or less determined by custom. But the dessert may be anything from an exotic oriental marlow to a moist date pudding dressed up with whipped cream.

Oriental Marlow.
[Serves Eight.]

16 marshmallows
1 cup milk
Few grains salt
¾ cup orange marmalade
¼ cup preserved ginger, cut fine
¾ cup chopped nuts
1 cup whipping cream

Melt marshmallows thoroughly in milk over hot water. Chill until the mixture thickens slightly. Add other ingredients, folding in whipped cream last. Freeze in refrigerator tray.

HOLIDAY MINCE PIE.

Make mince pie with a lattice top, using canned or packaged mincemeat, and drop spoonsful of crushed pineapple into the latticework openings in the top crust before baking the pie. Top the pineapple with bits of maraschino cherries.

Holiday Date Pudding.
[Serves Twelve.]

1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sugar
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon butter
1 egg
½ cup nuts
½ pound dates, cut finely
½ cup sugar
½ cup nuts
½ cup boiling water

Pour the first mentioned amount of boiling water over the first amount of dates and add soda. Let this mixture stand while mixing the second group of ingredients. Sift flour, add sugar and baking powder, and resift. Mix in the date sauce and add the beaten egg, butter, and nuts. Blend and pour the mixture into a greased pan. Spread thinly and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. When baked spread over the top of the pudding the date-nut sauce made by combining the last four ingredients in the recipe. Let them stand together while the cake is baking. The topping will remain moist and keep the cake moist. This pudding keeps well when stored in paper or in a cake tin. Cut into squares for serving and top with whipped cream.

Russian Chocolate Refrigerator Cake.
[Serves Ten.]

1 cup butter
2 cups confectioner's sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
2 tablespoons strong coffee
2 tablespoons brandy
2 eggs
Lady fingers or strips of sponge cake

Cream the butter until smooth and fluffy. Gradually work in half the confectioner's sugar and the cinnamon. Beat in the chocolate, coffee, and brandy. Then beat in the remaining sugar and the eggs, beaten until very light. Line a round mold or cake pan with waxed paper and cover the bottom with crumbled lady fingers. Line sides of mold with lady fingers, round side out. Pour in half the filling, sprinkle with a layer of crums, and add remaining filling. Top with more crums. Cover with waxed paper and chill overnight. Unmold to serve and spread with sherry flavored whipped cream, topped with nuts.

By Mae Tinée

Good Morning!

Re this "Love and Hisses"—

Simone Simon, utterly adorable, proves to a surprised world that she can sing as well as act.

Dick Baldwin, a newcomer, reveals an ingratiating personality, and a flock of capable players uphold the principals in engaging fashion, to the patter of mirth provoking dialog, as the good little yarn reels eventfully on its way from snappy start to satisfying finish.

And now if you have gathered that this comedy with music is peppy holiday fare—you've gathered rightly.

Events hinge on the efforts of Messrs. Bernie and Winchell to put something over on each other in the introduction to Manhattan of one Yvette, an entertainer.

Mr. Bernie, who runs a night club at which he and his lads furnish the music, is all agog with the news that he has brought from Europe a girl who will wow New York. . . .

Mr. Winchell pooh poohs. . . . Mr. Bernie and his cohorts go into a huddle with the result that Keyhole Walter "discovers"—and touts loudly Yvette—not knowing she's the girl he has belittled. . . .

When he finds out the plant—well, then it's ye Old Maestro's turn to prove that a good sport can take as well as hand out. . . .

It seemed to me that there were thousands of small boys in the Oriental yesterday, and that all of them were having a grand time!

Well, "Submarine D-1" is the sort of show that boys, big and little go for. It's full of action, revelations of what make a submarine act as a submarine does, and of how submarine sailor men carry on, and views of U-boats above and below water. The picture has excitement, laughs, suspense and enough romance and good looking men to keep the ladies of an audience interested.

A "safety chamber," designed to save the lives of submarine crews in times of under water catastrophe, plays an important part in the proceedings.

Messrs. Brent and O'Brien—the latter's always a small boy's hero—make stern and capable officers. . . . Wayne Morris, as a happy-go-lucky fellow who turns from an undependable into an able seaman, is splendid. Frank McHugh, and Dennie Moore as his giggly, grasping sweetie, contribute comedy. Doris Weston in a straight romantic rôle hasn't much.

The picture's been pretty well directed. Sound's not so hot, but, all in all the piece has plenty to commend it—especially to male grammar schoolers.

Only Families Are Present at Ceremony

Only the immediate families were present at the wedding yesterday of Miss Josephine Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Fleming of Lake Forest, to Thomas Mac Pherson Thomas, son of Mrs. Cary Wood Thomas of Highland Park and of Charles N. Thomas of New York. The Rev. Herbert E. Prince read the service at 7 o'clock in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, and a family dinner followed at the Fleming home.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown, as did her older sister Charlotte when she was married two years ago to Norman Lee Cram. Yesterday's bride carried bride's roses. More of the white roses were used to decorate the chapel. After a short wedding trip Mr. Thomas and his bride will be at home on the near north side. In the spring, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will give a garden reception for their daughter and her bridegroom.

At a large wedding at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Christ church, Winnetka, Miss Muriel Pitcher was married to Charles Robert Arnold, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Frederick S. Arnold of Auburn, N. Y. A reception followed at the Hubbard Woods home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Oliver S. Pitcher.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of heavy ivory satin, made on princess lines, with a long train. A wide panel of seed pearls trimmed the front of the gown from the neck to the hemline. A seed pearl band held a tulle veil to her head, and she carried gardenias.

Mrs. Pitcher Purcell, the matron of honor, and Miss Nancy Knode, the maid of honor, wore gowns of Margeux rose satin, made with full skirts and corselet bodices, and the bridesmaids wore similar gowns in a paler shade of rose. The bridesmaids carried yellow roses, and the maid and matron of honor carried copper colored ones.

Cybotium fern, calla lilies and candles decorated the church. The bridegroom's father and the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard officiated at the service. After a honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga., Mr. Arnold and his bride will be at home in Syracuse, N. Y.

ENGAGEMENTS

Dr. and Mrs. James H. Skiles of Oak Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor, to Robert Hyde Treadway of Detroit, son of Alfred A. Treadway of Detroit and of Mrs. Harold S. Kinsley of Ann Arbor, Mich. Miss Skiles attended the University of Michigan and Mr. Treadway was graduated from the University of Michigan school of engineering. The wedding will take place in June.

Elgie R. Skinner, 744 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, announces the engagement of his daughter, Mary Catherine, to Herbert John Gibbs Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert John Gibbs of Norfolk, Neb. Miss Skinner and Mr. Gibbs are students at the University of Michigan.

Century of Progress Pays $160,000 Surplus to Eight Institutions

Checks totaling $160,000 were handed yesterday to eight public and philanthropic agencies by Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress of 1933 and 1934, in the courtroom of Judge James F. Fardy.

The money represented a surplus after payment or provision for payment of all debts and claims against the fair which was the first in history to end without a deficit.

The agencies benefiting were the Art institute, Museum of Science and Industry, Adler Planetarium, Chicago park district archæological trust, Chicago Regional Planning association, the Smithsonian institution, and the Yerkes observatory.

Triangle Club Will Be Center of Day's Whirl

BY JUDITH CASS.

TODAY'S gay social whirl will revolve around the Princeton Triangle club—or should it be said that the Princeton Triangle club members will revolve around in today's gay social whirl?

At any event, from the time they arrive around 1:30 o'clock from Omaha—after a late party there last night—until they leave for Detroit about 5 o'clock tomorrow morning, there will be no lull in entertaining for the Trianglers, who change individually from year to year, but whose popularity as a group never diminishes.

The debutantes first will meet this year's troupe at a tea-dance Mrs. William D. Bangs of Geneva is giving at the Arts club for her debutante nieces, Miss Lee and Miss Peggy Zimmermann, and Miss Jane Rockwood. Tonight, after the Triangle performance, "Fol-de-Rol," at the Civic Opera house, the boys will be guests at an Eli Bates Settlement House benefit dance in the New Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel.

For the first time there is no debutante ball scheduled to follow the Triangle play, but since every one will be going to the benefit supper-dance, for which the price of tickets has been kept reasonably low, the lack of a debut ball will not be felt.

Only Young People Will Attend Tea.

Only young people and the Trianglers have been invited to Mrs. Bangs' party, which is certain to be one of the gayest of the season. Subdeb Sally Bangs, who goes to the Putney school in Vermont, will be at the party and so will the former Katharine Bangs and her husband, Murray Fowler, and the two Bangs sons, William and Robert. The latter is a Princeton student and "Bill" went there, too, before he entered business. His engagement to Miss Betty Morton was announced in the early fall. The late Mr. Bangs was a Princeton man.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler are leaving late this afternoon to return to their home in Cambridge, Mass., so they will be at the tea for only a short time. Mrs. Bangs has asked some of Mrs. Fowler's friends to assist, not by pouring as assistants usually do, but by seeing that the Trianglers meet all the girls. The assistants will be Mrs. Hugh McBirney Johnston, Mrs. Thomas S. Tyler, Miss Henrietta Boal, Miss Elizabeth Ferriss, Miss Mary Richards, and the Misses Betsy and Susan Ballard.

Among the many dinners to be given preceding the show is one Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Zeiss and the Walter O. Wilsons will give for their subdebutante daughters, Eleanor Zeiss and Marion Wilson. The young people will have dinner at the Stevens hotel before going to the theater.

The Francis R. Dickinsons and the James R. Offields are giving dinner parties at the Casino for some of the debutante set. Miss Janet Gregory will be the Dickinsons' especial guest, and the Offields are entertaining for Miss Evelyn Gordon. The Alfred T. Cartons are entertaining for Miss Mary Seymour Adams and Miss Betty Lord. The R. Douglas Stuarts are taking some young people, including their son, R. Douglas Stuart Jr., and his fiancée, Miss Barbara Edwards of Syracuse, N. Y. The Hill Blacketts' young guests, who will fill four boxes, will dine first at the Racquet club. The Blacketts are entertaining for debutante Nancy Wolcott.

The Paul V. Harpers are entertaining for their daughter, Miss Jane Harper, and Garrett R. Foley is giving a party for his debutante niece, Miss Ann Elizabeth Hall. Mr. and Mrs. James F. Oates are entertaining for Miss Barbara Austin.

The Ralph A. Bards, Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, the Eugene Howards, and the Louis B. DeWitts are among the boxholders. Others entertaining in main floor seats include the T. Albert Potters, the Edward D. Shumways, the Rawleigh Warners, the Roy Bards, the Woodbury S. Obers, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Collins Jr., and the Robert S. Macdonalds.

Bates Party to Start Immediately After Show.

From the theater almost all of the debutante set and most of the young married people will go directly to the Eli Bates party, which will get under way at 11 o'clock. Miss Carol Bush is chairman of the party, for which the committee includes Mrs. Robert McKenna, Miss Virginia Winston, and Mrs. Everett Van Nice.

Miss Mary Wood, Miss Annie May Henry, and Miss Anne Jay Bryant have been delegated to welcome the Trianglers, but after the Big Apple contest, to be conducted by Arthur M. Wood, there surely will be no need of further introductions. Mr. Wood, who had a leading rôle in the Tri-

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

A Typewriter Talks Back.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29.—To my amazement, as I sat down at the typewriter the keys of the battered old mill started typing out their own message. Man and boy, we'd been together for ten years, but this was the first hint that it had an ouija-board complex. The keys rattled and jiggled as the typewriter, after ten years of pounding, cracked back at me.

In the first place, Sullivan, look at what you've done to my keys. Take a gander at the fourth key from the right, three rows up from the spacer. Here, I'll waggle it for you. Uh-huh, it's the letter I. You've worn it right down to the bone. Can't you give it a rest? "I—I-I-I-I." May I suggest that it is the first letter in "immodest," or are you columnists too thick-skulled to appreciate such subtlety?

The typewriter paused, as if for a long breath, and started writing again . . . Each of my keys, Sully, could unlock a story for you on a dull day, but that would never occur to you. It's too obvious. Take the letter "W," for instance. "W" could start you off on a story about Mae West, or the Warners, or Mickey Walker, or Al H. Woods, or Jane Wyatt. Why don't you point out that the Mae West radio censure is an interesting comment on the changing morals of the day? In 1933, the country hailed Mae in "She Done Him Wrong"; four years later, the same people who raved over her lead the attack on her. Public opinion is a funny thing.

The letter "B" might remind you of some of the classic boners you've pulled, Twirp. Or would you rather forget them? Boy, O boy, you columnists love to dish it out, but you can't take it. Remember the night you reviewed that Broadway show and smugly suggested that the author should rewrite the second act? Heyhey.

The next day, John Anderson came out in the Journal and said he really thought you had something there, as the author in question had been dead 100 years, but he doubted that they'd dig him up for a rewrite job. Old boy, really you're priceless.

"T" recalls to me your critical opinion of "Tobacco Road." You oracled that this would be a box office flop. It's now in its sixth season. Sullivan, you slay me. In the immortal words of Bee Lillie, sometimes you make me so mad I could spit.

"S" reminds me of the time you took that big show from Broadway up to Sing-Sing prison. I never saw a show like that, one headline act after another, and then in the midst of it a prison trusty brought you a note that read: "C. C. wants Rudy Vallee to sing 'Boulevard of Broken Dreams.'" You stuck it in your pocket, forgot it, and then five minutes later the trusty was back again with the identical message and you said: "Look, I don't know who C. C. is, but tell him this show isn't being staged for his individual benefit. And tell him for me that he's got a lot of nerve asking for special numbers."

The trusty said: "You don't understand. 'C. C.' is the nickname for Condemned Cells. The boys who are going to be electrocuted are listening in on a special wire. They wanted Rudy to sing the song for them as a special favor."

You turned white as a sheet, as though you'd been hit on the chin, and you apologized, and you told Vallee and he sang not one but five songs for this strangest of all audiences.

"C" might originate a great story of Joan Crawford. You coast writers talk of her beauty, and things like that. Why don't you dig deeper and tell about her heart and her courage. She would have been a success at anything she attempted. The movies only were incidental. Every time you spell her name I have a vivid picture of Johnny Risko pulling himself off the canvas and staggering back after Max Schmeling. Joan has that same type of courage. Don't ever sell her short.

"B" might stand for Bantry Bay, that charming little town in Ireland where your family came from. We've got to go back there some day. That was really something!!

You wouldn't think offhand, that there was a good story in this key, would you? Here, I'll hit it. ½. Think hard. Have you forgotten how old Joe Humphries, may he rest in peace, used to announce the weights at the big fights. If it was 198½, he'd bellow, "one ninety eight," and then slice his hand through the air like an umpire signalling "safe." The crowd would roar back "and a half," and Joe would nod back at them, pleased. What a grand character he was.

"L" . . . Loy, Lombard, Laughton, La Cava, Le Roy, Leeds, Laemmle. Simple, isn't it? I forgot June Lang. She's very easy on the eyes, one of the real lookers of this colony.

Now take the key to the left of that one, "K." Karloff, Korda, Fred Keating, Sam Katz, Kelly, Krasna. But "B" is really a goldmine. The story of showbusiness could be written on that one key. . . . Belasco, Bernhardt, Irving Berlin, Bowes, the Bennetts, the Barrymores, Bergen, Benny, Balaban, Brice, Brown, Baxter Bancroft, Bow, Borzage, Bartholomew, Berle, Baker, Berman, Broderick, Burns, Brady, Brent, Berry, Brady.

As Sherlock Holmes used to say. . . . "It's elemental, Watson, elemental." Did I point out that "Z" was reserved for Ziegfeld, and when he died he turned it over to Zanuck. Good-Bye, now.

Masque and Wig Club Delights Throng at Civic Opera House

A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the Masque and Wig club of the University of Pennsylvania which made its first appearance in Chicago since 1925 last night at the Civic Opera house. Many school age boys and girls mingled with the debutantes and their elders, for amateur theatrical productions provide an excellent opportunity to entertain all members of the family.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

(Copyright: 1937: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.)

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house, he stumbles over a bicycle. The front door is ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to "Run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the hayloft. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementa had told her was hidden in the house, called Rere place. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At his cousin Daphne's party James meets the girl. She is Sally West, the sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him because of what he saw—her brother and herself. Jackson, a rival salesman, takes credit for driving the car the night of the fog and is run over on the road and killed. Sally is in fear of Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, who is her guardian and was her aunt's trustee; also his wife, Hildegarde, and the latter's cousin, Henri Niemeyer, who wants to marry Sally. Jocko, after receiving a letter from his dying aunt, was pushed off a cliff. After the accident the letter is missing and Jocko cannot remember its contents. The money Sally's aunt left to Jocko comes next to her, and, if she dies, to Ambrose. Sally and James fall in love, but she tells him it is too dangerous for them to meet. Returning home one night James barely escapes death from falling scaffolding. On his way to deliver a car James offers to drive Sally to Rere place, where Jocko is staying.

INSTALMENT XXXIV

FACING DEATH.

"Were the new servants foreign?" James asked.

"O no. Hildegarde was too clever for that. It would have made talk. But I didn't like them—any of them. Quite well trained for all that, you know, but a most horrid feeling as if they might say something outrageous at any moment. What nobody knew was that Aunt Clementa wasn't really bedridden at all. She got out of bed and walked about the house in the dark, and one night she found something. She found out that her house was being used, and I think she found out what it was being used for. She found out, and she got away with some very incriminating evidence—something in a book. I don't know what it was. It might have been letters—or lists—names and addresses—or signatures—I don't know. But it must have been something pretty damning, because that's where all the trouble began. They wouldn't have tried to kill Jocko if they hadn't been pretty desperate—and your Mr. Jackson—and—"

"Me," said James.

"What?"

"A convenient landslide of bricks last night. Nearly got me, too. And this morning it had all been tidied away."

Sally shuddered and came closer.

"You're not hurt?"

"Of course I'm not. Go on. I'll tell you about it afterwards."

"I've told you everything—I really have. I think they missed whatever it was that Aunt Clementa found, and then they got the wind up."

"How do you know they haven't found whatever it was they were looking for?" said James.

"Because they're still looking for it. They were looking for it that afternoon when we met in the hall and I grabbed you and said 'Run!' They were in Aunt Clementa's room. I could hear them whispering, and I was trying to find a good crack to put my ear against when the board outside the door creaked. Some one came running, but I didn't wait. I slid the banisters and bumped into you in the hall, and if we hadn't run I expect they'd have shot us dead.

"Who?" said James bluntly.

"Henri, I should think. He's a much better shot than Ambrose."

"A pretty big risk to take."

"People who do the sort of things they are doing have to get accustomed to risks. They'd have dug a hole in one of the cellars, and we'd never have been heard of again. Rere place has the most revolting cellars."

"Why did you go on living with them? You've got your own money. Why on earth did you stay with them?"

Sally said, "I had to," and caught her breath. "I can't touch my own money till I'm twenty-five—unless I marry. The money's there all right. Ambrose is only one of three trustees, but it's left to him to say what allowance I have till then. He could cut me down to fifty pounds a year if he liked.

"But that's not why I've stayed. I could have appealed to the other trustees and brought pressure to bear. It wasn't that—it was Jocko—I've been horribly frightened about Jocko ever since Aunt Clementa died. James, you don't know how horrible it's been. I loved Ambrose so much, and I always hated Hildegarde, but in the end I came to be worse frightened of him than of her."

She shuddered violently. "You don't know how dreadful it's been. And I couldn't prove anything. If I'd said out there at Holbrunn, 'Ambrose Sylvester and his wife have just tried to kill my brother,' who do you think would have believed me? I should have been just a neurotic female who had probably gone off the deep end about her handsome guardian and been snubbed for her pains. My name would have been mud, and if I'd had a convenient accident, every one would have been all set to believe I'd committed suicide."

"Sally—don't!"

"It's true. Do you think I haven't gone over it, and over it, and over it? What I arrived at was this—they'd taken a chance with Jocko and failed, but they'd got away with Aunt Clementa's letter—at least I suppose they had. I never felt quite sure about that, because if they did get it, why haven't they found what they are looking for? I think Jocko may have read the letter when he was alone and destroyed it. I did try to get away, but it wasn't any good.

"So I stayed. And then Henri began to make love to me, and I got a sort of general impression that it would be much safer if I didn't turn him down. I get my money if I marry, and I suppose they'd rather get my money legally if it could be done. I mean why run the risk of murdering some one if you can marry them? Besides, I attract Henri."

"O, you do, do you?" said James in an exasperated voice.

"Yes, I think so. That's one reason why Hildegarde hates me—she thinks Henri is her property. Well, you see, I stayed. I thought it would be safer for Jocko, and I thought I could manage Henri, but it's all got too difficult, and I'm frightened, and Jocko won't listen to a single word."

James didn't speak, and Sally wasn't sure whether she wanted him to speak. She felt quite weak and empty.

They were now in the neighborhood of Wilder's heath. Pedlar's hill, with its long ascent, lay before them. Rising gradually at first, it has a bend about half way up, beyond which it becomes very steep.

It was as they drew clear of the bend that James looked up and saw the lorry. It came over the brow of the hill and down it at a breakneck speed, full tilt in the middle of the road. There are two places on this part of the hill where the slope is one in seven. The lorry appeared to jump the first of these and come down at them like an avalanche. And James saw that the driver's seat was empty.

The hill runs dead straight, and the lorry had the crown of the road. Sally stopped breathing, and waited for the crash. She found time to be glad that they were together, and she found time to think, "I ought to put my hands over my face—I don't want to be cut to bits." Then with death roaring down on them, James put the car at the ditch.

They swung to take it, and Sally saw the sky and the high front of the lorry blotting it out, and the sky again, and the grass slope, all swinging, too. And then they were over, with a shocking bump and a lurch which flung her back against James. From behind them came a rending, splintering noise, and a crash which sounded as if some one had dropped a load of sheet-iron over a cliff.

James held the wheel with very strong hands. His shoulder stiffened against Sally. The car righted itself and plunged forward on to a comparatively level piece of ground, where he braked and brought it to a standstill.

Without a look or a word he opened the door and jumped out. Sally was perfectly safe, but what about Colonel Pomeroy's car? To deliver a new car with so much as a single scratch upon her coachwork would be a most unpleasant humiliation.

Child's Rude Manner Often Parents' Fault

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We were talking not long ago about children being impudent. We were saying that children ordinarily are not impudent unless they are treated in a way that allows an opening for impudence; because of the attitude and conduct of their parents toward them. We mentioned the fact that if a mother and father have an innate dignity and feel a respect for their child as a person, impudence and rudeness most decidely will not become a problem.

But don't misunderstand me and think I mean that parents should be "on their dignity."

Possessing an innate dignity and being "on your dignity" are two totally different things.

How aloof and awful it would be to have a parent who was always "on his dignity." You'd have to watch your p's and q's all the time. You couldn't run to him with this or that trouble. If you wanted to joke you'd always be afraid you'd knock that chip of dignity off his shoulder.

Having an innate dignity which your child unconsciously respects doesn't mean getting up on your dignity at the slightest appearance of disrespect.

Having innate dignity does not mean putting yourself up on a pedestal. If you do, things are never so intimate, or jolly, or free and easy, or friendly that your child forgets the gap in your ages. A boy [or girl] of any age can have a very deep respect for his parents if they're that kind of person and can show it, too, in the nicest sort of general attitude, but without being held by them at arm's length.

If you have an innate dignity and feel respect for your child as a person, he will truly respect you, never fear. The few little surface slips don't matter, and are easily corrected.

The aims that intelligent parents strive for are expressed in our "Mothers' and Fathers' Litany." It is sent out on receipt of postage, but no envelope please, unless it is a large Manila one. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in The Sunday Tribune.

Chicago Princeton Club Will Meet Today.

The annual meeting of the Chicago Princeton club will be held at a luncheon today at the Palmer house, but the Trianglers will not arrive in time to attend. The troupe will have an informal supper tonight at the University club, preceding the show, unless they find that they already have eaten too many of the good things Mrs. Bangs will serve at the tea-dance. The Chicago Triangle committee includes Frederick H. Scott Jr., chairman; Mr. Wood, and Cyrus H. Adams III.

Two Households Welcome Babies.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Moffett [Ruth Quigley] became the parents of a second child, a daughter, Margaret Kent, on Monday at the Passavant hospital. The Moffetts have a son, born in May, 1936, and named James A. Moffett III. for his grandfather.

Mr. and Mrs. William English Walling II. [Mary Elizabeth Edmonds] became the parents of a daughter yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital. The baby is the first grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby G. Walling of Winnetka. Young Mr. and Mrs. Walling are building a new home west of Winnetka.

The junior George B. Masseys, who are here from Mexico City, and Miss Amanda Duff, who has a part in "Tovarich," now playing at the Selwyn theater, will be especial guests at an eggnog party from 5 until 7 o'clock this afternoon. Roger Clarke is entertaining about 100 guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clarke, in Glencoe.

Wells Alumnae Will Hear Nabokoff Today.

Alumnae of Wells college will hear Nicholas Nabokoff speak on "The Language of Contemporary Music" at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Tavern. Following the talk by Mr. Nabokoff, who is head of the music department at Wells, the alumnae will hold their annual Christmas tea. Because of the general interest in Mr. Nabokoff's subject, the public will be admitted to the lecture for a small fee. Mr. Nabokoff wrote the music for the ballet, "Union Pacific."

Miss Barbara Englehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Englehart of Evanston, entertained for ten members of the Russian ballet last night at a supper party in the Empire room of the Palmer house after the evening performance. Among her guests were Tamara Grigorieff and her husband, Vova Grigorieff, who is managing director of the ballet.

Dinner Club Dance Will Be Held Tonight.

The date for the second dance of the Dinner club has been changed from New Year's eve to this evening due to a conflict with the Junior Assembly dance at the Casino tomorrow night. The Dinner club is made up of preparatory school young people from Kenilworth north through Highland Park. The dance will be given at the Exmoor Country club, with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stuart Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gale Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Konsberg, and Mr. and Mrs. Howell Worth Murray as hosts and hostesses.

Mrs. William Harrison Howell of 1510 Astor street announces the marriage on Dec. 18 of her daughter, Virginia, to T. Edmund Byrnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Byrnes of Chicago. The wedding took place at the Holy Name cathedral.

The bride attended the Edgewood school and the Girls' Latin school and is a member of the Service club. Mr. Byrnes is a graduate of Loyola university. He and his bride will be at home on the near north side when they return from a wedding trip to New York.

Mrs. Jacob Baur is giving a theater party tonight at the Studebaker, where "When Chicago Was Young" is in its first week.

Flirtation Is Risky Way of Winning Beaux

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"First of all," the girl boldly admits, "I met my boy friend through a street flirtation. He was standing on a corner waiting for a car. He smiled and that was that. I may as well confess, while I'm at it, that almost every boy I've known I have met that way. Not because, mind you, I couldn't get them in more conventional ways, but simply because I got more of a kick out of it. I had more dates than any other girl because of the technique I know that I have. BUT——

"Here's my worry. Word has got around that I am a 'hot number.' It has reached my present boy friend's ears, which is just the thing I did not want to have happen because he was under the impression that he was the only boy I ever flirted with. I told him so, of course.

"He has cooled off lately and, in the lonesome hours which I spend hanging around waiting for his telephone call, believe me, I wish I had been conventional in the matter of meeting boys. Understand, that outside of this queer urge of mine to meet boys without benefit of introduction, they couldn't say anything against me. I have tried to argue this out with the boy I love, but he says that a girl who would pick up friends the way I've done would do anything. Do you think, Miss Blake, that I have a chance of regaining his respect?"

We wonder, too, about your ever regaining the respect that matters so much to you now. It's funny, isn't it, girl, how when that one man comes along who matters most in your life all your old unconventional arguments are shot to pieces. But that's one of the nice things about love. It does inspire the finest things in you.

Too, we wonder about that vaunted technique of yours. We wonder if it isn't fairly common. After all, it is no compliment to a girl to have it said that she can get any man if her technique wouldn't pass inspection. We would like to hear more about that technique of yours. We suspect, of course, that it is too unconventional.

Mae West Ban Is Subject for Quips of Radio

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

While NBC has banned the use of Mae West's name in program scripts, that action is not keeping comedians who do their stuff on that network from making sly references to her lamented radio adventure. Fred Allen and Jack Denny, in discussing their old vaudeville days together, worked one in the other evening.

"A lot of water has flowed over the darn since then," Jack sighed.

"Darn? Is that what you said," Allen asked.

"Yes," Jack replied. "You know how careful you have to be now."

Charlie Butterworth got in another Tuesday night on Hollywood Mardi Gras. Lum and Abner were "interviewing" him on a "Man in the Street" broadcast.

"Have you had any interesting experiences?" Butterworth was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "but nothing you could broadcast — considering how things are now in radio."

Arch Oboler, author of the "Mrs. Eve" sketch, in a letter to this column explained his position in the West debacle:

"When the agency phoned me one midnight and asked me to do a sketch about Adam and Eve the idea struck me as a rather amusing one," he wrote. . . . "This was not to be a gag sketch for the purpose of exploiting Miss West's obvious talents, but rather an amusing situational playlet. . . . I wrote the sketch, basing it on the idea that Eve was a bored woman who wanted release from the boredom of perfection. The script as written was as innocent as a one minute egg. If Janet Gaynor had played in the sketch the result would have been the anticipated one. Unfortunately, however, Miss West went to town—and you know the rest."

Herbie Kay, opening at the Drake hotel a few days ago, received this wire: "Best wishes for a long engagement. I hope you clip 'em and mow 'em down. Your lovely wife, Dorothy, and I are very happy out here in Hollywood. Charlie McCarthy."

Dorothy Lamour, his wife, however, assured Herbie that she was not too happy—and that she will arrive here next Tuesday to visit him.

The New York Westaway Under the Sea Adventure series is to be aired locally over W-G-N starting next Monday. Dan Sutter and Louise Fitch will play the leads. Supporting players will be Bill Rath, Al Halus, Norman Gottschalk, Forrest Lewis, and Clare Baum.

Tres Tremayne, leading man of First Nighter, who was lately in Passavant hospital as the result of an accidental gunshot wound, is back there recovering from injuries incurred in a crash in which his new car was badly smashed up.

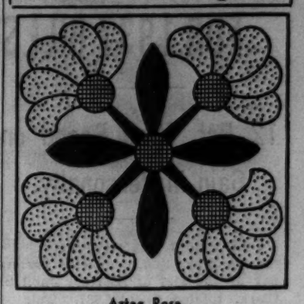
Desert Blooming Rose Adorns This Beautiful Quilt



Aztec Rose.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This lovely "Aztec Rose" portrays the beauty of a flower found blooming in the desert. The quilt is called the "Mexican Rose" by some, but the pattern is fundamentally the same. Yellow, rose, and green are favorite shades for this design whether it is the Mexican or Aztec rose. For variety many quilt makers prefer a yellow printed material rather than the solid color. The finished block measures 14 inches square, and is set together with four inch bands of white material, surrounded by a four inch border and a one-half inch bias binding. The overall dimensions of this coverlet are 90 by 107 inches.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The only point upon which my wife and I disagree is about which of us is the better bridge player. She maintains that she is marvelous, and I know that my own game is superb, so in the final analysis it comes down to a battle of adjectives. Of course, if my wife weren't so conceited it would be all right. It isn't enough for me to concede that she plays a very decent game. O, no. She has the gall to argue with me over certain points that seem, from her superficial point of view, debatable. For example, she claims that my defense in the hand shown below was not the best possible. Lousy was the word she indelicately used. I appeal to you to put her in her place, although heaven knows who is to keep her there! The hand was:

"I sat East. My little dandelion, West, opened the heart queen. The king covered, and I won. As you can see, there was only one heart missing and, not being Merlin the magician, I didn't know where it was. It looked to me that the best chance to defeat the contract was to cash the heart jack and, assuming declarer followed suit, to lead another heart which would either give my angel an over-ruff, or promote a trump trick in her hand by causing declarer to ruff high. Of course, my play didn't work. Declarer ruffed the heart jack, drew trumps, knocked out my diamond ace, and finally lost only one club trick.

"I would like your judgment on my reasoning, however. Of course, if by any remote chance I was wrong, you'd better not print this letter as it would only cause additional swelling in the already swollen heads of feminine players.

"Trustingly yours,
R. R. W., Boston."

The last sentence of my correspondent's letter is hereby ignored. I refuse to stultify myself even in th name of sex loyalty.

Mr. R. R. W.'s play was exactly what his wife called it! Granting that he could not know who held the missing three of hearts, there still was no excuse for his laying down the jack. If declarer had another heart it hardly could escape. There was no suit in dummy upon which to throw it. East should have shifted to the club jack as fast as he could get the card out.

Incidentally, the hand is much more interesting from declarer's angle than from the defenders'. Declarer made a futile and fatal play when he covered the heart queen. He should not have covered and then no argument could have arisen from the defenders. Failure to cover would render the defenders helpless. If East overtook with the ace and shifted to the club jack, declarer could discard a losing club on the established heart king. Whereas, if the heart queen were permitted to hold, declarer could not be stopped from establishing his diamond suit before losing club control, and this would have permitted a club discard from dummy, so that, in all, declarer could have lost only one heart, one diamond and one club.

CLARK PREDICTS $8.40 TAX RATE FOR 1937 BILLS

12 Pct. Drop Based on Gain in Personalty.

Cook county personal property assessments for 1937, completed yesterday by the staf of Assessor John S. Clark, totaled $780,496,637. This is an increase of 57 per cent over the 1936 total of $496,611,801.

On the basis of an increase of $239,321,944 in the personalty valuations within the city of Chicago, Mr. Clark estimated that the 1937 tax rate in the city will be $8.40 on each $100 of assessed valuation. This will be a drop of 12 per cent from the 1936 rate, which reached the all-time high of $9.52 largely because the amount of taxable property carried on the assessment rolls decreased every year from 1928 to 1936.

Assessments by Towns.

Rogers Park.....	$ 7,520,295	$ 10,230,492

Country towns...	60,734,031	105,296,923

The 1937 assessments were the first on which the assessor had access to federal income tax returns as a source of information on taxpayer's holdings of stocks and bonds. Balance sheets filed by corporations in connection with their federal returns also made it possible to make more accurate appraisals of machinery.

Originally Mr. Clark estimated that use of the federal returns would add $400,000,000 to the county's assessment roll. The principal reason that the increase fell short of that figure, he said yesterday, was the fact, discovered from the federal returns, that the majority of the corporations in the county were already filing fair appraisals on their machinery and other personal property. Sixty per cent of the county's personal property taxes are paid by corporations.

Defends Appraisal System.

As work was completed on the personalty assessments, Mr. Clark made a statement defending his new appraisal system. Increasing the assessment rolls, he said, will not give tax spenders more money, because the majority of the large governments are now operating on pegged levies which give them a specified amount of revenue regardless of the amount of property assessed for taxation.

Furthermore, Mr. Clark asserted, the new system will not drive appreciable amounts of intangible property [stocks and bonds] away from Chicago, for the reason that wherever it was taken, the owner would run the risk of paying higher taxes than he has to pay upon the present assessment scale in Chicago.

Under the percentage debasements allowed in the present assessments, the owner of stocks or bonds pays a little less than 12 per cent of the income in personal property taxes. Related to the par value of the securities, however, the taxes are only .237 to .595 per cent of the principal.

Cites State Income Taxes.

"Intangible property cannot escape legal taxation in any state," said Mr. Clark. "Thirty-six states now have state income taxes, among them New York, with an 8 per cent maximum on net incomes. I have heard no one say that this tax has driven this kind of wealth out of New York. It must be remembered, also, that New York not only taxes income from stocks and bonds, but also taxes salaries, profits and every other kind of financial gain, which are not taxable in Chicago.

"I have talked in the last few months with hundreds of persons who are to be taxed for the first time on intangible properties. My employés have talked to thousands of them. They seem satisfied after proper comparisons are made with other states.

Out of the Frying Pan.

"Most of those who object say, 'Well, you won't catch me next year. I will file my income tax from my summer home. I will become a resident there.'

"In most instances their summer homes are in Wisconsin, which has a state income tax and otherwise demands much more from the taxpayer than we do here. Others, who threaten to establish residence at their winter homes in Miami, will learn that Florida levies a tax of 25 per cent on the principal of all intangibles, whether they are paying dividends or not. By use of income tax returns, Cook county is taxing only those securities which yield a return to the owner."

Begin Hearings Jan. 17.

The board of tax appeals will start holding hearings on complaints against the personalty assessments on Jan. 17. Last year the board received 2,315 personal property complaints, of which 614 were in the country towns. To date some 2,500 complaints have been received, with few filed as yet on the recently completed assessments for the south and west sides of Chicago. There are 998 complaints on file from country towns, with the filing period still open for New Trier and Evanston townships.

Sued Over Violin

Mrs. L. Ernest Walker of St. Louis and the valuable Stradivarius violin which Chicago music house is trying to recover by suit.

Exhibit A in the federal court before Judge William H. Holly yesterday was a Stradivarius violin. The suit causing its presence was instituted by Lyon & Healy, 243 South Wabash avenue, against Mrs. L. Ernest Walker of St. Louis, to foreclose on the violin. Mrs. Walker has filed a counter claim.

The violin, which was made in 1716 at Cremona, Italy, by Antonio Stradivari, was purchased by Mrs. Walker for her son, L. Ernest Walker Jr., in April, 1930, from Lyon & Healy. The price was $18,000 and Mrs. Walker paid $14,000 on the contract. Lyon & Healy now has the instrument. The company claims Mrs. Walker owes $6,500 on the contract, including interest.

In her counter claim Mrs. Walker, basing her contention on a Missouri law, asks that the company return three-fourths of the $14,000 she paid. The company seeks title to the violin so that it can be resold. Mrs. Walker would receive the proceeds of the sale in excess of the $6,500. Mrs. Walker is the wife of a St. Louis merchant. The son is a violinist with the St. Louis Symphony orchestra. The case was taken under advisement.

FOR LAKE TOWNSHIP

Heavy industry, including the stockyards packing plants, got the largest 1937 personal property assessments in the town of Lake, covering the southwest side of Chicago.

The total assessments increased 21.1 per cent, less than the average for the city. The 1937 total is $55,024,910 on 25,523 separate assessments, as against $45,428,260 on 21,546 assessments for 1936. Some of the larger industrial assessments follow, with an asterisk [*] denoting returns were filed and the symbol [†] that the companies were not assessed in this township last year.

Use of federal income tax returns as a source of information had little effect on the assessments in Lake township. None of the assessments against individuals reached $50,000. The total assessed value of intangibles held by individuals in the township was $3,807,069, as against $177,576 in 1936.

OFFICIALS TELL WHY RELIEFERS CAN'T TAKE JOBS

A joint explanation of why approximately 40,000 reliefers classified as employables on the rolls of the Chicago Relief administration cannot furnish labor needed to fill out WPA construction projects in Chicago was given yesterday by Commissioner Leo M. Lyons of the CRA and H. K. Seltzer, director of WPA district 3 [Chicago]. Between 3,000 and 5,000 laborers are needed to complete the quotas on projects obtained recently by Mayor Kelly.

Approximately 50,000 men and women were employed by WPA prior to the new projects obtained by the mayor. Thirty-eight thousand of them are men. Most of them are laborers. The new projects include work on the north half of the airport site, paving, sewer digging, and other labor work. Seven thousand men have been assigned so far to these projects.

12,000 Are Women.

"About 30 per cent, or 12,000, of the 40,000 employables now on the CRA rolls are women," Lyons said. "They are not, of course, certified for labor projects. Of the 28,000 men, we now have a list of approximately 2,000 certified and awaiting appointment to jobs. We have not spent the money to certify the rest because we knew that WPA would not accept them."

Seltzer said that WPA will not accept certification of the following classes of reliefers: Those who are not immediately available, because of sickness or some similar reason; men having part time work, because this would be calling men from private industry; aliens; persons who have private income equal to 50 per cent of their CRA budget; "and individuals so handicapped as to render their employment unsafe for themselves or for other workers."

Fear Menace to Others.

"Under the last classification, men with latent syphilis or latent tuberculosis are not certified, because they might menace the health of other workmen and the heavy work might endanger the sufferers themselves," said Carl Martini, chief certification officer of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

"Formerly we assigned white collar workers and other nonlaboring types of men to labor projects, but we don't do that any more," Seltzer said. "Those were the men who couldn't do the work and who became the shovel leaners. We are trying to get away from the shovel leaners, and we are getting some real work done."

5,000 Jobs Await Action.

Seltzer said white collar projects which will employ from 5,000 to 6,000 persons incapable of doing heavy labor are now in Washington awaiting approval of the WPA officials there.

Both Seltzer and Lyons said the best laborers have been drawn from the relief rolls and the remaining reliefers are principally marginal workers.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission will meet this afternoon to make allotments of the $2,900,000 of state relief funds for January. Lyons said that he could not determine how much of its own money Chicago will spend during the month until the CRA's needs are estimated before the commission tomorrow.

Burglar Awakens Girl, 14; She Screams; He Scrams

Shirley Brown, 14 years old, 1225 South Harding avenue, was awakened early yesterday to hear some one whispering a warning "sh." She saw a hatless man standing beside her bed. She screamed, arousing her sister, Phyllis, 11 years old, and their parents, Fred and Betty Brown. When the parents reached Shirley's room the man had fled. Fillmore police said they thought the man, who got in through a window, was a burglar who had stumbled against Shirley's bed.

2 Quiet Bandits Seize Dough at Pastry Shop

"Ssh! This is a stickup," whispered one of a pair of youthful gunmen to Miss Katherine Drakert, clerk at Staib's pastry shop at 4356 Irving Park boulevard, yesterday. "Keep quiet or you'll get shot." Then he turned to his companion: "The dough's in the till," he whispered. "Get it." The companion did, and the two boys left so quietly that the girl's mother, who lives in the rear, didn't know there had been a robbery.

PAROLEE HELD AS ROBBER.

Edward Jackson, 27 years old, paroled a year ago from Pontiac reformatory, was held last night in the Aurora jail. He was identified as the man who stole a taxicab in Aurora Thursday night and robbed three filling stations.

Singing Cowboy

JACK C. RUSSELL.

Jack C. Russell, 36 years old, who once was called the Singing Cowboy, wore a worried look, decorated by a gold tooth, yesterday as his troubles multiplied.

Russell was arrested Tuesday night after his wife, 6527 Kimbark avenue, complained he kept pointing a pistol at her. When they were married a year ago last Thanksgiving Mary defended him vigorously. The occasion for her defense was the visit of policemen to the wedding ceremony to ask Russell if he is the cowboy who did some robbing in the southwest and always left with a song on his lips. She now says he's their man.

Among the items of loot was an automobile. Yesterday United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker issued a warrant charging Russell, under the name of Oliver Lawrence Dressler, with interstate transportation of an automobile from Oklahoma.

MASKED GUNMAN IN INDIANA HOLDS UP CONGRESSMAN

Washington, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A masked bandit held up Congressman Arthur H. Greenwood and Mrs. Greenwood as they left their home to attend a dinner party tonight and robbed them of about $40.

Leveling a pistol, the robber got into the back seat of the Greenwoods' car as they prepared to drive away. He forced Greenwood to drive to a lonely district, get out of the car, and hand over his money.

The congressman refused to surrender his purse, protesting that it contained numerous papers of value only to himself. He removed the money—nearly $40—and handed it to the masked man, dropping some of it as he held it out. The bandit turned on the car's dome light, scooped up the money, and then forced Greenwood to get back into the car with his wife and drive away.

REVAMPED JURY SIFTS VICE SETUP IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A broad inquiry into vice, liquor, and gambling conditions in Minneapolis was launched late today by the Hennepin county grand jury. Between 50 and 75 persons, all claiming to have knowledge of violations, have been subpenaed for immediate testimony.

This action came after Peter F. Herrly, removed as foreman last week after an unprecedented statement to the press attacking public officials, had turned over to the jury a mass of information he had collected.

The jurors, working under a new foreman, Val Ness, scanned the communications received by Herrly during his foremanship and took immediate action. Among those ordered to appear were three University of Minnesota students and several clergymen.

MINNESOTA, INDIANA, PURDUE WIN; OHIO LOSES

Each Scores 278; Playoff Today.

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Horton Smith of Chicago and Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., came out of a scramble down the home stretch tied at 278 today for first place in the $4,000 Hollywood open golf tournament.

They will play another 18 hole round at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow for first prize of $750, the loser taking the $550 second money. In addition they will split half of the gallery receipts.

Smith, trailing Dodson by two strokes starting the final round, dropped a seven foot putt on the last green for a three under par 67 to force the playoff. Dodson scored a closing 69 after his morning 71 had sent him ahead of Smith.

Metz Finishes Third.

Dick Metz of Chicago, the 54 hole leader by one stroke, dropped back to third place in the afternoon with a 72 and a 280 total. Metz collected third prize, $400.

Craig Wood of Rumson, N. J., finished fourth at 281 and earned $350. Wood, tied for the lead last night, shot a 72 and a 71 today.

HARRIDGE ADDS RUE TO UMPIRE STAF FOR 1938

Acquisition of Joseph William Rue, an umpire, was announced yesterday by William Harridge, president of the American league. Rue is the third freshman member of the junior league staf and, as only two vacancies on the staf are known to exist, it is possible the arrival of Rue means another of the old-timers is to depart.

The two other newcomers are Eddie Rommel, former pitcher, from the International league, and William T. Grieve from the American association. Rommel and Grieve will take the places of William Dinneen, retired, and C. E. Johnston, transferred to the association.

Rue, who never has played professional baseball, began his umpiring career in the Virginia league in 1925, going to the American association the next season for a six year stay. He was a member of the Pacific Coast league staf from 1932 until returning to the association in 1935.

Planning a Fight for a Fight

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five local radio stations will pay the two Chicago baseball clubs $90,000 next season for broadcasting privileges, twice what it cost them last summer, which was the first season they were assessed. The Cub contracts are out for signature now and the White Sox's probably will be in the mail next week.

The higher payment this year is the result of the American league's deal with a Battle Creek cereal concern providing exclusive broadcasting rights with the league's clubs in five cities. This concern had offered $62,500 for exclusive rights to the White Sox broadcasts, using two local stations only, when Phil K. Wrigley, president-owner of the Cubs, demanded that the status quo of 1937 be maintained this season so far as Wrigley field was concerned.

Sox Revise 1938 Plans.

Through his intervention an agreement was reached whereby the White Sox deal for exclusive sponsorship was dropped, enabling all five stations, WGN, WBBM, WIND, WJJD, and WCFL, to make available both the White Sox's and Cubs' home schedule for commercial sponsorship as heretofore. Under the new price scale W-G-N will pay $15,000 to each club; WBBM, $17,500; WIND, WJJD, and WCFL share the remainder. The cereal maker, which used WJJD last year, has reserved time on the same station. The cereal maker which used WBBM last year will be back this year, alternating with an oil company.

W-G-N is negotiating with the same sponsor it had last year. WIND and WCFL have made no reports on their plans.

Cubs Plan Expansion.

While the Cubs will be receiving $45,000 from stations this season, Mr. Wrigley has committed himself to using all these funds to buy time on the stations to promote his team. Last year he used announcements on W-G-N and several other stations, as well as underwriting the Dugout Dope broadcast over WBBM and the re-creation at night of the Cubs' games, when they were on the road, over WIND This year he will have available twice the cash for these purposes.

A clause in the baseball broadcasting agreement for the forthcoming season provides that the advertising plugs may not be woven into the baseball play description.

Business Leaders Draft Plans to Bring Fight to Chicago

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's leading professional and business men yesterday came out of their collective corner fighting—fighting for the world's heavyweight boxing championship bout between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling. Our foremost citizens made it plain in their first gathering as the Citizens' committee, a newly formed organization, that they will do their utmost to beat other cities to the punch and bring the big fight to Soldiers' field next June.

The meeting of the committee, held at the Morrison hotel, produced a turnout surprising for a time of year in which annual meetings, inventories, and such are generally occupying all of the attention of the men who attended. More than 50 civic leaders, representing leading firms, business organizations, and hotels were present.

Clark Takes Charge.

Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois Athletic commission called the meeting to order, after which he turned the gavel over to Sheldon Clark, chairman of the Citizens' committee Mr. Clark promptly appointed yesterday's representatives and other business men invited, who had been unable to attend, as members of a permanent executive committee which will bend every effort to make Chicago the site of the championship battle.

Various members of the committee will then comprise deputations which will visit Mayor Kelly and Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, and present plans for bringing the fight to Soldiers' field.

Budd Offers Resolution.

Britton I. Budd, long one of Chicago's most enthusiastic fight followers, presented a resolution which was seconded by Thomas B. Hogan, and carried unanimously. It follows:

"Resolved: That this gathering of representative Chicago business men, in meeting assembled on Dec. 29, feel that in view of the many benefits accruing to merchants and business interest of our city, as well as affording a spectacle of international interest, go on record as heartily endorsing the efforts being made to bring the proposed Louis-Schmeling heavyweight championship fight to Chicago next summer."

Chairman Triner will present this resolution, together with telegrams from Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly expressing their hope that the fight may be brought here, to Promoter Mike Jacobs in New York on Jan. 7 at the time of the Freddie Steele-Fred Apostoli fight in Madison Square Garden. Triner said that Jacobs is expected to visit Chicago on or about Jan. 15. Asked whether Jacobs had been approached by any other cities, the chairman said that Philadelphia and Detroit had offered their stadia free, but that Jacobs himself was interested in holding the bout at Soldiers' field if it can be obtained for a reasonable rental.

Claim $5,000,000 Revenue.

A majority of those present yesterday spoke. Max Epstein, chairman of the board of the General American Transportation company, and one of Chicago's leading Jewish citizens, stressed the necessity of subjugating completely any controversy growing out of racial differences if the fight is brought here. Most of the speakers pointed to the tremendous geographical advantage held by Chicago, and the subsequent commercial benefits that naturally would follow. William Hennessy, secretary of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, said that the fight would bring Chicago $5,000,000 in business, approximately one-tenth of an entire year's revenue. He stated that Chicago played host to 824 conventions last year, about one-third of all of the conventions held in the country.

A PERFORMANCE IS ADDED TO ICE REVUE SCHEDULE

Chicago Stadium officials last night announced that an extra performance of Sonja Henie's Hollywood Ice revue will be presented Sunday afternoon starting at 2:15 p. m.

The added performance extends the revue's stay, the seventh and last performance originally having been scheduled for New Year's night. The extra performance was scheduled because of the heavy demand for tickets for other presentations of the revue.

TODAY'S GAMES.
3 p. m.—Calumet vs. Parker.
4 p. m.—Tilden vs. Tuley.
7 p. m.—Crane vs. Von Steuben.
8 p. m.—Harper vs. Farragut.

Calumet, defending champion, Parker, Tilden, Tuley, Crane, Von Steuben, Harper, and Farragut reached the quarter finals of the University of Chicago's holiday interscholastic tournament at the midway fieldhouse yesterday. Farragut completed the bracket by defeating Austin, 25 to 13, in the last game of the day's play. In the earlier evening games Harper beat Foreman, 43 to 28, and Von Steuben eliminated Bowen, 35 to 17.

The afternoon contests were fairly even except for that between Calumet and McKinley, in which the champions triumphed, 44 to 16. The third afternoon game between Tilden and Wells, last year's city champs, resulted in an upset when Tilden nosed out Wells, 32 to 30.

Harper Plays Farragut.

Four games will comprise the quarter finals today. Calumet, which has met little opposition so far, probably will receive a test when it meets Parker at 3 o'clock. The outstanding match of the day, however, is expected to be that between Harper and Farragut in the evening.

Capt. Harry Plahn, of Harper, set an individual scoring record for this year's tournament when he made 29 points in the first two rounds. Since both George Felt of Austin, and Harry Wroblewski of Foreman, his nearest competitors, are out of the running, as both Austin and Foreman were eliminated in the second round, Plahn is expected to retain his lead.

Bowen lost to Von Steuben, 35 to 17, in the opening game of the evening. By the end of the first half Von Steuben had built up a 14 point lead, which was increased in the third quarter. The scoring of Von Steuben was largely due to Ivan Hechtman and Harry Wolinsky who made 15 and 11 points respectively.

Plahn Sets Record.

Harper eliminated Foreman, 43 to 28, in one of the outstanding games yesterday. The first period ended in an 8 to 8 tie, but Harper led at the half and advanced still further in the third quarter, the score standing 30 to 16. Harry Plahn, Harper captain, scored 21 points, the record individual effort of the tournament.

Calumet, playing more impressively than in the first round, got off to a 16 to 1 lead in the first quarter. At the half its lead had increased to 24 to 6, and at the three-quarter mark it was 31 to 8. Sims of Calumet paced scorers with 14 points.

Calumet Perks Up.

Calumet exhibited some of the steadiest and most consistent play of the tournament. Its scores were largely setups made after carefully and steadily working the ball up to the basket.

The Lindblom-Parker contest resembled just another game in the first quarter, but the pace was increased in the second quarter which ended with Parker trailing 13 to 9. In the first half Lindblom kept Parker on the defensive most of the time. Putting on pressure in the third quarter, Parker shifted the fight to Lindblom and the period ended in a 15 to 15 tie. Close guarding early in the fourth quarter left the score unchanged until the last few minutes when Parker netted two more baskets and two free throws to Lindblom's single basket.

Wells led Tilden, 7 to 5, in the first

SEABISCUIT IS SCRATCHED FROM NEW YEAR STAKE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Seabiscuit has been weighted out of the $5,000 New Year handicap at Santa Anita horse racing park Saturday.

Owner C. S. Howard announced after the release of weights by Racing Secretary Webb Everett that he will not send Seabiscuit to the post carrying 132 pounds.

This was the impost handed the bay, which has captured eleven out of fifteen starts this year, won $168,589 in purses, and established Howard as the year's leading money winner.

Second high weight of the New Year field was assigned to Amor Brujo at 118 pounds. Next was He Did, Christmas handicap winner, at 117.

Escohigh Returns $571 for $2, a Record for 1937

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The long shot followers who invested $2 in the Woolford Farm's Escohigh in the sixth race at Tropical Park today collected $571 for each such investment, a new high for the year in the nation.

Escohigh, a filly, although in the money in her three previous starts at Riverside Park last June, was ignored by all save the most optimistic betters today. Under a clever ride by Jocky Schlenker, Escohigh broke fast, dropped behind for a few strides and then closed with a sprint which carried her past Maebob, another long shot, for a victory by two lengths.

Escohigh's prices for place and show were $121.40 and $47.80, respectively. She ran the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Minnesota and Stanford, exponents of two widely varied styles of basketball, both came from behind tonight to keep their New York records clean, the Gophers turning in a 36 to 31 decision over New York university after the west coast team had defeated Long Island university, 49 to 35.

As on Monday night, when Minnesota defeated Long Island and Stanford beat City college, more than 18,000 fans packed Madison Square Garden. They saw the little Gophers work deliberately to match New York university's deadly shooting from the free throw line.

N. Y. U. Just Doesn't Miss.

The Gophers, co-champions of the Big Ten, outscored N. Y. U. from the floor, 15 to 8, but found themselves handicapped as the New Yorkers made fifteen consecutive free throws.

Trailing, 17 to 14, at the half, Minnesota forged to the front after ten minutes of play in the final period and apparently was headed for an easy victory as Gordon Addington, Gordon Spear, George Nash, and John Kundla worked together to boost its margin to 30 to 20.

New York university struck back and, with a minute to play, trailed by only 3 points. Spear eased the tension with a field goal, however, and Kundla added the final point to keep the Big Ten five's record perfect for the year.

Gophers Work Together.

Minnesota's scoring was well divided, with Kundla accounting for 8 points, Addington 7, and Spear and Nash 6 each. Irwin Witty and Bernie Carnevale led the N. Y. U. attack with 7 and 6 points, respectively. Lineups:

INDIANA, PURDUE WIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Indiana's two visiting basketball teams, representing Indiana and Purdue universities, dealt the Southern California and U. C. L. A. another double dose of defeat tonight to carry off a perfect record in their round robin series here.

The Hoosiers whipped U. S. C., 42 to 39, in the thrilling opener, while Purdue's Boilermakers made a runaway of the finale to sink U. C. L. A., 63 to 39, before a gathering of 6,500.

Indiana had a tough time beating the Trojans, who made it a battle all the way. No more than four points separated the teams in the final five minutes of play, during which most of the evening's thrills were packed. But in the second game the fast breaking Purdue five made a runaway of it, piling up a 35 to 14 lead in the first half despite the use of numerous substitutes.

Andres Is Star.

Ernie Andres, Indiana guard, stood out, scoring five field goals and two free throws and holding Ralph Vaughn, Southern California's star forward, without a basket in the first half. Sharing scoring honors with Andres was Clem Ruh of the Trojans.

Indiana displayed a tight defense and with Jim Birr and Marv Huffman in the game dominated the play under both baskets. Birr made five field goals, three of them on tip-in shots.

Sines Paces Purdue.

The Boilermakers were led by Johnny Sines, who made seven field goals and a pair of free throws. Bob Calkins, forward, was high scorer for the Bruins with six baskets.

LATKO CLUB TO HAVE TEAM IN SILVER SKATES

Two Ice Meets Scheduled for This Week.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Henry Latko Skating club, which yesterday submitted the names of twenty-three boys who will compete in the Silver Skates Derbies, is the first Chicago team to file its entry for the twenty-first annual races at Garfield park Jan. 15 and 16. Other teams, of course, will send in their entries before the deadline Jan. 9, and in this group will be many squads from the playgrounds and parks which will not resume organized activities until after New Year's.

The Latko club is concentrating on the boys' midget, juvenile, and junior Derbies, although it will have contestants in all five of the boys' age divisions. Ten will skate in the junior class for boys 14 and 15 years of age.

Many Youngsters Enter.

The lower age classes always draw the bulk of the contestants if for no other reason than the absence of recognized stars, with the consequent free for all fight for silver skates. In the men's senior and boys' intermediate classes the ability of the skaters has been determined so that prediction of success can be made. This also is true of the girls' senior Derby.

Individual entries for the eight Silver Skates races are being received in large numbers daily. These also show a preference for the lower age divisions. Any boy and girl, if an amateur, may compete if an entry is filed before midnight Jan. 9. This is the only requirement.

Two Meets This Week.

While plans are being completed for the Silver Skates races, interest in skating centers on the two meets this week-end at Humboldt park. On Saturday the Sleipner A. C. will hold its forty-fifth annual Derby and on Sunday the Northwest club will be host to Chicago's skaters. A record entry of 400 is expected to compete on these two days.

The Northwest club, which won the first meet last Sunday, has nominated 75 contestants in the program of events. The Catholic Youth organization will be represented by 65 skaters and Tilden Tech will send 66 to Humboldt park. The close fight for points which at the end of the season will determine the Chicago championship team will be continued between the C. Y. O. and the Northwest Skating club.

Northwest Club Leads.

Northwest now leads, 520 points to 500, only because a mistake was made in placing last Sunday. This decision was protested by Coach Pete Miller of the C. Y. O., and while a picture of the finish upheld the protest and additional points were awarded, the previously announced order of finish was not changed as to points awarded. Regardless, Coach William Beck of the Northwest club is certain that his skaters can repeat their triumph over the C. Y. O.

In order to flash the results of each race to the crowd, after the finish, large cards will be handed to each skater, the winner bearing the card marked "1" and so on, and these skaters then will circle the course so that the order of finish can be seen.

Northwest Is Strong.

Northwest's strength rests on a quartet of class A stars led by Capt. Eddie Schroeder, member of the United States Olympic skating team. The others are Bob Sherman, Bob Heckenbach, and Clyde Ratza. Schroeder is not eligible to compete in Silver Skates as he won the men's senior championship in 1931 and this victory automotically has disqualified him from further competition. Previous Silver Skates champions may compete only when they move up to the next higher age class, but each year the men's senior and girls' senior title winners finish competition.

WRESTLER LANDS IN LAP; VICTIM SUES FOR $1,500

Toledo, O., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Walter F. Caldwell, manager of a downtown theater, values the use of his lap at $1,500, according to his suit filed in Lucas county Common Pleas court today. He has asked the court to establish the per-pound rate for sitting in his lap at $7.50.

The petition was the outgrowth of an incident of Nov. 25, when Ken Hollis, 200 pound wrestler, fell out of the arena in Civic auditorium and landed in Caldwell's lap.

CALIFORNIA HAS FIRST WORKOUT IN ROSE BOWL

Guard Gates as Bears Get Their Bearings.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—California held its first drill in the Rose Bowl today, and paid marked attention to the location and direction of the goal posts.

The last time California appeared in the Bowl one of the Bears made a never-to-be-forgotten run in the wrong direction, setting the stage for a Georgia Tech victory.

Guards on Gates.

That was eight years ago. The Bowl has been enlarged, and the turf replanted. But the positions of the goal posts have not been changed. One will be the right goal, the other the wrong. Coach Stub Allison wanted that distinctly understood today.

Guards stationed at the outside gates saw to it that the workout was private, and similar sentries patroled the Bowl's gates when Alabama added another drill to its busy schedule.

Alabama Stresses Passes.

Knothole observers are confident of one fact, however. Alabama hopes to counter California's power drives with a passing attack. It gained 517 yards on passes in the season just closed, and eight of the throws—five by Joe Kilgrow and three by Herky Moseley—ended in touchdowns.

California was not impressive on pass defense. Fully advised of the danger of Alabama's passes, the Bears have practiced hard to meet the challenge.

ALL-STARS EASE OFF

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Practice eased off today in the camps of the east and west football squads while rival coaches cast about for any stray psychological advantage prior to the New Year's day All-Star classic.

Coaches Orin Hollingbery and Biff Jones voiced the joint opinion: "Those eastern boys are so big and rugged they should be permitted to have only five players in the line and two in the back field. They should be odds on favorites to win. If they let us have the ball long enough we might be able to use all our plays."

For the eastern side, Coach Andy Kerr expressed belief "the west will put a lightning fast combination against us. If we're not on our toes they'll probably pass us right out of the stadium. Neither team should be a pre-game favorite."

MICHIGAN STATE WEARY

Coach Charles Bachman sent his players through a light but lengthy drill and instructed them to return for a brief workout tomorrow. Only a limbering up session is scheduled Friday.

Chief worry in the Spartans' camp was whether Carl Nelson, 208 pound end and star pass receiver, would be able to play. Nelson injured an ankle during practice at Gainesville and has been unable to practice since.

AUBURN GOES SOUTH

Being left behind tonight as the 35-man squad entrains, will be Billy Hitchcock, an outstanding half back in 1936 and a star until he was injured this season. He said a knee injury suffered at beginning of Orange Bowl practice caused him to drop from the team. Two workouts are planned in Miami.

BRONCO ROOTERS ARRIVE

The delegation, which the Santa Clara team left earlier in the day at Houston, Tex., for a workout tomorrow, was welcomed by several hundred New Orleans fans and a reception committee headed by President J. M. Cousins of the Midwinter Sports association, sponsor of the Sugar Bowl program.

L. S. U. STRESSES PASSES

Guy [Cotton] Milner showed complete recovery from sore back muscles during the drill.

Orlando Stevens, Former Bicycle Champion, Dies

San Mateo, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Orlando Stevens, 63, national sprints bicycle champion in 1899, died of a heart ailment here today. Stevens, born in Ottumwa, Ia., gained fame first as an amateur cyclist and then as a professional.

Jimmy Hull scored 12 points for Ohio State to take individual honors. Chet Carlisle, California center, was second with five baskets and one free throw.

Going into the second half trailing, 13 to 11, Ohio fought to a 17 to 15 lead, only to see the score tied at 17 all with 10 minutes to play.

Then California drew away with Lee Hunt and Ed Dougery accounting for five baskets to put the Bears ahead, 27 to 19, Hull dropping in a short shot in the meantime.

With five minutes to play the score was 28 to 24 for California. Then the Bears dropped in three more baskets to clinch the game.

Ohio State ran up a six point lead in the first nine minutes on two baskets by Hull and a pair of free throws by Sattler while California went scoreless.

DE PAUL VS. CENTENARY

Coach Tom Haggerty has given the De Paul players a rest following their arduous schedule of last week when they played three games in four days.

Centenary last season lost only one game in the S. I. A. A. conference race while scoring eleven victories. Five letter-winners from that squad are back and Coach Curtis Parker probably will start all of them. They include John Henry Ouzts, an end on the football team; Bill Snyder, a former Evansville, Ind., high school player; Pete Williams, Al Beasley, another football player, and John Lingo, three sport man.

N. U. LINEUPS SHIFTED

Northwestern and Notre Dame will provide an athletic touch to the New Year's eve celebration tomorrow night in their traditional basketball game at Patten gymnasium. It will be the second game of the season between the teams, the Irish having won the first contest a week ago by a score of 30 to 27.

Coach Dutch Lonborg has put the Wildcats through double workouts during the last week in an effort to add more scoring punch to the team. He also contemplates several lineup changes which he hopes will influence the team's scoring.

Jean Smith, lanky center, has been working out at a forward position this week, while Jake Nagode, his understudy, has moved into the regular pivot assignment. This change will not only give the Wildcats more height at the front line positions, but will give them the benefit of Nagode's accurate shooting ability.

The Wildcats will probably be without the services of Jim Currie, star guard, who is nursing a sprained ankle sustained in practice shortly before the Butler game. Currie has not practiced all week and it is likely that Bob Voigts and Ad Vance, the latter a sophomore, will be the starters at guard.

IRISH RETURN TO WORK

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame basketball squad went right back to work today in preparation for Friday's game with Northwestern at Evanston. The players passed up the usual rest following a hard game, the Irish having dropped a 33 to 32 overtime thriller to Illinois at Champaign last night.

Today's drill was light and it featured fundamentals, particularly free throw shooting. The Irish made only two in eleven attempts against the Illini, outscoring Illinois from the floor, 15 field goals to 11.

Kozeluh Arrives in U. S. to Take Job at Miami

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian tennis star, arrived here tonight aboard the liner Hamburg. After spending a few days here he will head for Miami where he has been engaged as a trainer.

Coaches Ask 2 Rules Changes to Aid Offense

New Orleans, La., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The nation's football coaches turned thumbs down today on any general revision of the rules, but suggested two changes which they said would make the game more spectacular through increased scoring.

Lou Little, Columbia university coach and chairman of the rules committee, which met today, said the group agreed on these recommendations:

1. That when the ball goes out of bounds or becomes dead within 15 yards of the side line, it be put in play 15 yards from the side line. The present rule provides that the ball be brought out 10 yards.

2. That a forward pass which "inadvertently" touches an ineligible man behind the line of scrimmage be called incomplete and counted as a down. Under present rules, when such a condition occurs, the offensive team loses the ball.

Rules in "Pretty Good Shape."

Little and Dana X. Bible, University of Texas coach, will present the suggestions to the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association when it meets Sunday at Edgewater Park on the Mississippi Gulf coast.

Bible, acting as spokesman for the coaches, said the majority thought the rules were in "pretty good shape."

"Chairman Little," he said, "sent out questionnaires to 600 coaches and received about 350 replies.

"Most of these expressed the belief that, from the standpoint of the coach, the present rules give him an opportunity for as diversified play as he wants.

"From the standpoint of the player the rules afford him as much protection as they possibly can. The replies said the rules also appeared satisfactory from the standpoint of officials.

Suggested Changes Help Offense.

"Both of our suggested changes are designed to help the offense.

Landsdowne Pins Williams in 14:36 at Rainbo Fronton

Jock Sutherland Denies Report He'll Leave Pitt

Informed that a Pittsburgh sports writer reported he would quit at the end of the next season Sutherland said at New Orleans, where he is attending a convention of the National Collegiate association:

"Pitt is my alma mater. If I ever leave, it will be with the deepest regret. If the university wants me to continue as its football coach, I will remain indefinitly."

Sutherland was reported to have lost favor with Chancellor John G. Bowman and other administrative officers at Pitt. Reports added that Sutherland was "virtually signed" to succeed Howard Jones at the University of Southern California in 1939, but U. S. C. sources declined comment on the report.

Sutherland said:

"I feel that any mention of a disagreement between myself and Chancellor Bowman is unfair to both the chancellor and myself. It does not give either of us an opportunity to defend himself and it implies something that is not true. Chancellor Bowman has the task of conducting the affairs of the entire university; my job is to coach the football team, and it certainly would be up to Chancellor Bowman, not me, to express any dissatisfaction which possibly could arise. None has, to my knowledge."

LOYOLA, DE PAUL QUINTETS RENEW RIVALRY JAN. 19

Chicago's most bitter rivals on a basketball court, De Paul and Loyola university squads, will meet on the night of Jan. 19 at the Chicago Stadium in a game sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization.

These two schools, which each season turn out some of the outstanding teams in the country, will take up where they left off last March when they battled through a full game and two overtime periods before Loloya won by a score of 46 to 43.

Bringing the two quintets together last spring marked the first time that the two schools had met since 1931, when De Paul defeated Loyola in the first game on the schedule, 22 to 15, and Loyola won the second contest, 24 to 20.

Barlund Hammers Lovell; Wins 10 Round Decision

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Gunnar Barlund of Finland handed Alberto Santiago Lovell, Argentine heavyweight, a thorough whipping to win a ten round decision at the Hippodrome tonight. Lovell weighed 186½ pounds; Barlund 200.

Gillespie Wins Junior Tennis Debut, 6-2, 6-0

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Three unseeded players and the five top ranking stars advanced today into the quarter-final round of the national junior indoor tennis meet in the 7th Regiment armory.

The unseeded players who won were Henry C. Van Rensselaer of Kent school, Melvin Schwartzman of Poly Prep, and George Kraft of Erasmus Hall High in Brooklyn.

Van Rensselaer put out William Umstaedter of Milbourn, N. J., boys' champion a year ago, 6-3, 6-4. Schwartzman's victim was Malcolm Weinstein of Penn State, No. 7. The score was 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Kraft disposed of David S. Johnsen of Washington, D. C., 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Again setting the pace for the seeded players' advance into the round of eight was William Gillespie of Scarborough school of Atlanta, Ga. The interscholastic champion whipped Emerson E. Chapin of the University of Rochester, 6-2, 6-0, and tomorrow will meet Robert Low of Stanford university, who won from Robert Dunn of Merion, Pa., by the same scores.

Marvin Kantrowitz, University of Texas, and Joseph Fishbach, St. John's university, who precede Low at Nos. 3 and 4 on the seeded list, also scored straight set triumphs. Kantrowitz eliminated Samuel Abelson of Philadelphia, 6-2, 6-4, and Bernard Jacoby of Evander Childs High, New York, lost, 6-2, 6-1, to Fishbach.

Hawks Battle Wings Tonight on Detroit Ice

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks and the Detroit Red Wings battle tomorrow night for the second time this season at the Olympia. Both teams will be full strength. In their last meeting here the Hawks played without their star right wing, Mush March, and the Wings without their defense man, Ebbie Goodfellow.

The Wings won their last game with the Hawks at the Olympia, 4 to 1. This stands as the high score of the season for the Detroit team. The Hawks have defeated the Wings two games out of three played

Since the last meeting between the teams Manager Jack Adams of Detroit has done a lot of replacing. In tonight's game the Hawks will see two former Boston players in Red Wing uniforms. Alex Motter, a 23 year old center who played a part of two seasons with the Bruins, will perform in the pivot position between two rookies brought up from the Pittsburgh Hornets, the Wings' farm.

Mother of Berlenbach, Former Boxer, Is Dead

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, former world's light heavyweight boxing champion, hurried here by plane from Chicago today in a vain attempt to reach his 75 year old mother, Mrs. Katherine Berlenbach, before she died. Widow of William Berlenbach, who came here from Germany 42 years ago, she passed away at the Astoria, Long Island, family home.

"I'm more convinced than ever that
J. J.'s the Sportsmen's drink"
Says Jimmy Powers, SPORTS EDITOR
(A year ago Mr. Powers, sports editor of America's largest newspaper, said, "Of course, not all of the sportsmen I know drink J. J., but it's way ahead of any other.")
"J. J. may or may not be the best whiskey in the world—but it's the best I know of," says Harold McCracken, famous explorer, an authority on Alaskan Brown Bear.
"After a day offshore I don't know of anything that goes better than a nip of J. J. before dinner," says Capt. Walter Willis, authority on deep sea fishing from Florida to the Cape.
"After fighting icy streams for hours, I don't know of any better pre-dinner drink than a highball or Old-Fashioned made of J. J.," says John Alden Knight, noted angler and inventor of the Knight Solunar Table, a time table which shows when fish will feed.
"J. J.'s a he-man's drink. I'm sticking to it because it seems like good, honest stuff—about the best I've found," says Dave Irwin, young explorer who walked 2,000 miles alone across the Arctic.
"John Jameson is first choice with sportsmen, here and in the British Isles. It's first choice with me, too," says Freeman Lloyd, one of the world's foremost authorities on dogs, a frequent judge at kennel club shows.
"For me it's J. J. or nothing—I've got to be fussy about what I drink," says Charles H. Toothe, top flight skeet star, who has failed only once to score better than 91 with a 12-gauge gun.
Why sportsmen agree on J. J.
It's because of the honest way it's made: of barley, wheat and oats and nothing else whatever but water and time. It's made by the traditional pot still method which we've used for 150 years because we think it's the best way to make whiskey. It's aged 7 years in wood and never "hurried" by so much as a day. It's a hearty, honest, straightforward whiskey. FOR A CHANGE, TRY A IRISH OLD-FASHIONED.

TOURISTS LEAD LIFE OF EASE IN TRAILER CAMP

Sarasota Spa Laid Out Like City.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Trailer Camp, Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—While preparing THE TRIBUNE automobile to tow a trailer to the south, friends seemed to be curious about the daily routine in camp such as this one. I can answer some of these questions now.

One question was about toilet facilities. Some of the expensive trailers here are equipped with chemical lavatories. On the road there's a gasoline station every few miles, and in the good camps there is modern plumbing.

Some of the expensive trailers also have shower baths. They receive little use because the good camps have community showers. A pair of rubber beach shoes furnishes ample protection from infection.

Sinks Drain Outside.

Kitchen sinks all drain outside. In most northern camps this water, dirty with grease and soap suds, contaminates the ground. Florida law requires that there be a receptacle for this waste. At Sarasota a hole under each trailer accommodates it and is treated with lime once a week.

This city on wheels is a well regulated one. The population today is nearly 1,000, a slight increase from a year ago today, and in a month it will be quadrupled during the convention of Tin Can Tourists, Inc. At this convention a year ago there were 4,003 persons in 1,589 trailers.

The town is laid out in streets. THE TRIBUNE trailer is in lot 7 of 9th street. This is the exclusive section, where residents are paying a higher rate to receive sufficient electricity for heating, cooking and lights. The rate here, for two persons, is $1 a night or $3.50 a week.

Rates Vary with Conveniences.

In a cheaper neighborhood, where the fuses won't permit more current than is needed for lights and radio, the rate is 65 cents a night or $2 a week. There are a few lots without electrical connections for 50 cents a night or $1.50 a week.

Ice and newspapers are delivered to the door. Electric ice boxes are not a success, because they are useless while on the road. Mail is delivered to the camp headquarters.

A laundry offers 24 hour service. Many of the women, however, also use the camp's community laundry, which they call the information bureau, because the women gossip as they wash and iron.

Policeman Always on Duty.

A policeman is on duty at all hours. His main job is to answer questions and to keep out peddlers and solicitors. A majority of the trailers are here for three or four months, and fishing tackle, lanterns, extension light cords, gasoline cans and other odds and ends are stored under them in a manner that would delight a sneak thief. But there isn't any stealing among these folk.

For entertainment there are shuffle board and horse shoe tournaments, card parties and dances. Checkers are played in the recreational hall with a board and with pieces two or three times the ordinard size. This assists kabitzing. The beach is a few minutes' drive. Pan fish, trout, and sailor's choice can be caught on the causeway over Sarasota bay.

And then these middle aged folk enjoy just sitting and visiting in their canvas chairs under awnings stretched from their trailers. It's not a bad life for a couple with secure income of $100 or $150 a month.

DISAGREES WITH DR. HUTCHINS IN TEACHING IDEAS

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—With an attack on what he termed cloistered theories of Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, Prof. Frederick G. Nichols of Harvard in an address today went a step farther to demand education in economics for all public school pupils.

"When President Hutchins demands what we used to call mental education, which conceded the brains to be a set of faculties to be developed by the study of classics and science just as muscles are trained, he is expressing an old theory which has been tried out and which has never worked," Prof. Nichols declared.

"One more thing—and Dr. Hutchins will not approve—we have never paid any attention to economic education in the schools. I am not saying that pupils must be taught how to make more money, but rather that they be taught to be intelligent about their personal economic life."

OBITUARIES

DON MARQUIS, 59, PLAYWRIGHT AND COLUMNIST, DIES

Poet Loses Fortune in Long Illness.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Don Marquis, poet, playwright, and columnist, who delighted millions with his whimsical creations, died in his Forest Hills home early this morning after a long illness. He was 59 years old.

Don Marquis.

Mr. Marquis was stricken with paralysis two years ago. In February, 1936, a hemorrhage affected his speech and the motor centers of his brain.

Death came as friends were preparing a benefit entertainment for him, his long illness having depleted his funds.

His Fame Linked to "Archy."

Marquis once mocked himself that his best chance of being remembered was through his cockroach "Archy," which made its appearance in a newspaper column and rode to fame through several books.

Rivaling Archy in luring fame and cash for Marquis was "The Old Soak," a bibulous fellow who also began his career in a newspaper column and wound up in a hit play.

Some found Marquis at his best in his serious poems, such as "Dreams and Dust." Others remember most vividly "The Dark Hours," his play of the betrayal, trial, and crucifixion of Jesus.

Born in Illinois.

The chunky fellow who wrote these things and of whom these things were said was born in Walnut, Ill., July 29, 1878. He was christened Robert Perry Marquis, but in boyhood he was called "Rob" and later "Don." He liked the name Don, so he adopted it, and in Who's Who he is listed as "Marquis, Don[ald Robert Perry]."

He was, at one time or another, school teacher, drug clerk, clothing salesman, book agent, farm hand, waiter, art student, and barnstorming actor. But mostly he was a newspaper man.

His first column was "The Sun Dial" on the old Evening Sun, and after that "The Lantern" on the Herald Tribune.

UNION OF MAIN VAN SWERINGEN LINES APPROVED

Chesapeake & Ohio to Hold Control.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Consolidation of three of the railroads in the rail system of the late Van Sweringer brothers of Cleveland, O., was given final approval by the interstate commerce commission today. The I. C. C. gave assent to the application of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, key line in the Van Sweringen system, to acquire control of two other Van Sweringen lines, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis [the Nickel Plate] and the Erie railroad, through the purchase of stock.

George D. Brooke, new C. & O. president.

Although the I. C. C. is just now giving its formal approval to consolidation of the three properties, they have been working together for many years through the interest of the Chesapeake corporation in the three lines.

In Harmony with Plan.

The I. C. C. earlier this month announced that the proposed acquisition by the Chesapeake and Ohio of the Nickel Plate and Erie was in "harmony with and in furtherance of the commission's plan for the consolidation of railway properties."

The Chesapeake and Ohio operates about 3,106 miles of track, the Erie 2,284 miles, and the Nickel Plate 1,705, or a total of about 7,000 miles.

The interstate commerce commission also approved a loan of $6,006,000 to the Erie railroad from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, ruling that on a basis of present and prospective earnings the Erie could reasonably be expected to meet its fixed charges without reductions due to possible future reorganization.

The Erie had requested the loan for a three year term to pay various obligations falling due between Dec. 15 and April 1.

Brooke Elected President.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway today elected George D. Brooke as president to succeed the late W. J. Harahan, who died recently. Brooke, who has been a railroad man for thirty-five years, had been executive vice president of the road.

WHEAT PRICES SAG TO LOWEST LEVEL IN MONTH

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yesterday.	Tuesday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .90¼	$ .91½	$1.33⅜
Corn	.61¾	.61¼	1.08⅜
Oats	.30¾	.30½	.51⅜
Rye	.71	.71½	1.18⅜
Soy beans	.96	.97¾	1.55

Wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade declined 2 cents a bushel at the weakest time yesterday to the lowest level since Nov. 30. General selling was induced by continued lack of export demand and uneasiness created by an early recession in securities. Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down.

May wheat touched 89⅝ cents on the break, but recovered part of the loss later due to firmness in the December future in the Winnipeg market and relative strength in corn, and closed 1¼ cents lower. July wheat was ¾ cent lower.

Sell Wheat, Buy Corn.

Selling of wheat against purchases of corn futures has become a popular spread lately and has added to the pressure on the former grain. At the close yesterday May wheat was at 28⅞ cents a bushel premium over the same delivery of corn, compared with 36½ cents premium on Dec. 8.

Corn futures declined about 1 cent a bushel early in sympathy with wheat, but buying by spreaders and by houses with southwestern connections, which brokers regarded as a reflection of export business, absorbed the offerings, and a rally followed. Closing trades showed little change from Tuesday. An advance of about 2 cents a bushel in Buenos Aires corn futures and cables telling of continued drouth in Argentina helped the rally.

Bids for Cash Corn.

Bids of 8 cents a bushel over the May delivery were made for No. 2 yellow corn and 6¼ cents over the future was bid for No. 3 yellow corn delivered at gulf ports.

There was nothing in the general run of the news to account for the sharp break in wheat futures, and brokers generally attributed it to liquidation by holders who had become discouraged over the failure of prices to advance. Dry weather reports were received from the southwest, where a wide area is said to be in need of surface moisture. According to Kansas grain men who were in Chicago, the traders doubt that the acreage in Kansas was as large as recently estimated by the government.

Monopoly Scare Fomenter Blames Business for Slump

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, who, since his recent sojourn in Florida fishing waters with President Roosevelt, has suddenly developed into the administration's chief fomenter of monopoly scares, in a speech here today sought to shift the blame for the business recession from the Washington administration to "monopolies." Big business, he said, has been on a "sit-down" strike against the administration.

The address was made before the American Political Science association. It was Jackson's second blast against unidentified "monopolies" in four days.

Sees Big Business Aided.

During the course of his vituperative speech, Jackson made the rather astonishing assertion that the Roosevelt administration to date has benefited big business far more than small merchants, small manufacturers, or even labor.

"The unvarnished truth," he said, "is that the government's recovery program has succeeded nowhere so effectively as in restoring the profits of big business. Labor has had no such advance. The small merchant has had no such prosperity. The small manufacturer has had no such advantage.

"The only just criticism that can be made of the economic operations of the New Deal is that it set out a breakfast for the canary and let the cat steal it. It did not sufficiently guard recovery from the raids of the monopolist. It is this sort of thing which makes their assault upon the administration and their general strike against the government so unjustifiable."

That Jackson was gunning for the General Motors-Du Pont interests was apparent when he singled out General Motors executives for an attack on high salaries. First expressing a dislike for indulging in "personalities," Jackson went on to recall the previously published salaries of Chairman Alfred P. Sloan and President William S. Knudsen.

Follows General Motors Layoff.

This attack followed by one day Knudsen's announcement that because of declining sales General Motors was forced to lay off 30,000 workers and place most of the remaining 205,000 on half time. Knudsen had said that one of the chief causes of the present recession was a rise in price levels early this year which had been so steep that industry had been unable to digest it.

Big business, Jackson said, wishes "to liquidate the New Deal and throw off all governmental interference with their incorporated initiative and their 'aristocratic anarchy.'"

In support of his contention that big business had benefited greatly under the present administration, Jackson cited comparisons of 1932 and 1936 earnings of some of the larger corporations.

Jackson said that the "wrath of the people" had been rising as a result of what he called the "sitdown strike" by business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Some of the leading issues were bid up fractions to more than 3 points on the stock exchange today, but the majority closed in the minus column after milling about in a narrow price range.

Of 986 issues traded, 302 advanced, 482 declined and 202 were unchanged. The strongest issues were those representing war material producers, such as steels and aircrafts. Other heavy industrials joined the rise, however.

Traders presumably ignored the second attack on business by Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson in their efforts to obtain issues at the low levels prevailing after the two recent sharp setbacks.

Trading Pace Quickened.

The upswing of the leading stocks came in another fast trading session, volume for the day reaching 2,477,290 shares, compared with 2,300,000 shares in the preceding session.

Copper shares helped the steel and aviation issues lift the industrial division, for which the Dow-Jones average climbed to 120.15, up 1.22. Rails closed irregularly higher, while utility issues kept close to previous finals.

Cross-currents were at work throughout the session, with many issues in the same department moving independently of others. The opening was soft for the most part, with caution the dominant note. Prices chruned about indecisively as traders waited to hear another blast by Jackson against trusts and business in general. After his remarks had been digested the market gathered momentum and pushed to its best levels of the day.

Inflation Fears Cited.

Fear of inflation was advanced by some observers as the underlying reason for the increased demand for stocks, with the rearmament program and hints of increased government expenditures this winter also contributing.

Bethlehem was outstanding in the steel division, in anticipation of navy orders. The stock pushed ahead to 57½ for a 3½ point gain. United States Steel common and Republic gained less, the first named adding 1¾ points and Republic ½ point.

Advances of fractions to almost 2 points were common in leading copper and aviation issues. Anaconda, Kennecott, Boeing, and Douglas were most prominent in these groups.

Stock Market Fee Increase Gets Approval

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A boost of about 11 per cent in brokers' charges to customers for the purchase and sale of securities was authorized today by the governing committee of the New York Stock exchange. The action followed two weeks of balloting on the question by members.

A majority of members voted for the increase, but because the majority was not large enough under the exchange's rules the governing committee acted as arbiter and ruled the amendments covering the increases formally approved. They will become effective Jan. 3.

In the fee amendment provision also was made for an increase of approximately 5 per cent in the charges of members for execution of orders for other members.

By a vote of 590 to 341 the members adopted an amendment under which members shall make a monthly service charge on small and inactive accounts. Amount of the charge is left to the discretion of the brokers.

The number of members who voted on the fee increase proposal was only about 30 per cent of the whole membership, which is 1,375.

The new schedule provides, on 100 share lot transactions, for a minimum charge of 3 cents a share on issues selling between 50 cents and $1; 5 cents a share on those between $1 and $2, and an additional 1 cent a share for each $1 increase in value, up to 13 cents for shares between $9 and $10.

That becomes the base rate to which is added 1 cent for each additional $10 of the price of the share.

For ten share unit stocks the method is the same, but starts at 6 cents a share for those between $1 and $2.

Also approved was a provision that members who hold memberships in other exchanges may charge whatever rates other markets prescribe.

1½ BILLION FEDERAL DEFICIT IS FORECAST BY EX-TREASURY AID

A federal deficit of 1½ billion dollars in the current fiscal year and a deficit of more than a billion dollars in the next fiscal year were forecast yesterday by E. C. Alvord, Washington tax attorney, who was assistant to the late Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. Alvord spoke before a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Palmer house.

He further predicted that the government debt will pass 40 billion dollars in 1940. The government is spending more money than could possibly be raised through taxation, he asserted, even if a 5 per cent sales tax were imposed and the present income tax base were broadened.

COMPANIES REPORT EARNINGS RISE, BUT TAXES ALSO MOUNT

The Dodge Manufacturing company and the Cherry-Burrell corporation yesterday reported increased earnings for the year ended Oct. 31, 1937, over the preceding fiscal year.

The Dodge Manufacturing company, Mishawaka, Ind., maker of mechanical power transmissions, reported net income, after all charges, of $322,696, equal to $4.03 a share on the common stock, against $199,329, or $2.73 a share, for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1936.

G. C. Miller, president, called attention to the rising taxes, pointing out that in 1936 the company's bill for federal, state and local taxes was equal to 91 cents a share, but in 1937 it was equal to $2.01 a share.

Net earnings of the Cherry-Burrell corporation, Chicago, manufacturer of dairy equipment, and its Canadian subsidiary for the year ended Oct. 31, 1937, were $1,143,774, against $985,447 for the preceding fiscal year. Net income for the 1937 period was equal to $2.41 a share, against $2.05 a share in the 1936 period.

Total taxes applicable to the 1937 fiscal year were $419,782, equal to 94 cents a share, the company said.

Gen'l Motors' LaGrange Unit Avoids Layoff

The layoff of 30,000 General Motors corporation workers on Jan. 1 will not affect employment at the big Electro-Motive corporation plant near LaGrange, it was said yesterday at offices of the company. Electro-Motive is the only Illinois subsidiary of General Motors, and employs about 1,200 men in the LaGrange plant.

Electro-Motive officials said the plant has established a 40-hour work week, in place of the former 45-hour week, to spread employment and keep its working force intact. This subsidiary has built most of the Diesel-electric locomotives pulling new streamlined trains about the country, and its business was not hit in the same way as other General Motors plants by the decline in auto sales.

Ask Knudsen to Testify.

Along with the further statement from General Motors yesterday that the extent of layoffs in individual plants will depend on local conditions came word from Washington, D. C., that William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, has been asked to testify next week before a special senate committee on unemployment.

First witnesses slated to appear before the committee Tuesday are John D. Biggers, director of the unemployment census; Isador Lubin, director of the bureau of labor statistics; W. Frank Persons, director of the United States employment service, and Leon Henderson, Works Progress administration economist.

Eccles to Be Heard.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, Chairman Altmeyer of the social security board, Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board, and Paul Rausenbosh of the Wisconsin unemployment compensation division are listed for appearance on Wednesday.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Philip Murray, vice chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. are to testify Thursday.

Commodities.

Economists take careful note of the trend of commodity prices in making forecasts of business trends. The demand for staples naturally is indicative of the degree of industrial activity, and a rising commodity market frequently means that manufacturers believe the prospects are good for larger sales in the following months.

Commodity prices have had violent price swings this year. After moving upward in late 1936 and marking time during the first two months of 1937, prices began a sharp break which extended until mid-June and erased many of the gains made earlier in the year. Prices recovered moderately until mid-July, moved irregularly until early August, and then began another sharp decline.

The break during the autumn was so severe that several cash staples by early December were selling around half their 1937 high prices. Cash cotton, for example, fell from a high for the year of 15¼ cents a pound to a low of 7.79 cents, and cocoa fell from 13.4 cents to 5.54 cents a pound.

In recent weeks there has been moderate recovery in commodity prices, particularly in hides, cotton, and some cereals.

GROUPS OWNING ASHLAND BLOCK ASK BANKRUPTCY

The Clark-Randolph Building corporation, owner of the Ashland block, 155 North Clark street, one of the city's oldest skyscrapers, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court yesterday, listing liabilities of $1,337,435 and assets of $38,274. Practically all of the liabilities are secured by the real estate collateral.

At the same time the Ashland corporation, 231 South La Salle street, the parent company, also filed a voluntary petition, scheduling $1,987,380 in liabilities and assets of $867,825.

A similar petition was filed on behalf of the Clark-Randolph Building Site Trust and the Sixty-six West Randolph Building corporation, involving the site on which the building is located.

FEW COMPANIES PLAN TO ISSUE NEW SECURITIES

Registrations of new securities with the Securities and Exchange commission during November dropped to the smallest total since January, 1935, a compilation made yesterday by the SEC disclosed. The total for November was only $38,159,000, against $127,621,000 in October, and $266,026,000 in November, 1936.

The Southern Railway company yesterday asked the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue 1,298,200 shares of no par value common stock and to exchange them for an equal number of outstanding common shares of $100 par.

The Vanette Hosiery Mills, Dallas, Tex., has filed a registration statement covering 40,000 shares of $2.50 par value common stock.

EMPLOYERS' TAX TO AID IDLE IS DUE ON JAN. 29

Employers must make their remittances for 1937 under the unemployment compensation law by Jan. 29 or they will lose their 90 per cent credit against the federal unemployment compensation tax, Martin P. Durkin, director of the Illinois department of labor, announced yesterday.

The social security act requires that the state contribution be paid on or before Jan. 30 in order to receive the federal credit. As Jan. 30, 1938, falls on a Sunday, remittances must be paid on or before Jan. 29, Durkin said. Employers who do not pay their state contribution in time to qualify for the federal credit will have to pay almost double the amount for unemployment compensation purposes.

ROPER CALLS '37 A 'BETTER' YEAR DESPITE SLUMP

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, in a year-end statement, said today that despite the current recession, "the composite economic picture for 1937 on the whole will show better results than in 1936 and the achievement of further economic progress."

Roper said there are several elements of strength in the national economy act not found in past recessions. One of these, he asserted, is the soundness of the banking structure. Roper said psychological fears are retarding recovery, and added:

"As to the fear of war, it is difficult to allay anxiety. While it is not possible to define next year's business prospects except as they might be influenced by known facts, it is historically true that reconstruction and replacement follow losses created by destruction and obsolescence. The need in the meantime is for patience and control of those forces that would tend to destroy our solidarity at home."

SURFACE LINES TO GET 12 NEW MOTOR BUSES

A fleet of twelve motor buses built by the Ford Motor company for the Chicago Surface lines will be delivered to the street railway company this morning. The buses, which will have a capacity of twenty-six passengers each, will go into operation Jan. 17 on Ogden avenue between Monroe street and Lincoln park.

Among the innovations will be a new system of air conditioning ventilation. The city of Detroit now has more than 1,000 Ford built buses on its streets, but this is the first of the type for Chicago.

Publicity Man Promoted to SEC Executive Post

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Edwin A. Sheridan, publicity director for the Securities and Exchange commission, today was named executive assistant to the commission's chairman, succeeding Milton Katz. Katz was appointed special counsel in matters involving the public utility holding company act. James Allen, assistant publicity director, was named director.

Lenders on Farm Land Take 2 Million Acres Annually

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Government and private lending agencies have been acquiring title to almost 2,000,000 acres of farm land annually during the last three years, the agriculture department reported today. These agencies now own about 38,145,000 acres.

low level. However, they firmed as the day progressed and at the close several leaders were able to show good gains. Foremost was Atchison with a 3⅜ point net advance.

Motors again were weak and in plentiful supply. Both General Motors and Chrysler made new lows during the session, although the latter steadied to close unchanged at less than 1 point above its 1937 low mark.

Chemical and farm implement shares leaped when demand outstripped supply. Allied Chemical jumped 2 points and du Pont 3¼ points. Case, International Harvester, and Allis Chalmers advanced an average of 2 points.

Oils were mixed, with Texas corporation a feature on the upside on a 1¾ point advance. Rubbers were not much changed. Gold mining stocks closed unchanged to fractions lower. Building shares were buoyant in limited trading, U. S. Gypsum vaulting almost 6 points and Johns Manville 1¼ points.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Substantial buying of some of the low and medium priced railroad issues helped counteract deep recessions in a large assortment of industrials and other trading favorites in the bond market today.

Lively interest was displayed in the new $5,625,000 issue of 4½ per cent serials brought out by a syndicate headed by the First Boston corporation, at 99½. It was the first time in months a comparable loan had been marketed.

Prominent corporate gainers included St. Paul 5s, up 1 point at 10¾, Northwestern 4¾s, up ⅝ at 5⅜; Allegheny stamped 5s, up 1½ at 61½, and Missouri Pacific 5s, up 1¼ at 20.

Losers of a point or more included Great Northern 4s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, New York Central 5s, Penn Dixie Cement 5s, Southern Railway 4s, U.S. Rubber 5s, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube 4s.

Government bonds were less active. Gains ranged up to 10-32 of a point and losses extended to 7-32.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks moved lower yesterday in expanding trade. Of the 145 issues traded 75 declined, 17 advanced, and 53 remained unchanged. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of 20 stocks was off 0.07 of a point.

Middle West Corporation was the most active, closing unchanged at 5¼ on a turnover of 8,350 shares. Chicago Corporation rose ⅛ on sales of 7,100 shares, closing at 1⅞.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks continued to decline yesterday. Northern Trust stock was quoted $5 to $15 lower by various dealers, American National unchanged to $5 lower, Terminal National unchanged to $3 lower, National Builders $3 to $5 lower, Chicago Title and Trust $2 lower, and City National $5 lower.

FEDERAL BUREAU TO CONTROL COAL TRADE IN ILLINOIS

Price Fixing Hits State's Natural Advantages.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Coal mined and sold in Illinois on Jan. 3 will pass into the control of a federal bureau—the national bituminous coal commission—as the result of an order issued on Dec. 21 by the commission. This order places coal produced and consumed within the state under the same rules that control the movement and sale of coal in interstate commerce.

Through the order enforcement of the commission's schedule of minimum prices for bituminous coal at the mines is assured for coal to be sold within the state as well for coal to be consumed outside the state.

The effect of the order, according to retail coal men, will be that Illinois industries and other coal users will lose a part of the natural advantage resulting from the location of large coal fields within the state.

Prices Permit Competition.

The Illinois prices at the mines have been set on a basis which will permit competition from coal shipped into the state from other areas even when freight charges are added to out-of-state coal.

The national bituminous coal commission administers the coal act of 1937. Known as the Guffey act, this law replaces the old Guffey coal act, which was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

Acting on its own initiative, the coal commission recently conducted hearings to determine the effect that Illinois coal mined and used within its own limits would have on interstate commerce in bituminous coal.

The commission derives its authority from congress through the coal act of 1937. Its position is comparable to that of the interstate commerce commission.

Control Intrastate Business.

In order to make its orders effective, the interstate commerce commission has assumed control over railroad operations within a state. It sets intrastate as well as interstate rates. In assuming jurisdiction over intrastate coal, as in Illinois, the coal commission apparently is following the procedure of the interstate commerce commission.

In its recent order the coal commission observed that if Illinois intrastate coal was not subject to the same regulations as interstate coal it would have an unfair competitive advantage over the latter.

Coal retailers, at least those which are not controled by the mines, are bitter in their comments on federal control. Price boosting which it will cause, they say, will play into the hands of their competitors, the fuel oil and gas companies.

BUSINESS BITS

William Schlake, president of the Illinois Brick company, yesterday announced his resignation, effective tomorrow. He will become chairman. His son, William F. Schlake, who has been vice president of the company. John Goodridge was elected president.

J. W. Brady, assistant general freight agent in Chicago for the Nickel Plate railroad, has been appointed assistant freight traffic manager, central and northwestern region, to succeed F. A. Curry, who is retiring after 35 years service with the road.

Franklin B. Schmick has been elected vice president of Straus Securities company, and Harry Watts has become a member of its underwriting department.

DENY ENGLAND HAS OPTION ON CANADA'S WHEAT

Reports from London to the effect the British government had taken an option on the Canadian wheat crop were officially denied yesterday by officials of both countries, and by the Canadian wheat board and representatives of the western Canadian wheat pools.

The rumors were regarded by the grain trade as a revival of talk which occured more than a year ago, when the question of building up a war emergency reserve of food attracted the attention of the English parliament.

The Canadian wheat board at the time this program was being discussed was estimated to own more than 100,000,000 bushels of cash wheat and futures as the result of attempts to stabilize the wheat market in that country, and mention was made of the possibility that this grain would be taken over by the British government. The wheat board has since disposed of all of its holdings and is not operating.

Canada, according to an official estimate, had only 43,000,000 bushels of cash wheat available for export on Dec. 11, after allowing for necessary carryover.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Mandy's Family.

December 29, 1937.

THINGS have been happening in Sedgley Mandy's family lately. She became a grandmother on the morning after Christmas day and has been envied ever since by the other cows in the pure bred Guernsey herd, privately owned by Mrs. R. R. McCormick, near Wheaton. Shortly before Christmas, Mandy completed her yearly production record with butterfat figures that are respected by Guernsey breeders.

A year ago last May, Mandy came to the farm with her son, Sedgley Foremost, who is sire of Mandy's grandson, born to Souvenir, another pure bred Guernsey, at 6:30 a. m. last Sunday. The baby calf missed being born on Christmas day by only six and a half hours.

13,645 Pounds of Milk.

For more than a year members of the dairy fraternity, especially those affiliated with the Northern Illinois Guernsey Breeders' association, have kept an eye on Mandy. Recently she completed her unofficial twelve months record, producing 13,645.6 pounds of milk containing 706.2 pounds of butterfat, or 5.1 per cent butterfat.

It the 706.2 pounds of butterfat had been churned it would have produced approximately 872 pounds of butter. This is figured on the basis of 123½ pounds of butter produced by each 100 pounds of butterfat. This figure varies, however, with the amount of common salt added, the loss in churning, and the percentage of moisture left after the butter has been worked and put in the molds.

Mandy's monthly average for the entire test period of twelve months was 1,137.1 pounds of milk containing 58.8 pounds of butterfat. During November fourteen cows in the herd were milked. These cows, including Mandy, produced an average of 817 pounds of milk. This milk contained an average of 42.8 pounds of butterfat, or 5.2 per cent butterfat.

Hens Lay Off.

The poultry keeper's records at the Wheaton farm show that egg production dropped off this fall during the molting season when the birds lose their feathers, reaching the lowest point in the year.

The total egg production also is lowered in the fall because many of the birds are killed for table use. Thirteen died during October and November. Twenty-nine were killed and eaten, leaving 174 layers in the flock on the first of December. The layers produced 527 eggs in October and 233 in November.

3 Booklets Available.

Three booklets are now published by THE TRIBUNE for the benefit of farmers and gardeners. They will be found handy in planning flower, vegetable, and field crops for spring planting. They are all on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, at the following prices:

"Day by Day on the Farm" deals with year round activities and tests on the Tribune's experimental farms. "Suburban Gardening" is the revised edition of a booklet that has served thousands of vegetable growers since it was originally published in 1925. "Flower Gardening," originally published in 1929, also has been revised to include the latest methods followed in indoor and outdoor flower gardens.

Harvey Hubbell.

Investors' Guide: Please tell me about Harvey Hubbell, Inc. Its range is shown on the Chicago Stock exchange at 13-10¼. Why should I have been charged $20 a share in July? The dividend rate at that time was $1.20 per year. How do you figure the dividend of $1.23 shown in the paper?—Mrs. E. E. H.

Answer: The principal business of this company is the manufacture and sale of high grade electrical wiring devices. It also buys allied finished products from other concerns for resale, and sells certain of its own items to other manufacturers. The company's complete line includes more than 1,200 items.

The company was completely recapitalized in June, 1937. Ten shares of new $5 par common stock were issued for each old no par share, and a 70 per cent stock dividend was paid. The first public offering of stock—50,372 shares by stockholders and 8,955 by the company for new financing—was made in July, 1937.

Like others, you paid $20 a share, the offering price. The range shown on the Chicago Stock exchange dates only from the time of listing on Sept. 15. Like others, Hubbell stock declined substantially in market value after July.

The company reported net income of $239,000 or $1.50 a share for the first six months of 1937, per share figures being based on present capitalization of 160,000 shares. Net income was $298,000 for all of 1936 and $205,000 for 1935.

The company paid $2.25 a share in dividends before the recapitalization this year. It has paid two quarterly dividends of 30 cents and an extra of 50 cents Dec. 23 on the present stock. The $2.25 dividend being equal to 13 cents a share on the new stock, 1937 dividends are figured at $1.23 a share.

The stock appears to be medium grade at present.

Joint Tenancy.

Investors' Guide: I am about to give my father and mother $2,000, which at their death is to revert back to me; not through a will but in a way by itself. Is it possible to invest the sum in stocks under our three names and, if so, do the securities belong [at the death of one] to the remaining two of us, or must my father's and mother's share be divided between my brother and two sisters also?—G. V.

Answer: You can have the stock registered in all three names, being held in joint tenancy with right of the survivor or survivors to the stock upon the death of one or two of the parties.

LONDON LLOYD'S LICENSED UNDER ILLINOIS CODE

Points Settled After Six Months' Negotiations.

Underwriters representing Lloyd's of London, England, are fully licensed to continue doing business in Illinois after six months of conferences and negotiations revolving about the provisions of the new insurance code which became effective last July 1, it was learned yesterday.

A certificate of full compliance with the new code was issued by Ernest Palmer, Illinois director of insurance, late Tuesday to John S. Lord, attorney for Lloyd's underwriters. Lord, who is a member of the Chicago law firm of Lord, Lloyd & Bissell, made the announcement.

Exemption Plea Denied.

Until yesterday's announcement, some question had been raised as to whether the London underwriters would quit business in Illinois. Seeking without success to gain exemption last spring, Lloyd's representatives had said they would be unable to comply with the code.

One of the points settled by Kerner's opinions concerned deposits in Illinois banks in trust for the benefit of Illinois policy obligations. Kerner ruled that underwriters of Lloyd's may make "joint and several" deposits for the policies rather than individual deposits, each of which would be applied as specific protection only for policies issued through that particular underwriter.

Underwrite as Individuals.

The Lloyd's organization, oldest insurance organization in existence, does not issue policies as an organization. Members undewrite as individuals under the supervision of a governing committee.

The organization has $2,350,000 on deposit in trust in Illinois. Amounts of insurance company deposits depend on reserves required under Illinois law. The question of deposits and reserves was closely allied with the question of whether Lloyd's might reinsure part of their business on the same basis as stock companies.

Kerner ruled that the "limitation of risk" provision of the code meant that Lloyd's may deduct amounts reinsured with others.

PLAN TO LIMIT GRAIN TRADE IN 'DELIVERY MONTH

Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the Commodity Exchange administration, said yesterday in Washington that the administration is planning to issue an order about Jan. 15 prohibiting trading in grain futures in the last ten trading days of the month in which the contract expires. The CEA recently concluded hearings in Chicago on the proposal.

Disagreement between the CEA and the Chicago Board of Trade as to how the forthcoming rule should be interpreted caused the exchange to postpone the opening of trading in September, 1938, contracts, Duvel said.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The Great Lakes Transit corporation said yesterday that after it had announced last April it was abandoning its steamship service to Chicago and Milwaukee, it had on July 15 resumed its Chicago operations. A TRIBUNE report said that the new Canadian Pacific steamship service would replace that abandoned by Great Lakes. The Great Lakes Transit corporation said it would have its regular service in operation on Lake Michigan with the opening of navigation in the spring.

EGG CONTRACTS CLOSE LOWER AS RALLY FAILS

In an unsettled market, egg futures fluctuated within a 1¼ cent price range at the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday and closed lower. After a lower opening, prices rallied as much as ⅝ cent over Tuesday's close, but the gains were quickly lost in a reversal which carried the January delivery to a new seasonal low at 18¾ cents a dozen. Deliveries of eighty-seven cars were reported and fresh arrivals were heavier than Tuesday.

Butter contracts moved in a narrow range and closed unchanged from Tuesday. Potatoes for January delivery were unchanged at $1.37.

Predicts Large Business at Chicago Shoe Exhibit

Maxey Jarman, chairman of the national shoe fair which opens in Chicago Jan. 3, yesterday estimated that business totaling $50,000,000 would be written during the show. Inventories are low, he said, and buying will be necessary to replenish stocks for the spring trade.
